CARSON CITY (Wednesday), March 24, 2021

Senate called to order at 11:36 a.m.

President Marshall presiding.

Roll called.

All present except Senator Harris, who was excused.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Pastor Don Baumann.

Mighty God, we are grateful for the hope of better days even this year as the war against this pandemic slowly turns a corner. We are so thankful for all who have dedicated themselves to helping others, from the researchers who created the vaccines to the doctors, nurses and all of the frontline workers treating those impacted by COVID and protecting those spared thus far.

We ask You to guide this Body and the people of our State so that together we might help those whose lives have been profoundly impacted by this disease. Please help those attempting to restore their livelihoods and businesses or to obtain a job again. Refresh the souls of those who labor unnoticed, especially caregivers. Encourage those who have been isolated and lonely this past year, especially our elderly.

Continue to comfort the nearly 5,200 Nevada families who have lost a loved one during this pandemic. We ask for Your guidance, direction and wisdom for the Senate today as they do their part to lead our State out of this pandemic.

In the Name of our Helper and Deliverer, the Lord Jesus.

AMEN.

Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

By previous order of the Senate, the reading of the Journal is dispensed with, and the President and Secretary are authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Senator Scheible requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal.

SENATOR SCHEIBLE:

Today is Equal Pay Day. This is the day of the year 2021, if women continued to work in the year 2020, we finally would have earned the same amount of money in the course of that year as our male counterparts. In Nevada, women only earn 83 percent of what their white male counterparts do, and women of color, specifically black and brown women, earn even less. Black women only earn 65 percent compared to white men, and Latinas earn only 54 percent.

Thanks to legislation enacted by previous Nevada Legislatures, Nevada's women are better off than women across the Country and more broadly, but there is still much work to be done. At the current rate, the gender-pay gap nationally will not be closed until 2044. So while we take pause today to recognize Equal Pay Day, let us also take this time to listen to the stories from women across Nevada and understand that we have the ability to make a change for them, our daughters and for our future.

SENATOR CANNIZZARO:

Today is Equal Pay Day, and I wanted to give some perspective in terms of the numbers we are discussing. Today, a woman just starting out will earn $406,760 less over a 40-year career compared to her male counterpart. For women of color the inequity is even more pronounced. On average, a black woman will earn $964,400 less over the course of her career than her male counterpart, while a Latina woman earns, on average, $1.1 million less.

While last Session we took a monumental step in Nevada by passing Equal Pay, it is still critical that we recognize the gender-pay gap still exists in this Country. It is important to note, as of today, a woman who is working full time will earn the same amount as her male counterpart. On Equal Pay Day, I wanted to note and recognize there is still work to be done in this space. We hope to continue that work, here, in this Body.

Senator Cannizzaro moved that the Senate adjourn until Thursday, March 25, 2021, at 11:00 a.m.

Motion carried.

Senate adjourned at 11:47 a.m.

Approved:
