TRAINING COMMISSION

EXPLANATION – Matter in italics is new; matter in brackets ~~omitted material~~ is material to be omitted.

AUTHORITY: § 1, NRS 289.510.

A REGULATION relating to peace officers; authorizing the Executive Director of the Peace Officers' Standards and Training Commission to certify certain basic training courses; eliminating certain obsolete requirements relating to training in the use of certain restraints; requiring instructional facilities used for certain basic training courses to provide an adequate location for training in the operation of emergency vehicles; requiring an agency requesting certification of a basic training course to demonstrate that the proposed course satisfies certain criteria; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law requires the Peace Officers' Standards and Training Commission to adopt regulations establishing minimum standards for the certification, decertification, recruitment, selection and training of peace officers, which must include regulations establishing requirements for basic training for category I, category II, category III and reserve peace officers. (NRS 289.510) Existing regulations require the Executive Director of the Commission to certify basic training courses presented by agencies or approved by the Commission which meet certain requirements. (NAC 289.300) This regulation instead authorizes the Executive Director to certify such basic training courses. This regulation additionally requires an agency requesting the certification of a basic training course to demonstrate: (1) the need for the approval of the course; (2) that the course meets the minimum standards of training for the applicable training category; and (3) that there is sufficient demand for the course.

Existing regulations require the minimum standard of training for officers in certain training categories to include training in the operation of emergency vehicles. (NAC 289.140) This regulation requires an agency submitting a course for certification to have, if the course requires training in the operation of emergency vehicles, an instructional facility with an adequate location to enable the course to provide practical demonstrations, training and testing regarding the operation of emergency vehicles in a manner consistent with certain standardized performance objectives or instructor manuals.

Before the enactment of Assembly Bill No. 3 (A.B. 3) of the 32nd Special Session, a peace officer was only authorized to use a choke hold in the course of his or her duties if: (1) the agency employing the peace officer authorized the use of choke holds; and (2) the peace officer had completed certain training prescribed by the Commission in the proper use of the choke hold and held certification for its use. However, A.B. 3 repealed the authority of an agency to authorize the use of the choke hold and affirmatively prohibited a peace officer from using a choke hold on another person, which includes the application of pressure to a person's neck on either side of the windpipe to stop the flow of blood to the brain via the carotid arteries. (NRS 193.305; section 12 of Assembly Bill No. 3, chapter 4, Statutes of Nevada 2020, 32nd Special Session, at page 72) Existing regulations require a basic training course to include certain instruction and testing in the use of certain restraints that temporarily restrict the flow of blood to the brain via the carotid arteries, if the applicable agency authorized the use of such restraints. (NAC 289.300) This regulation therefore eliminates this obsolete requirement, as the use of such restraints by a peace officer is prohibited under existing law.

Section 1. NAC 289.300 is hereby amended to read as follows:
