

Provides for real discipline in the schools to reduce the epidemic of violence. It removes the failed “restorative justice” language from the law, which has led to the scourge of violence, often not allowing the removal of violent students from the classroom and schools. Children cannot learn and teachers cannot teach when continually threatened with violence. Protect children and teachers from violent individuals at school.

Mon Bertolucci