REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Senator Hammond requested that his remarks be entered in the Journal.

I rise today on President's Day to pay honor to a brave man whose calm confidence, warm character and love of the bonds of home and family helped lead this Country into a new period of peace and prosperity around the world. He battled back the "wimp" factor during his 1988 run for President, never boastful about his accomplishments; others were. We know, now, that President George Herbert Walker Bush was not only not a wimp but he was also a true American hero.

The youngest fighter pilot ever to serve in the United States Navy, George Bush enlisted just months after Pearl Harbor at the age of 18, the same day he graduated high school. Shot down in the skies over the Pacific on a bombing run, he was the sole survivor and came within just a few short miles of being captured by the Japanese. In the years after surviving being shot down, he often asked himself, "Why me? Why was I spared?" The answer to that is, historically speaking, obvious to us all, with a resume full of missions defined and missions completed: Congressman, Ambassador to the United Nations, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Special Envoy to China, Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), Vice President and, of course, President of the United States. His life was spared so he could achieve an unbelievable amount of good for his fellow countrymen. He worked to ease tensions and reopen relations with China, to reform the CIA and ensure that our men and women who serve could be proud of what they were doing and all of America could be proud of their service. He oversaw the fall of the Soviet Union without the sound of a single gunshot. His quiet diplomacy ensured that epic moment of world history came without a single mishap. He knew the whole thing could come tumbling down, and of course, by his side through it all was the incomparable Barbara Bush. Together, they raised six children and endured perhaps the greatest loss of all, the death of their daughter Robin at age three. Together, they shaped their loss into a lifetime of giving back and doing good works.

Madam President, we lost President Bush just a few months ago. I was a young man just coming out of college during his Presidency, and I remember vividly how safe our Country felt with him as a leader. He was the last President of the greatest generation. He often described himself as a lucky man, but really, we are the lucky ones, for his service, for his accomplishments, but mostly, because he loved Americans and never lost his passion for seeing this Country's success.

Senator Atkinson moved that the Senate recess until 3:00 p.m.
