Title: GEOGRAPHY 2010 : National assessment of educational progress at grades 4, 8, and 12 (Electronic Document) --2011.
Source: NATIONAL CENTER FOR EDUCATION STATISTICS (NCES)
Pages: 62 Series: The Nation's Report Card
Subject: 1. EDUCATION--ASSESSMENT. 2. EDUCATION--COMPETENCY TESTING. 3. EDUCATION--CURRICULUM.
Notes: "Nationally representative samples of about 7,000 fourth-graders, 9,500 eighth-graders, and 10,000 twelfth-graders participated in the 2010 National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) in geography. At each grade, students responded to questions designed to measure their knowledge of geography in the context of space and place, environment and society, and spatial dynamics and connections. Comparing the results from the 2010 assessment to the results from previous assessments in 1994 and 2001 shows how students' knowledge and skills in geography have changed over time."

Title: IMPACTS OF A VIOLENCE PREVENTION PROGRAM FOR MIDDLE SCHOOLS : Findings after 3 years of implementation (Book) --2011.
Source: INSTITUTE OF EDUCATION SCIENCES (IES), NATIONAL CENTER FOR EDUCATION EVALUATION AND REGIONAL ASSISTANCE (NCEE)
Pages: 100+
Subject: 1. EDUCATION--PUPILS--CRIME. 2. EDUCATION--PUPILS--SAFETY.
Notes: "This report presents findings from an IES-sponsored study of a violence prevention strategy designed to improve school safety in middle schools. The strategy combines a classroom curriculum-based approach (Responding in Peaceful and Positive Ways, RiPP) and a whole-school approach (BEST Behavior). The curriculum-based approach aims to improve students' social and problem solving skills for dealing with conflict and managing aggression. The whole-school approach seeks to influence the school environment through strategies such as increasing supervision of the school grounds, clarifying rules and consequences for student behavior, establishing reward systems to encourage positive behaviors, and training staff in classroom management."

Subject: 1. ELECTIONS.

Notes: Anthony Fowler and Michele Margolis, authors

"Survey researchers have long known that Americans fail to meet the democratic ideals of an informed electorate. The consequences of this political ignorance, however, are less clear. In two independent settings, we experimentally test the effect of political information on citizens' attitudes toward the major parties. When uninformed citizens receive political information, they systematically shift their political preferences away from the Republican Party and toward the Democrats. In contrast to the optimistic claims that political ignorance is compensated through other mechanisms, our results suggest that the lack of information in the current American electorate typically produces results that differ from the ideal counterfactual world where all voters are informed."

Title: STATE TAXATION OF INTERNET TRANSACTIONS (Electronic Document) --2011.

Source: CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE (CRS)

Pages: 19

Subject: 1. ELECTRONIC COMMERCE (E COMMERCE). 2. SALES AND USE TAXES.

Notes: "The United States Bureau of the Census estimated that $3.7 trillion worth of retail and wholesale transactions were conducted over the Internet in 2008. That amount was 16.5% of all U.S. shipments and sales in that year. Other estimates projected the 2011 so-called e-commerce volume at approximately $3.5 trillion. The volume of e-commerce is expected to increase and state and local governments are concerned because collection of sales taxes on these transactions is difficult to enforce.

Under current law, states cannot reach beyond their borders and compel out-of-state Internet vendors (those without nexus in the buyer's state) to collect the use tax owed by state residents and businesses. The Supreme Court ruled in 1967 that requiring remote vendors to collect the use tax would pose an undue burden on interstate commerce. Estimates put this lost tax revenue at approximately $8.6 billion in 2010."

Source: INQUIRY

Pages: 17

Subject: 1. HEALTH CARE--LONG-TERM. 2. INSURANCE, LONG-TERM.

Notes: "This paper investigates the effects of privately purchased long-term care insurance (LTCI) on three major types of long-term care services: nursing home care, paid home care, and informal care received from family and friends. Using 2002–2008 data from the ongoing Health and Retirement Study, we analyze the determinants of long-term care utilization simultaneously with the determinants of holding LTCI. We find that LTCI has modest effects on the likelihood of using long-term care services. For the very frail elderly, private LTCI enhances their access to nursing home care. For those with moderate disability, LTCI makes it more likely that they can remain at home and receive home care services, instead of going to a nursing home. We find no evidence that formal care substitutes for informal care in the presence of LTCI. These findings suggest that if LTCI becomes much more prevalent in the future, many older adults will be able to choose the type of long-term care arrangement that best suits their needs."

Pages: 120+

Subject: 1. CHILD WELFARE.

Notes: 2011 report "finds children have fallen further behind in many of the leading indicators over the past year as the country slowly climbs out of the recession. This is a comprehensive compilation and analysis of the most recent and reliable national and state-by-state data on population, poverty, family structure, family income, health, nutrition, early childhood development, education, child welfare, juvenile justice, and gun violence. The report provides key child data showing alarming numbers of children at risk: children are the poorest age group with 15.5 million children—one in every five children in America—living in poverty, and more than 60 percent of fourth, eighth and 12th grade public school students are reading or doing math below grade level."

Notes: "Since the release of Homelessness Counts: Changes in Homelessness from 2005 to 2007, the Alliance has chronicled changes in the levels of homelessness in the nation and in individual states and communities to chart our progress toward the goal of ending homelessness. This comprehensive examination not only reveals national and state level homeless counts, but also delves into economic indicators and demographic drivers – taking an in-depth look at risk factors for homelessness. Built upon the most recent nationally available data from the federal Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Health and Human Services, Justice, and other public information sources, this report analyzes the effect the recession has had on homelessness and how it has contributed to an increased risk of homelessness for many Americans."

Source: JOINT CENTER FOR HOUSING STUDIES OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Pages: 40

Subject: 1. HOUSING.

Notes: "In the worst housing construction cycle since the 1940s ... depressed demand is making it difficult for the market to work off excess vacant units. Restoring demand to more normal levels will take time since so many owners are in financial distress or trapped in homes worth less than their mortgages. The recession has also dampened both immigration and new household formation. But once new home sales rebound and the economy begins to pick up, the aging of the echo boomers—the largest generation to reach adulthood in the nation's history—should reinvigorate the housing market."
