Dear Ladies and Gentlemen of the Committee on Education:

I am unable to attend the March 26th hearing but am requesting that this letter be read and entered in to the record.

I, Joannah Schumacher, represent a large bi-partisan group of men and women who are disturbed by the lack of parent control and over reach of government control that is being exerted by the implementation of "Common Core" (and other such programs).

We are concerned that the current testing and data collecting has no "opt out" for parents who are concerned about their child's and family's privacy.

We believe that it should be established in the NRS that no data maybe collected or tracked until each school has received a hand written parental permission document for each type of data collected with specifics as to how the data will be collected, stored, used, and distributed.

Thank you for reading and entering my testimony into the recorded and for distributing a copy of this email to the Committee.

Sincerely,
Joannah Schumacher
