Title: PUBLIC ACCOMMODATION STATUTES AND SEXUAL ORIENTATION : Should there be a religious exemption for secular businesses? (Electronic Document) --2015.

Source: WILLIAM AND MARY JOURNAL OF WOMEN AND THE LAW

Pages: 61

Subject: 1. PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS. 2. RELIGIONS.

Notes: "This Article examines the issue of whether there should be a religious exemption for secular businesses from public accommodation statutes that protect prospective patrons from discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. The Article examines this issue in the context of protecting free exercise of religion versus offering services to all members of the public equally and without distinction. The Article concludes that the perceived threat to religious liberty posed by such statutes is exaggerated, that the consequences of granting exemptions would be harmful, and that state-sanctioned discrimination is contrary to the fundamental principles of justice and equality underlying the U.S. legal system."

Subject: 1. COURT PROCEDURE. 2. COURTS, SPECIALTY--JUVENILE COURTS. 3. JUVENILE DELINQUENCY.

Notes: Discussed in Senate Judiciary 4-27-15 meeting re A.B. 138

"This document has been prepared to assist states that are considering developing or amending statutes pertaining to competence to stand trial in juvenile court delinquency proceedings. The need for the development of statutes regarding the application of competence to stand trial (CST) in juvenile court proceedings arises from recent historical developments. The right of defendants to be capable of participating in their defense, as defined in Dusky v. U.S. (1960) and all states' criminal codes, was rarely raised in juvenile court before the mid-1990s. In the past 10 years, however, it has been raised with increasing frequency in most jurisdictions. Nevertheless, most states have not yet developed statutory guidance for the application of CST in juvenile court proceedings. Furthermore, within the states that have juvenile competency statutes in place, some express frustration from the bench, defense, and/or prosecution and seek change in their current statutory scheme."

Pages: 12

Subject: 1. CRIMINAL JUSTICE--SENTENCING.

Notes: "In each state, the legislature has established a criminal code and sentencing system. These govern decisions about which criminal offenders are eligible for community placement, jail or prison, and how long offenders should be behind bars or under supervision. While each state's system is unique, they share common objectives of holding offenders accountable and protecting public safety. Effective sentencing systems strive for fairness, consistency, certainty and opportunity. In order to continue to achieve these objectives over time, legislatures regularly update their criminal codes and change aspects of their sentencing policies."

Title: THE CONDITION OF COLLEGE AND CAREER READINESS YEAR : National (Book) --AN 2012--

Source: ACT, INC.

Pages: 20+

Subject: 1. EDUCATION--COMPETENCY TESTING. 2. EDUCATION--SECONDARY.

Notes: "This report focuses on the college and career readiness levels of the ACT-tested US high school graduating class of 2012. The report represents 52 percent of all 2012 graduates in the United States. Findings in the report suggest that for this cohort of tested students, the condition of college and career readiness has slightly improved over the past several years, specifically in the subject areas of math and science. While encouraging, far too many students are graduating from high school ill-prepared for the academic rigors of college and career. The results again indicate that the US education system must do better at helping our young people to compete with their peers in other nations for meaningful jobs and careers in the 21st century global economy." Title: CREDENTIALS FOR ALL : An Imperative for SREB States (Miscellaneous) --2015.

Source: SOUTHERN REGIONAL EDUCATION BOARD

Pages: 8

Subject: 1. COMPENSATION, WAGES, AND HOURS. 2. EDUCATION. 3. EMPLOYMENT TRAINING.

Notes: "A new report from the Southern Regional Education Board makes recommendations states can take to increase the number of students who hold a degree or credential of value by age 25. "Credentials for All" argues that low educational attainment harms both individuals and the economy and that young adults looking to compete in the 21st Century workforce must pursue education and training beyond high school. In order to create relevant career pathways and boost attainment, the report recommends aligning K-12 and postsecondary education with workforce demands, raising student expectations and standards so that they are able to graduate ready for both college and careers, and defining career readiness in state policy. The report further recommends using federal funds to help reorganize and improve low-performing schools, creating a combination of incentives to encourage collaboration between school districts and community and technical colleges, and implementing accountability systems that recognize and reward schools and institutions that double the number of young adults who acquire postsecondary credentials and secure high-skill, high-wage jobs by age 25."

The findings show that since 2010, the economy has produced 6.6 million employment opportunities. Out of these career opportunities, 2.9 million are considered good jobs. The key finding revealed that 2.8 million good jobs went to college graduates. Some of the largest growing professions seek high-skilled workers and offer large benefits packages. Most good jobs are full time and twice as likely to provide health insurance and retirement plans. The competitive wages and good benefits of these good jobs offer created a healthy job market during the recovery."

Title: JOBS FOR THE FUTURE : Helping Underprepared Students Succeed in College and Careers (Series) --2015.

Source: JOBS FOR THE FUTURE

Pages: 8 Series: Policy Brief

Subject: 1. COMMUNITY COLLEGES. 2. EMPLOYMENT.

Notes: This "policy brief from Jobs for the Future outlines strategies for developing and implementing comprehensive supports to help improve college and career outcomes for underrepresented students. "These People Just Keep Trying to Help Me" - Supporting Students to Succeed in College and Career Pathways" provides specific state and institutional examples, in addition to broad challenges and potential solutions to improving preparation and completion for traditional and adult students. Strategies highlighted in the brief include leveraging existing external partnerships in an effort to bring community resources directly onto community college campuses and automatically screening all students for public benefits eligibility."

Source: NATIONAL GOVERNORS' ASSOCIATION (NGA)

Pages: 20

Subject: 1. EDUCATION. 2. EMPLOYMENT.

Notes: "Governors play a central role in ensuring that public educational institutions provide students with the knowledge and abilities required for a successful life and career. The systemic use of data from education and labor markets informs governors and other policymakers of the effectiveness and efficiency of their existing postsecondary systems and students and employers of labor market conditions. States also can use such data systems to hold educators and trainers accountable for meeting the goals for degrees and certificates granted and to provide state residents with a clearer understanding of how they are progressing through postsecondary programs and how best to enhance their career opportunities."

Title: UNDERSTANDING NEVADA'S HIGHER EDUCATION GOVERNANCE FOR TWO-YEAR COLLEGES : Challenges and solutions (Electronic Document) --2014.

Source: UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, LAS VEGAS (UNLV)

Pages: 17

Subject: 1. COMMUNITY COLLEGES--NEVADA. 2. NEVADA SYSTEM OF HIGHER EDUCATION (NSHE)

Notes:

- "State governance of colleges and universities is an indicator of the state's relationship with key stakeholders, such as business leaders, elected officials, policy makers, and local residents. Accordingly, a state's college governance structure shapes two-year public colleges' institutional priorities and how these vital institutions respond to local workforce needs. Around the country, an important function of two-year colleges is to provide training and skills for regional workforces that align to local business and industry needs. This brief examines the origins of two-year colleges and compares Nevada's college outcomes with those of similar states through the use of federal postsecondary data systems and an analyses of college governance structures.

Title: DISCLOSURE IS THE TREND IN CAMPAIGN FINANCE LEGISLATION (Electronic Document) --2015.

Source: NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF STATE LEGISLATURES (NCSL)

Pages: Unp Series: The NCSL Blog

Subject: 1. CAMPAIGN FINANCE.

Notes: "So far in 2015, more than 700 bills have been introduced dealing with some aspect of campaign finance, from public financing to the administration of judicial campaigns. The most active arena of campaign finance legislation seems to be disclosure, as more than 70 bills already have been enacted, mostly by Republican legislators. This trend comes after U.S. Supreme Court rulings in Citizens United v. FEC and McCutcheon v. FEC, which made unconstitutional independent expenditure limits and individual aggregate contribution limits, respectively.

To see campaign finance-related bills introduced this year, check out NCSL's 2015 Campaign Finance Database.

A glance at this database shows that both parties are committed to changing the campaign finance landscape. As to the level of disclosure or contribution limits, let's just say they can't agree on everything."

Title: THE STATE OF THE NATION'S HOUSING YEAR (Book) --AN 2005--

Source: JOINT CENTER FOR HOUSING STUDIES OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Pages: 40+

Subject: 1. HOUSING.

Notes: "The fledgling U.S. housing recovery lost momentum last year as homeownership rates continued to fall, single-family construction remained near historic lows, and existing home sales cooled. In contrast, rental markets continued to grow and 2014 saw record numbers of cost-burdened renters, including more renter households higher up the income scale." (2015 ed.)

Title: ON TRACK : How states fund and support public transportation (Book) --2015.

Source: NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF STATE LEGISLATURES (NCSL)

Pages: 44

Subject: 1. HIGHWAYS AND ROADS--FUNDING. 2. TAXATION--FUEL TAX. 3. TRANSPORTATION.

Notes: "The role states and particularly state legislatures play in supporting and funding public transportation typically is not a well-understood dynamic. This report highlights the many successful state efforts to provide high-quality transit options, with an emphasis on state legislative actions. Many states use common funding sources to support transit: motor fuel taxes, state transportation funds, general funds and automobile-related fees or taxes. Many states are taking further steps to create alternative funding and finance mechanisms for public transportation. While the most common state-level support for public transportation comes in the form of funding, other types of program support exist. State actions are organized into five categories in this report: Organizational/Structural, Funding, Finance, Policies and State/Local Nexus. Throughout the report, specific state programs and initiatives are examined in detail to explore traditional, innovative and emerging methods of state support for public transportation."
