Public Comment - Committee to Conduct an Interim Study Concerning Community Colleges SB391

Dear Committee Member,

The subject of accountability to the community came up today in the discussion of local advisory boards. The community colleges currently have advisory boards and from what I have seen there is little accountability to the community. To correct this I recommend that the advisory boards be chaired by a member of the community or local government and report to the new standing sub-committee of the Board of Regents for community colleges. This will ensure that if the community college is not meeting the needs of the community the issue can be raised at a forum capable of addressing the problem.
