RAMON C. CORTINES
 SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

March 24, 2015

RE: LAUSD Organization of Districts (Effective July 1, 2015)

Dear LAUSD Community,

I have championed local control since my first tenure as Superintendent when I organized LAUSD into local districts. I know firsthand—as a former teacher and a principal—decisions made locally tend to be more responsive to the needs of schools and families. Even the State has embraced this principal in its recent adoption of the Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF). I am now taking the next step toward community empowerment by organizing LAUSD into six regions that are geographically based (called “districts”). Schools currently in the Intensive Support and Innovation Center (ISIC) will report to the district where they are located. These changes will be effective July 1, 2015.

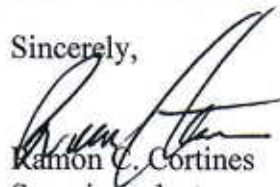

Configuring LAUSD into six smaller districts will create a more manageable area for superintendents to serve. Each district will contain less than 100,000 students and less than 150 schools; by contrast, current educational service center (ESC) North has more than 150,000 students and more than 200 schools. The new configuration will allow superintendents to provide more personalized attention to campuses. I believe six is the ideal number of districts at this time because it will enhance local control but can realistically be achieved within the existing ESC budget.

The reintegration of ISIC schools will promote localized support and collaboration within every region. These schools will be positioned closer to their district’s administrative office, which will make it easier to access localized resources. Additionally, all schools in an area will report to the same district. This will facilitate the sharing of best practices between excelling and struggling schools, and will enable better collaboration among schools in the same feeder pattern.

In the new configuration we will maintain a laser-like focus on struggling schools and innovative schools. I will provide superintendents with the flexibility they need to allocate resources equitably, and will expect them to continue providing additional support where it is required. We will select superintendents who are equipped to meet this challenge and work tirelessly for every student’s success. We will also continue to concentrate resources on effective programs for high-needs children as part of the LCFF.

Students are the center of the District. By cultivating networks of support around students and their schools, we can facilitate the conditions needed for innovation, intensive services, and locally informed decision-making. I have experienced the talent and passion residing within our communities, and I am excited to see employees and families make the most of this opportunity to collaborate around new ways to raise student achievement.

Sincerely,

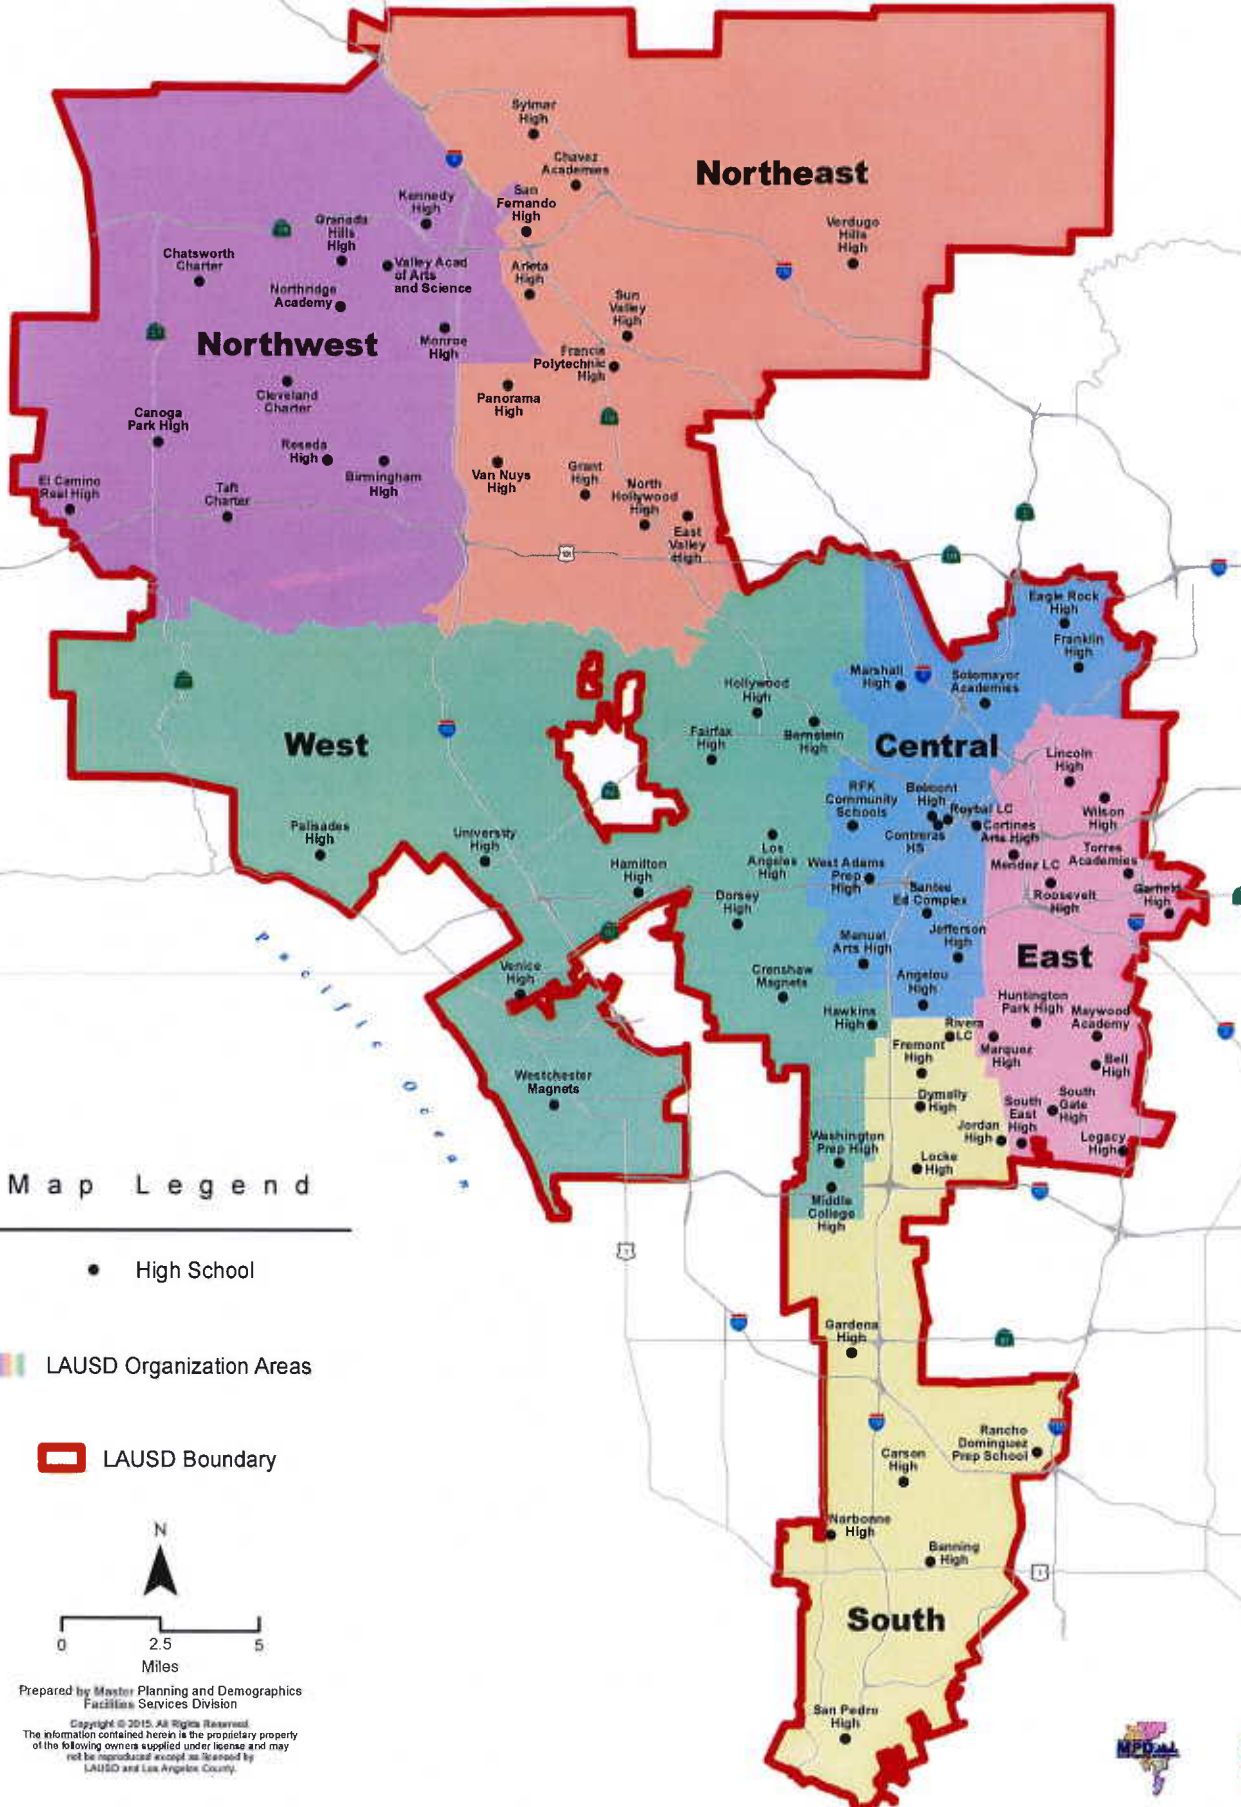

Ramon C. Cortines
 Superintendent
