Legislative Counsel’s Digest:

The federal Fostering Connections to Success and Increasing Adoptions Act of 2008 allows states to receive federal Title IV-E reimbursement for costs associated with providing support services for: (1) children in foster care who are under 18 years of age; and (2) persons to remain in foster care up to 21 years of age who meet certain additional requirements. (Pub. L. No. 110-351) Existing law requires the Division of Child and Family Services of the Department of Human Services to: (1) establish the Extended Young Adult Support Services Program to provide extended youth support services to young adults between 18 and 21 years of age where the costs of providing such services are eligible for reimbursement under federal law; and (2) adopt regulations governing the Program. (NRS 432B.5919)

Existing federal law: (1) requires an agency which provides child welfare services to establish a case plan for certain children or young adults who are in foster care; and (2) establishes the requirements for such a case plan. (42 U.S.C. §§ 671(a)(16), 675(1), 675a) Existing Nevada law requires an agency which provides child welfare services to develop a written extended youth support services plan for each young adult who participates in the Program to assist the young adult in transitioning to self-sufficiency. (NRS 432B.595, as amended by section 6 of Senate Bill No. 504, chapter 364, Statutes of Nevada 2025, at page 2372) Section 2 of this regulation defines “extended youth support services plan” to refer to such a plan. Section 3 of this regulation requires that such a plan meet the requirements established for a case plan under federal law. Section 3 also: (1) establishes certain requirements governing the development, contents and review of such a plan; and (2) requires that a representative of the agency contact a young adult participating in the Program while the young adult is enrolled in the Program.

Existing federal law requires that a court or administrative review panel: (1) review the status of a child or young adult who is in foster care at least every 6 months; and (2) hold a permanency hearing annually to evaluate the plan for the permanent placement of such a child or young adult. (42 U.S.C. §§ 671(a)(16), 675(5)(B), 675(5)(C)) Existing Nevada law requires a court that has jurisdiction over a young adult who is participating in the Program to hold a semiannual hearing to: (1) review the extended youth support services plan developed for the young adult; and (2) determine whether the agency which provides child welfare services has made reasonable efforts to assist the participant in meeting the goals prescribed in the plan. (NRS 432B.601, as amended by section 7 of Senate Bill No. 504, chapter 364, Statutes of Nevada 2025, at page 2374) Section 4 of this regulation requires such hearings to include the status reviews and permanency hearings at the intervals required by federal law. Sections 4 and 5 of this regulation establish certain procedures relating to such hearings.

Existing Nevada law authorizes a court to involuntarily terminate the participation of a young adult in the Program under certain conditions, including failure to make a good faith effort to achieve the goals set forth in his or her extended youth support services plan. Existing law requires an agency which provides child welfare services to provide notice and opportunity to a young adult for administrative review before requesting a court take such action. (NRS 432B.594, as amended by section 5 of Senate Bill No. 504, chapter 364, Statutes of Nevada 2025, at page 2370) Section 6 of this regulation requires an agency which provides child welfare services to: (1) monitor the participation of each young adult who is participating in the Program to ensure that the young adult remains engaged in the Program and makes a good faith effort to achieve the goals set forth in his or her extended youth support services plan; and (2) make reasonable efforts to reengage a young adult in the Program before seeking to terminate his or her participation in the Program for failure to make such a good faith effort. Section 7 of this regulation establishes certain requirements governing an administrative review concerning the termination of participation of a young adult in the Program. Section 7 also requires a panel conducting such an administrative review to take certain actions if it determines that the young adult will continue to participate in the Program. Section 8 of this regulation establishes a procedure for a young adult to voluntarily terminate his or her participation in the Program.

Existing federal law requires an agency which provides child welfare services to adopt a transition plan for each child or young adult during the 90-day period before the child or young adult becomes too old to remain in foster care. (42 U.S.C. §§ 671(a)(16), 675(5)(H)) Section 9 of this regulation requires an agency which provides child welfare services to develop such a transition plan for a young adult who is participating in the Program within the 90-day period before his or her 21st birthday. Before the date on which the participation of a young adult in the Program is scheduled to terminate, section 9 requires an agency which provides child welfare services to: (1) ensure completion of such a transition plan; and (2) provide the young adult with certain documents required by federal law. Section 9 also requires an agency which provides child welfare services to ensure that a representative of the agency meets with a young adult participating in the Program within a certain time period before the 21st birthday of the young adult.
