Title: CRIMINAL JUSTICE DEBT : A barrier to reentry (Electronic Document) --2010.
Source: BRENNAN CENTER FOR JUSTICE
Pages: 71
Subject: 1. COURT FEES. 2. PRISONERS.
Notes: "Many states are imposing new and often onerous 'user fees' on individuals with criminal convictions. Yet far from being easy money, these fees impose severe – and often hidden – costs on communities, taxpayers, and indigent people convicted of crimes. They create new paths to prison for those unable to pay their debts and make it harder to find employment and housing as well to meet child support obligations.
This report examines practices in the fifteen states with the highest prison populations, which together account for more than 60 percent of all state criminal filings. We focused primarily on the proliferation of 'user fees,' financial obligations imposed not for any traditional criminal justice purpose such as punishment, deterrence, or rehabilitation but rather to fund tight state budgets."

Title: NEVADA REVISED STATUTES : Certain laws relating to sex offenders, offenders who are convicted of a crime against a child, and parole that replace provisions enjoined from enforcement in ACLU v. Masto (Electronic Document) --2010.

Source: LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL BUREAU, LEGAL DIVISION

Pages: 64

Subject: 1. SEX OFFENDERS--NEVADA.

Notes: "This booklet was prepared to provide access to certain laws relating to sex offenders, offenders who are convicted of a crime against a child, and parole as those laws existed prior to the enactment of Assembly Bill No. 579 (2007) and Senate Bill No. 471 (2007). The laws set forth in this booklet are now the current law because on October 7, 2008, the United States District Court for the District of Nevada permanently enjoined the State of Nevada from enforcing A.B. 579 and S.B. 471 in ACLU of Nevada v. Masto et al., Case No. 2:08-cv-00822-JCM-PAL. Based on the reasoning in Finger v. State, 117 Nev. 548 (2001) and Johnson v. Goldman, 94 Nev. 6 (1978), the statutory changes made by Assembly Bill No. 579 (2007) and Senate Bill No. 471 (2007) have been rendered null and void by the order of the district court, and the NRS provisions pertaining to sex offenders that existed before the enactment of those bills remain in effect as if those bills were never enacted. Source: URBAN INSTITUTE

Pages: 54

Subject: 1. PAROLE AND PROBATION.

Notes: "In 2007, the Urban Institute convened two meetings with national experts on the topic of parole supervision. The goal of the meetings was to articulate participants' collective best thinking on parole supervision, violation, and revocation practices and to identify policies and strategies that would help policymakers and practitioners improve public safety and make the best use of taxpayer dollars. This paper, the result of those meetings and a review of the research literature, describes 13 key strategies to enhance reentry outcomes along with examples from the field. Title: MANAGING SPENT NUCLEAR FUEL : Strategy alternatives and policy implications (Electronic Document) --2010.

Source: RAND

Pages: 97

Subject: 1. HAZARDOUS WASTE. 2. YUCCA MOUNTAIN PROJECT.

Notes: "Increasing awareness of the need to reduce greenhouse gas emissions has renewed interest in nuclear power generation. At the same time, the longstanding logjam over how to manage spent nuclear fuel continues to hamper the expansion of nuclear power. If nuclear power is to be a sustainable option for the United States, methods for managing spent fuel that meet stringent safety and environmental standards must be implemented. This monograph evaluates the main technical and institutional approaches to spent nuclear fuel management and identifies implications for the development of spent fuel management policy. The authors find that on-site storage, centralized interim storage, and permanent geological disposal are generally safe, secure, and low- to moderate-cost approaches with no insurmountable technical obstacles. Advanced fuel cycles enabling spent-fuel recycling could reduce waste repository capacity needs but are difficult to evaluate because they still in early research stages. Public acceptance challenges stand as a major impediment to any technical approach. The analysis shows that the technical approaches can be combined in different ways to form different spent fuel management strategies that can be distinguished primarily in terms of societal preferences in three areas: the disposition of spent fuel, the growth of nuclear power, and intergenerational trade-offs."

Subject: 1. INTERNET. 2. STATE GOVERNMENT.

Notes: "The bottom-line—social media tools are being actively adopted and used throughout state governments across the country. Much as was the case with the explosive growth of the Web itself over a decade ago, the early adopters of social media are most frequently the public relations, messaging-focused segments within state governments. As was also the case in that earlier time, the survey in the aggregate documents a parallel lag between use and policy or governance mechanisms, even while a number of states have moved aggressively to adopt the technologies strategically and to govern their use through enterprise policies, guidelines, or standards."

Source: NATIONAL GOVERNORS' ASSOCIATION (NGA) ISSUE BRIEF

Pages: 26

Subject: 1. GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION.

Notes: "The NGA Center for Best Practices (NGA Center) has been tracking states' efforts to downsize and redesign government. In FY 2009 and 2010, a broad range of budget cuts and programmatic changes were enacted; some of the changes are temporary but most reflect a 'new normal' for state government in the long term. At least 15 states conducted government wide efficiency reviews to identify areas of state government that can be made more efficient and less costly; at least 18 states have reorganized agencies; and more than 20 states have altered employee compensation, including enacting pension reforms.

This Issue Brief examines these actions and others that governors have been taking to deal with the austere budget reality."

Notes: "The Brennan Center reviewed hundreds of reports of problems with voting systems in the last eight years, and closely studied fourteen of them. Our study shows that election officials and the public are often completely reliant on the private companies that sell and service this voting equipment and related service contracts to voluntarily keep them aware of potential problems with those systems. ... The core thesis of this report is simple: we need a new and better regulatory structure to ensure that voting system defects are caught early, officials in affected jurisdictions are notified immediately, and action is taken to make certain that they will be corrected for all such systems, wherever they are used in the United States."

- Coordinate early childhood governance through a state early childhood advisory council (ECAC)
- Build an integrated professional development system
- Implement a quality rating and improvement system (QRIS)
- Develop a longitudinal and coordinated early childhood data system
- Align comprehensive early learning guidelines and standards for children from birth to age 8 with K-3 content standards
