EDUCATION

Title: FUNDING GAPS 2015 (Miscellaneous) --2015.

Source: EDUCATION TRUST

Pages: 12

Subject: 1. EDUCATION--FINANCES.

Notes: "In "Funding Gaps 2015," we use the latest available data to analyze funding disparities across the nation and within states. Our analysis finds that nationally, the highest poverty districts receive about $1,200 less per student than the lowest poverty districts. The differences are even larger—roughly $2,000 per student—among districts serving the most and the fewest students of color."

Title: MODERNIZING NEVADA'S EDUCATION STRUCTURES : Opportunities for the 78th Session of the Nevada Legislature (Electronic Document) --2015.

Source: UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, LAS VEGAS, LINCY INSTITUTE

Pages: 21

Subject: 1. EDUCATION--ADMINISTRATION. 2. EDUCATION--SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

Notes: "Although few disagree that increased educational investments are needed to lift the state from its present station, the reality is that Nevada is unlikely to fund K–12 education at the level suggested by the 'Professional Judgment Study Report' any time soon, if ever. Thus, commensurate with reforming and selectively enhancing educational funding policymakers should also examine reforms to the governance and organization of Nevada's K–12 educational structures. To help inform this debate, we focus on two areas in which meaningful structural changes would occur should Governor Sandoval's policy innovations be accepted and implemented: consolidating or deconsolidating the state's county--based school districts and changing the selection method of school board members. In theory, these policies should lead to better student outcomes. Below, we highlight how these policies have fared in practice in regions and states where they have been implemented. Before doing so, we highlight why a close examination of these education policies in Nevada are long overdue."

Source: GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY CENTER ON EDUCATION AND THE WORKFORCE

Pages: 60

Subject: 1. EDUCATION. 2. EMPLOYMENT.

Notes: "In this report, we analyze the online college labor market on a state-by-state basis, using data from Burning Glass Technologies, one of the leading developers of online job ads data. We examine the geographic distribution of online job ads for college graduates within industries and occupational clusters, and compare the relative strength of the online college labor markets across states. Specifically, we analyze the online college labor market by 10 major occupational clusters and 13 industries. We also highlight employment dynamics in each state, such as jobs recovered since the end of the recession, the most in-demand occupations, and employers with the largest recruiting presence as measured by online job ads."

Pages: 40+

Subject: 1. FINANCES AND FUNDS, FEDERAL. 2. MANDATES.

Notes: "The federal government, through laws and regulations, sometimes imposes requirements—known as federal mandates—on state, local, and tribal governments and entities in the private sector in order to achieve national goals. In 1995, lawmakers enacted the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) in part to ensure that, during the legislative process, the Congress receives information about the potential effects of mandates as it considers proposed legislation. To that end, UMRA requires CBO, at certain points in the legislative process, to assess the cost of mandates that would apply to state, local, and tribal governments or to the private sector. This report, which is part of an annual series that began in 1997, summarizes CBO's activities in 2012 under UMRA."

Subject: 1. HEALTH CARE COSTS.

Notes: "A new interactive tool on the Peterson-Kaiser Health System Tracker allows users to analyze the most up-to-date data on U.S. health spending, then build, display and share the charts they create. Developed by analysts at the Kaiser Family Foundation, the Health Spending Explorer helps users examine five decades worth of numbers documenting expenditures by federal and local governments, private insurers, and individuals on 15 categories of health services, including hospitals, physician & clinic care, and prescription drugs. The data – which spans from 1960 to 2013 – is drawn from the National Health Expenditure Account, and will be updated with each new data release."

Title: MARIJUANA : Medical and retail--selected legal issues (Electronic Document) --2015.

Source: CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE (CRS)

Pages: 43

Subject: 1. MARIJUANA, MEDICAL.

Notes: "The federal Controlled Substances Act (CSA) outlaws the possession, cultivation, and distribution of marijuana except for authorized research. More than 20 states have regulatory schemes that allow possession, cultivation, and distribution of marijuana for medicinal purposes. Four have revenue regimes that allow possession, cultivation, and sale generally. The U.S. Constitution's Supremacy Clause preempts any state law that conflicts with federal law. Although there is some division, the majority of state courts have concluded that the federal-state marijuana law conflict does not require preemption of state medical marijuana laws. The legal consequences of a CSA violation, however, remain in place. Nevertheless, current federal criminal enforcement guidelines counsel confining investigations and prosecutions to the most egregious affront to federal interests."
