

Hello members of the Committee,

Neutral Ab162

I am writing to provide a neutral testimony regarding the proposal to prohibit the use of neonicotinoid pesticides for certain purposes and provide penalties for violations of the prohibition.

As you are aware, neonicotinoid pesticides have been linked to declines in bee populations, which can have significant impacts on our ecosystem and agricultural industry. Proponents of this proposal argue that restricting the use of these pesticides is necessary to protect bees and other pollinators from harm.

On the other hand, opponents of this proposal argue that neonicotinoid pesticides are an important tool for controlling pests and protecting crops from damage. They also argue that there is not enough scientific evidence to support a ban on these pesticides, and that such a ban could have negative economic consequences for farmers and the agricultural industry.

As a neutral party, I urge the committee to carefully consider both sides of this issue and take into account the potential benefits and drawbacks of a prohibition on neonicotinoid pesticides. It is important to weigh the potential benefits of protecting bee populations against the potential costs to the agricultural industry and the wider economy.

Thank you for your time and attention to this important issue.
