OF THE

ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF NEVADA

SIXTY-NINTH SESSION

THE FIRST DAY

CARSON CITY (Monday), January 20, 1997

Pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution and Statues, the Assembly was called to order by Secretary of State, Dean Heller at 12 noon.

Musical renditions, Festival of Freedom and Home Means Nevada, were presented by the Sierra Nevada Chorale.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Father Thomas Wright.

Oh great God, lord of the deserts, lover of man, we come to You for help. We are weak men no stronger than a puff of wind yet we are given the task of helping to govern this great state. We must bring justice and help to our people, our fellow Nevadans. Give us the courage to write just laws, to consider the plight of the poor and the needs of those You have blessed more abundantly with this world's goods. Help us to be just, not to consider where we live in this great state, but only what will bring good to the whole state. Make us ever conscious of Your guiding hand. Help us listen to You and not to those who might have some selfish interest. Make us a true Assembly of the State of Nevada under Your loving care.

Bless our whole country especially our President who begins a new term today, as we do. Keep us all in the palm of Your hand. AMEN.

Presentation of Colors by the Clark County Fire Department Honor Guard representing the Nevada Fire Chiefs Association.

Remarks by Mr. Speaker.

Assemblywoman Chowning requested that Mr. Speaker's remarks be entered in the Journal.

I want to thank each and every one of you for this high honor you've bestowed upon me. It is certainly an honor and a pleasure to accept the Speakership for the Sixty-ninth Session of the Nevada Legislature. This is a wonderful day. I hope that this program made it a happy event for you. I know that the Chief Clerk worked very hard to bring it all together to make it a festive day for each and every one of you and your families.

Two years ago, I was fortunate enough to have this same experience along with my colleague, Lynn Hettrick of Gardnerville. We shared the Speakership as a result of the historic tie between the Republicans and Democrats in this house. At that time I said I'd always learned that in Nevada, 21 was supposed to be a lucky number. It was when I was dealing cards. Well, as it turned out, it was, thanks to the hard work and bipartisan effort of people of both parties who served here in 1995.

As I stand before you today, I am once again reminded about Nevada and luck, because this is the seventh time going back to 1977 that I have had the fortune to serve as Speaker of this house.

About now, I'd guess we all feel a little lucky. For openers, we're lucky to be Nevadans, we're lucky to have been able to weather the storm of our campaigns, and we're lucky to have earned the confidence of the people back home who sent us here to do the job. As I look out over the audience, I'm impressed with the extensive background and experience of you assemblymen and assemblywomen of this body. This is a talented group and a diverse group. For a moment I'd like to tell you a little about you.

There are far more here than just the butcher and the baker and the candlestick maker. The members of this house write; they manage investments; they teach our children; they represent citizens in court; they sell real estate; they manage small businesses, households, community affairs, and ranches; they work in healthcare; to protect our streets; and consult with businesses and a great deal more. And although you may have guessed by now that it isn't me, we even have a nuclear physicist in our crowd! If that's not enough, when all else goes wrong in this chamber in the middle of a true crisis, we have a plumber. So who says we can't get a plumber when we need one!

The 42 members of this house have a wealth of experience–the kind of experience that will prove invaluable in coping with the broad range of issues Nevada faces today, January 20, 1997.

Because we're at the front end of 1997, I thought I'd share with you a few predictions which the American Forecaster Almanac has for 1997. I'm not sure just how that fits in our legislative program, but if they do – what's in this year, according to the Almanac, are: the nerd look; cocktails parties; big hair for women, and e-mail. What they say is out includes rap music; casual Fridays; camp outs, and country music. So feel free to conduct yourselves accordingly if it fits.

A few moments ago I mentioned that luck. On the topic of luck, I'm reminded of the old saying that people tend to make their own luck. That's what my dad told me many years ago. And I suggest that hard work might be a good way to make some of your luck this session. Theodore Roosevelt said, "Far and away the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing."

Believe me, in light of that statement, there will be no shortage of prizes to go around. There are many issues which will demand your hard work in 1997 at the Nevada State Assembly. Just a few of the things you'll be asked to approve laws on, and I might add, make history on because they surely will be put to the test of time, are: education, from kindergarten through college; prisons; penalties on criminals; welfare reform; healthcare; senior citizens; campaign reform; natural resources; infrastructure; floods, and much more.

For you newcomers, as a freshman here just a couple of years ago, I thought to myself – that was a great moment. I was advised of the value of hard work by my dear friend, Assemblyman Joe Vianni of Hawthorne, who was my legislative mentor. He admonished me to gather all the facts; do your homework; listen to the arguments on both sides of the issues; and then do a little more thinking.

Often there will be pressure to take an early position on bills and sometimes that's a good idea. However, he advised me, and I might suggest to you, to do it cautiously. If you sign on to an important measure without getting all the information, only to find out that you had a bad position, you are faced with a dilemma. Either stick with the wrong position and ride out a bad issue, or flip flop and lose credibility. Both are poor choices, so be thoughtful. And make no mistake about it, this is a critical time for our State of Nevada.

It is no news to you that ours is the fastest growing state in the Union. Henderson, once a little sleepy suburb of Las Vegas, has 120,000 residents. Reno and Carson City are booming, and rural Nevada is growing as well.

However, when it comes to the booming nature of Nevada, just the other day I was reading a news story in Las Vegas which really put it in perspective. It said of the New Year's Eve when they imploded the Hacienda Hotel down there, that there were more people to see that event live than there were on Times Square in New York at midnight on New Year's Eve. It is estimated there were half a million people watching that event on the Strip. Friends, that is more people than were in the entire State of Nevada when I first came here to the Assembly in 1967. That's why I say you're in a history-making time. We've moved up to the high speed. How quickly you grasp the volume and complexity of these issues will go a long way in determining Nevada's very future.

As many of you know, I've had major events in my life in the past couple of years, many of them since the last legislative session. Now I'm not referring to crashing my car into a herd of wild horses at Stagecoach, and yes, there was a two-for-one hamburger sale at the restaurant at Dini's, but no, it wasn't horse meat!

Seriously, I'm very happy and honored to have someone special with me today. She is the most special event in my recent life. She is no stranger to most of you, because for 22 years, she was right up here in the very front of this Chamber, both literally and figuratively. Last session she kept me straight while I was at the rostrum; now she keeps me straight, and I might add, very happy in my life away from the Assembly. Please help me welcome back to this Chamber, Mouryne Landing, someone who I call Mrs. Dini now. Mouryne is always giving duties – I looked at the NRS the other day, and it said that statutorily the Chief Clerk is to "assign the duties of the Assembly employees." I'm not sure that applies to former Chief Clerks, but I can tell you she does assign duties around the house. The only thing that I'm not going to do that she wanted me to do was the macarena. I would resemble Al Gore doing the macarena. I've haven't lost a step on the dance floor, but I think I'll pass. I rather prefer the slow numbers anyway.

I want to take this opportunity to thank my family for being here, three of my four sons are here, and their families, and if they would please stand, we can give you all a hand. I got a whole flock of them back there. You're never going to get rid of the Dinis; we're here forever now. Three of my great grandchildren are back there, a set of twins. I think they must have gone for a walk – no, they're way back in the back window, and three great grandchildren are back there. See, you're never going to get rid of us.

Just this one last suggestion. This is an important assignment you undertake as members of the Assembly. Hard work, fairness and honesty will serve you well. Having worked with Assembly Minority Leader Lynn Hettrick as Co-Speaker last session, I know he expects the same from his side of the aisle. When you get down to it, the public doesn't much care about political party. They care about performance.

In closing, let me once again welcome you here, Nevada State Assembly Class of '97. Enjoy this moment; it's yours. You've worked hard to get here and you deserve it. God bless you, and let's roll up our sleeves, work together regardless of party affiliation, hometown or anything else. Let's get the job done for the people of the State of Nevada. Thank you.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. To you and through you, it is indeed an honor to hold this post. I was equally blessed, however, two years ago. I was able to share it with the distinguished Assemblywoman Tiffany, from the great city of Henderson. And I look forward to serving with her and having her counsel again this Session.

I might add as a sidebar, this is the first time since 1991 that I have been able to be sworn in without a cloud hanging over my head. That is indeed a pleasure, and to all of you who have not had that experience, I would simply say, don't take this for granted. It's very special.

Sec. 38. 1. The legislature shall not enact any law or provision of law exempting any elected public officer from the provisions of a law otherwise applicable to all members of the general public.

By the Committee on Taxation:

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 13 of the 68th Session —Proposing to amend the constitution of the State of Nevada to provide for the resolution of conflicts between certain amendments of statutes and constitutional provisions.

RESOLVED BY THE ASSEMBLY AND THE SENATE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, JOINTLY, That section 1 of article 16 of the constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. 1. Any amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in the Senate or Assembly; and if the same shall be agreed to by a Majority of all the members elected to each of the two houses, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their respective journals, with the Yeas and Nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature then next to be chosen, and shall be published for three months next preceding the time of making such choice. And if in the Legislature next chosen as aforesaid, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by a majority of all the members elected to each house, then it shall be the duty of the Legislature to submit such proposed amendment or amendments to the people, in such manner and at such time as the Legislature shall prescribe; and if the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments by a majority of the electors qualified to vote for members of the Legislature voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall, unless precluded by subsection 2 [,] or section 2 of article 19 of this constitution, become a part of the Constitution.

2. If two or more amendments which affect the same section of the constitution are ratified by the people pursuant to this section at the same election:

(a) If all can be given effect without contradiction in substance, each shall become a part of the constitution.

(b) If one or more contradict in substance the other or others, that amendment which received the largest favorable vote, and any other ratified amendment or amendments compatible with it, shall become a part of the constitution.

3. If, after the proposal of an amendment, another amendment is ratified pursuant to this section which affects the same section of the constitution but is compatible with the proposed amendment, the next legislature if it agrees to the proposed amendment shall submit such proposal to the people as a further amendment to the amended section. If, after the proposal of an amendment, another amendment is ratified pursuant to this section which contradicts in substance the proposed amendment, such proposed amendment shall not be submitted to the people.

And be it further

RESOLVED, That section 2 of article 19 of the constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 2. 1. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 1 of article 4 of this constitution, but subject to the limitations of section 6 of this article, the people reserve to themselves the power to propose, by initiative petition, statutes and amendments to statutes and amendments to this constitution, and to enact or reject them at the polls.

2. An initiative petition shall be in the form required by section 3 of this article and shall be proposed by a number of registered voters equal to 10 percent or more of the number of voters who voted at the last preceding general election in not less than 75 percent of the counties in the state, but the total number of registered voters signing the initiative petition shall be equal to 10 percent or more of the voters who voted in the entire state at the last preceding general election.

3. If the initiative petition proposes a statute or an amendment to a statute, the person who intends to circulate it shall file a copy with the secretary of state before beginning circulation and not earlier than January 1 of the year preceding the year in which a regular session of the legislature is held. After its circulation, it shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than 30 days prior to any regular session of the legislature. The circulation of the petition shall cease on the day the petition is filed with the secretary of state or such other date as may be prescribed for the verification of the number of signatures affixed to the petition, whichever is earliest. The secretary of state shall transmit such petition to the legislature as soon as the legislature convenes and organizes. The petition shall take precedence over all other measures except appropriation bills, and the statute or amendment to a statute proposed thereby shall be enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 days. If the proposed statute or amendment to a statute is enacted by the legislature and approved by the governor in the same manner as other statutes are enacted, such statute or amendment to a statute shall become law, but shall be subject to referendum petition as provided in section 1 of this article. If the statute or amendment to a statute is rejected by the legislature, or if no action is taken thereon within 40 days, the secretary of state shall submit the question of approval or disapproval of such statute or amendment to a statute to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election. If a majority of the voters voting on such question at such election votes approval of such statute or amendment to a statute, it shall become law and take effect upon completion of the canvass of votes by the supreme court. An initiative measure so approved by the voters shall not be amended, annulled, repealed, set aside or suspended by the legislature within 3 years from the date it takes effect. If a majority of such voters votes disapproval of such statute or amendment to a statute, no further action shall be taken on such petition. If the legislature rejects such proposed statute or amendment, the governor may recommend to the legislature and the legislature may propose a different measure on the same subject, in which event, after such different measure has been approved by the governor, the question of approval or disapproval of each measure shall be submitted by the secretary of state to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election. If the conflicting provisions submitted to the voters are both approved by a majority of the voters voting on such measures, the measure which receives the largest number of affirmative votes shall thereupon become law. If at the session of the legislature to which an initiative petition proposing an amendment to a statute is presented which the legislature rejects or upon which it takes no action, the legislature amends the statute which the petition proposes to amend in a respect which does not conflict in substance with the proposed amendment, the secretary of state in submitting the statute to the voters for approval or disapproval of the proposed amendment shall include the amendment made by the legislature.

4. If the initiative petition proposes an amendment to the constitution, the person who intends to circulate it shall file a copy with the secretary of state before beginning circulation and not earlier than September 1 of the year before the year in which the election is to be held. After its circulation it shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than 90 days before any regular general election at which the question of approval or disapproval of such amendment may be voted upon by the voters of the entire state. The circulation of the petition shall cease on the day the petition is filed with the secretary of state or such other date as may be prescribed for the verification of the number of signatures affixed to the petition, whichever is earliest. The secretary of state shall cause to be published in a newspaper of general circulation, on three separate occasions, in each county in the state, together with any explanatory matter which shall be placed upon the ballot, the entire text of the proposed amendment. If a majority of the voters voting on such question at such election votes disapproval of such amendment, no further action shall be taken on the petition. If a majority of such voters votes approval of such amendment, the secretary of state shall publish and resubmit the question of approval or disapproval to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election in the same manner as such question was originally submitted. If a majority of such voters votes disapproval of such amendment, no further action shall be taken on such petition. If a majority of such voters votes approval of such amendment, it shall , unless precluded by subsection 5 or 6, become a part of this constitution upon completion of the canvass of votes by the supreme court.

5. If two or more measures which affect the same section of a statute or of the constitution are finally approved pursuant to this section, or an amendment to the constitution is finally so approved and an amendment proposed by the legislature is ratified which affect the same section, by the voters at the same election:

(a) If all can be given effect without contradiction in substance, each shall be given effect.

(b) If one or more contradict in substance the other or others, the measure which received the largest favorable vote, and any other approved measure compatible with it, shall be given effect. If the one or more measures that contradict in substance the other or others receive the same number of favorable votes, none of the measures that contradict another shall be given effect.

6. If, at the same election as the first approval of a constitutional amendment pursuant to this section, another amendment is finally approved pursuant to this section, or an amendment proposed by the legislature is ratified, which affects the same section of the constitution but is compatible with the amendment given first approval, the secretary of state shall publish and resubmit at the next general election the amendment given first approval as a further amendment to the section as amended by the amendment given final approval or ratified. If the amendment finally approved or ratified contradicts in substance the amendment given first approval, the secretary of state shall not submit the amendment given first approval to the voters again.

The report is not subject to amendment. If either House refuses to adopt the report, or if the first conference committee has so recommended, a second conference committee may be appointed. No member who served on the first committee may be appointed to the second.

The committee shall make its determination and inform the complainant and the accused of its determination as soon as practicable after it has completed its investigation.

8. If the investigation reveals that sexual harassment has occurred, the Legislature will take remedial action against the member, lobbyist, legislative intern or employee which is commensurate with the severity of the offense. The committee shall inform the complainant of any action taken against the member, lobbyist, legislative intern or employee. The Legislature will also take any action necessary to deter any future harassment.

9. The Legislature will not retaliate against a person who files a complaint and will not knowingly permit any retaliation by the person's supervisors or coworkers.

10. The Legislature encourages a person to report any incident of sexual harassment immediately so that the complaint can be quickly and fairly resolved.

(a) His acceptance of a gift or loan; or

(b) His private economic interest.

7. A Legislator who determines that he has a conflict of interest may vote upon, advocate or oppose any measure as to which a potential conflict exists if he makes a general disclosure of the conflict. The Governor delivered his message as follows:

Good evening ... Mr. President ... Mr. Speaker ... Chief Justice ... ladies and gentlemen of the 69th Nevada Legislature ... honored guests ... and my fellow Nevadans. Before I begin laying out my agenda for this legislative session, and for the future of our state, I ask all of you in this chamber, and all Nevadans, to join me in paying special tribute to the rescue workers, the firefighters, policemen, state troopers, the highway crews, and our National Guard troops for their heroic efforts during the recent floods in Northern Nevada.

With us here tonight, are individuals who were on the front lines fighting the flood of 1997. And I would like them to rise for a moment. Highway Patrol Sergeant Dan Luke, who was out in the field almost non-stop commanding his troopers as they faced raging waters and 100-miles-per-hour winds, no doubt saved motorists from serious accidents.

Staff Sergeant Nanette Heathman, with the Nevada National Guard, who, with other members of her unit, worked beyond the call of duty to keep our community safe. Nevada Department of Transportation crew member Ed Affonso, who operated heavy equipment from Washoe Valley to Gardnerville at the height of the flood, prevented injury and property damage. These individuals typify the heroic efforts of so many people during that first week of the new year. Let's give them a round of applause.

In the days ahead, we will be working on several important bills to meet the needs of those Nevadans who have suffered losses. Our neighbors deserve our quick action.

Let us be inspired by how our communities have come together in a time of crisis. Let us take that same spirit of working together on the issues facing us. A spirit that sets aside partisanship, a spirit that sets aside sectionalism, a spirit that transcends generations. That spirit should be the spirit of our future — a future that puts our children at the very top of our agendas.

In my first State of the State Address, I said, "As a parent, my greatest responsibility is to my children; as Governor my highest priority is to all the children of our state." Today, eight years later — tempered by the competition of the public arena, and further grounded in the values of work and family — I reaffirm, my commitment to Nevada's children and their future.

Of course, I will also address the issues of the day: welfare, campaign reform, and infrastructure improvements. But what I want you, and our entire state, to focus on tonight is a future which provides for the needs of our children — from education, to health, to early childhood development. Specifically, these elements include improving our formal education system, and recognizing the critical stages between a child's birth and the time they graduate from our university system.

We must redefine our obligation to Nevada's children as a commitment which begins from the first days of their lives and extends through their college graduation.

The education program I propose to you tonight, is the most sweeping in our state's history. Its four principle elements are: access to technology ... higher academic standards ... stronger school accountability ... and completion of third-grade class-size reduction.

Any discussion of modern education must begin with a discussion of technology, and what better place to do that than in this new chamber. On your desks are the newest laptop computers, your votes are displayed using the latest video computer technology. And this speech is being beamed throughout Nevada using satellite technology.

This is the world our children are now born into.

Our children must learn to utilize the marvels of this age, and their teachers must have the ability to turn to computers to help them teach.

Make no mistake about it: the race has begun - and we cannot afford to be left behind at the starting block. Other states are already moving ahead. West Virginia has invested heavily in computers in the classroom. Minnesota's Governor just announced a major technology investment program. And as you may be aware, California has launched an ambitious project to interconnect all its classrooms through the Internet, committing $1 billion to this end.

Nevada's long-term goal is to place five state-of-the-art computers in every single classroom throughout the state. To begin this effort, which totals $175 million, I am proposing that we allocate $35 million of Nevada's surplus funds in this biennium. Also, I pledge more than $8 million from the general fund to train teachers to maximize the benefits of this computerization.

And I call upon every business person in Nevada to invest additional dollars in our education technology fund.

And I can assure you, the private sector understands these critical needs. In fact, Carol Vilardo, the President of the Nevada Taxpayer's Association, brought to our attention an innovative idea. Carol pointed out that the Detweiler Foundation has been taking donations in the form of computers from businesses, and successfully using prison inmates to refurbish and update these computers for use in schools. In fact, through this program, California has already placed 28,000 computers in their classrooms. I believe we can and should bring this program to Nevada.

A small investment now can save millions of dollars in the long run.

We have to stop sending our students to the classroom to learn about computers, and start sending in computers to help our children learn. We must have the will and the vision to make this investment. You should — you must — fund technology in our classroom.

Technology is a tool — an invaluable tool — but it is only a tool. The core of our education improvement program is higher standards. And our academic standards in Nevada are not challenging enough. They — are — too — low. A recent report by a national teacher's organization concluded that Nevada's standards are not clear, specific, or well grounded in content.

The current edition of Education Week published a study which graded Nevada's education standards as a C.

Average is not good enough for our students.

In Nevada, we don't have a requirement that our children should be able to read comfortably by the third grade. In Nevada, we don't have a requirement that by the fourth grade our students have gained command of multiplication and division.

That is not acceptable to me as a father, or as Governor. It should not be acceptable to you.

Let us declare: Today is the beginning — of the end — of our surrender to mediocrity.

We will establish higher standards in core subjects like math, science, reading, writing, and social studies, within one year.

It is vital that extensive testing will be used to measure the progress our students are making toward meeting the higher standards we have set. In my budget you will find an allocation for the most comprehensive program of testing in our state's history.

These tests will tell us how well our students are learning, what our schools are teaching, how they are doing compared to other students in Nevada and their peers around the country.

These tests are not to criticize, but to correct. They empower us to take the course of action necessary to insure our children are receiving the education we want them to have, they need to have, and they deserve to have.

And if those tests or other indicators show a school is not performing well, not providing a quality education, then we must take action.

I propose an accountability program that builds on the work Senator Bill Raggio has pioneered — work we will take a step further. Today, when a school is not performing, plans are drawn up, but all too often they never leave the drafting table.

Let's send this message loud and clear: we the leaders of this state, will no longer tolerate schools that are not meeting their commitment to Nevada's students.

If a school demonstrates poor performance over time, has been warned, and has not repaired its problems, a state Inquiry Team will be impaneled. This team, including educators from inside and outside the district, teachers, administrators, and parents, will conduct a comprehensive investigation of that school. They will have the power to ask the questions — the tough questions. They will examine all aspects of that school's procedures, without restrictions or preconditions. This Inquiry Team will be charged with delivering their no-holds-barred report in an open meeting. Participation will be mandatory for teachers, administrators, and local school board members.

But for this accountability program to really make a difference it will be essential that parents are also involved. To you, the parents, I say this — do not leave the education of your children in my hands, the Legislature's hands, or in the hands of educators alone. There is no substitute for your direct and constant involvement in your children's education.

These three principles will become national models — models that will take their place alongside our nationally recognized class-size reduction program begun eight years ago. In fact, just this month, California took its first step toward emulating Nevada's class-size reduction program. They have now realized what we have known for eight years — that nothing can take the place of a teacher who has the extra moments to help a young learner. A teacher who has a manageable class size can focus attention, offer encouragement, and provide for the needs of individual students.

I call on this Legislature to fully fund third grade class-size reduction at a ratio of 16 students per teacher in every class in Nevada.

This is the last time Governor Bob Miller will speak out in this building on the necessity of class-size reduction. But let me assure you, citizen Bob Miller will return in the years ahead to encourage and support your efforts for further class-size reduction.

We here tonight were fortunate because our parents did provide for a world-class education system when we were growing up. But what was good for us then, is not good enough for our kids now. I say to you, the status quo isn't good enough for me, it isn't good enough for our children, and it isn't good enough for the Nevada of the 21st Century. We've seen the past, we're living in the present, let's move to the future. Let's pass this aggressive education package.

However, the ability of a child to learn depends on the overall quality of the child's life.

A child without proper nutrition — a child who is hungry — cannot learn. A child who is ill — who has not been properly immunized — cannot learn. And parents struggling to cope cannot help their child to learn.

We all know in our hearts that the earliest years of life are crucial to a child's future development. And now scientific evidence bears that out. A recent report by the Carnegie Corporation concluded, quote, "... how children function from pre-school years all the way through adolescence, and even adulthood, hinges in large part on their experiences before the age of three."

The world has changed, and those changes have put a burden on the ability of young parents to nurture and develop their young children in those formative years. Today, two working parent households are not the exception but the rule. Single parent households are now commonplace. These and other pressures have dramatically cut the time parents have to tend to their children's needs.

Let's not lecture these families from above about family values. Let's drop the political slogans. Let's dedicate ourselves to these families. It is our most fundamental obligation.

How we teach our children, how we feed them, how we protect them are the family values we must secure and nurture.

I believe, in these changing times, these values can and must be taught, fostered and developed. Tonight I am putting out a call to all of Nevada. Starting with the executive branch, the Legislature, churches, civic groups, hospitals, and social services, I ask you to join together in this crusade. You, who have already successfully raised your families, and who have a wealth of knowledge to share, can help us.

We will create a comprehensive program to help and support Nevada's families. The cornerstone of this effort is a community based partnership that we are calling Family-to-Family.

From the very young mothers who are overwhelmed with the practical challenges of child-rearing, to a new generation of 40-plus working moms — women who are faced with their own set of challenges — we must be there to advise, to guide, to counsel, to support.

Building on the solid work that hospitals throughout our state have undertaken, we must insure that new parents have access to the vital information they need to raise healthy babies.

So many questions: What about immunization? Can Sudden Infant Death Syndrome be avoided? How do I find child care? How do I cope with stress? How do I find a better a job? How do I handle it alone?

These questions must be answered, and they can be answered by us.

This program begins in the maternity wards of our hospitals, where professionals and trained volunteers will offer immediate help to mothers in finding information and services. This program then continues to the home, where we will follow up with families who ask for help. And again, in continuation of our support, these families will be referred, when needed, to programs like our very successful Family Resource Centers.

You have created these centers to bypass the bureaucratic maze which often deters families from getting the help they need and the help we can provide.

Family-to-Family is a network — a network of services aimed at helping children and families — a network we must expand. Specifically, I urge you to support the Classroom On Wheels Program. These mobile classrooms go into neighborhoods, to help preschoolers with early education and health care, for those families who cannot afford to pay for nursery school or day care.

We must step up, as we are asking the private sector to step up, by helping the Lied Museum in their efforts to establish an Early Learners Exhibit and a Parent Resource Center.

And finally, we must expand the Even Start Program. This home-based approach prepares young children the skills they need to take full advantage of their formal education. Even Start also enables parents to earn high school diplomas.

I say to you with conviction, that these programs will bear the same success that our Baby Your Baby Program has delivered.

The evidence is irrefutable. There are many Nevada children thriving today who would have died at birth had it not been for this program. I must give credit where credit is due — to the hundreds of Nevadans who give their time and energy to this program — and to my wife Sandy who is Nevada's most effective children's lobbyist.

Next week, I will lead our nation's governors in a discussion about these very same issues. I have already communicated with Congress and the White House. In April, there will be a national prime-time television special and numerous articles in major publications on this topic. As the topic of early childhood development explodes on the national scene in the coming months, and as the rest of the country becomes familiar with this program, we here in Nevada will have already begun — tonight.

Now we must complete the cycle of a child's development and education. Our commitment, which begins with prenatal care, continues during the first hours of life, and through the early years of education, must culminate with the final step — a university, community college and vocational system that educates and trains these very same children, so they can secure their own and their children's future.

In my budget, I propose a large portion of the surplus funds be dedicated to our University and Community College System.

Here are the more noteworthy infrastructure investments we intend to make, and I ask you to approve, for our higher education system:

We will invest $33 million in a new state-of-the-art library to be constructed at UNLV. $12 million for a long over due Student Center for the University of Nevada, Reno, and $3 million to build the Truckee Meadows Applied Technology Center, a facility which will provide training for students seeking technical careers.

Clark County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Brian Cram, and the President of the Community College of Southern Nevada, Dr. Richard Moore, have put forth an exciting proposal, that I strongly endorse. It creates two new computer technology centers each of which will be shared by community college and high school students. This innovative plan will allow high schoolers to use these facilities during the day and community college students to use these same facilities in the evening. We will double our return on this investment and make smarter use of our resources by sharing computers and classrooms.

I am also pleased to say, that something long overdue will now become a reality.

Putting aside Shakespeare's recommendation to kill all the lawyers — which may also be long overdue — the time has come for Nevada to finally have a law school. With strong private sector financial commitments supporting this newest professional school, will have the resources it needs to grow and flourish.

But for all these investments to reach their full potential, access to higher education must be assured for all. As the costs of higher education have risen, middle-class families have found it increasingly difficult to send their kids to college.

State Treasurer Bob Seale and I, are proposing the establishment of a Tuition Trust Fund that will allow all families to invest modest sums today, in order to insure the affordability of their children's tuition in the future.

Ladies and Gentlemen of this Legislature, let us complete the cycle from birth to college. That is the only way I know to truly build our children's future.

We have talked about the Nevada of the future, but the work of this Legislature is also about confronting the challenges Nevada faces today.

I have laid out the blueprint for our children's future. But they must also live in a safer, more secure society, shielded from crime. Nearly two decades of work advocating the rights of victims reached a new plateau for me recently. With both Senator Bob Dole and President Bill Clinton endorsing a Constitutional Amendment to guarantee the rights of victims of crime. But more gratifying to me is the overwhelming support of you, my fellow Nevadans, in the last election for this amendment here at home.

I believe the most basic right we can extend to the victims of crime is the right not to be victimized again by the same criminals that ought to be doing the time for their crime. Two years ago, we passed truth-in-sentencing and other historic and comprehensive reforms of our criminal laws. But like everything else, our commitment must be reflected in the resources we are willing to provide.

My budget includes a continuing prison building program. We will construct a new men's prison, a juvenile facility, and complete a new women's prison. In all, we will build new cells for 2,100 violent offenders to keep them away from our families.

I look forward to the day when a future Governor stands before a Legislature and proudly proclaims that the investments you and I made during these years for our children have paid off, and that prison construction will no longer be the priority it must be for us here tonight.

Yet another significant issue confronted us two years ago, the overhaul of our welfare system. We met that challenge and it has dramatically paid off. For the first time in generations a Governor can stand before you and report that the welfare rolls are down.

Tonight, as I stand here before you, 9,000 fewer Nevadans are on cash assistance — the welfare caseload has decreased by 28 percent. That is a savings of nearly $9 million dollars — a savings accomplished and lives improved in only 18 months.

I will be placing before you legislation to build on this success which will include a two-year limit on cash benefits with a safety net for children, an aggressive pursuit of deadbeat dads who neglect their children, and an enhancement of job training and job placement programs.

Never forget, while we are certainly proud of our tax dollar savings, the real goal here is to move people from dependency, and give them the self respect and the self reliance that only a job can bring. I once again call upon the private sector, working hand in hand with government, to provide more jobs to people so we can move them off the welfare rolls.

Welfare reform has been achieved with caring, with compassion and sensitivity. Let us not engage in political rhetoric again. Let's just get to work and finish the job.

But one job that never seems to finish, are the lines at DMV. As Governor, one of my fondest hopes is that a visit to the DMV not be the equivalent of a scientific experiment to test the patience of our citizens. Before I turn the keys over to the next Governor I really want to reduce the lines.

Computerization offers the only hope to our hard-working DMV administrators and employees. Whom I assure you share the same goal we all do. Project Genesis, will revamp the registration and licensing programs, and will streamline this time-consuming process. I believe this $15 million investment will be worth every dime. The massive growth that is overwhelming our DMV offices is also straining local government's ability to deliver vital services. The economic miracle that is Nevada is a magnet for thousands of new arrivals each month. This success comes at a price.

That price is seen in overcrowded schools, a strained water delivery system, clogged roads, and a jammed criminal justice system. I look forward to receiving the report and recommendations of this Legislature on how we can assist local governments to meet their infrastructure demands.

The quality of life we seek to preserve is continually threatened by a Congress influenced by the nuclear waste lobby. They are unrelenting in their efforts to make Nevada the nation's nuclear dumping ground.

I am proud to say at this, my last State of the State, not a single ounce of high-level nuclear waste has been shipped to Nevada. On behalf of our entire state, I thank Senators Harry Reid, and Richard Bryan, Congressman John Ensign and Congresswoman Barbara Vucanovich on their unrelenting fight for Nevada. And I welcome Congressman Jim Gibbons to our team.

And a special thanks must go to President Clinton, the first and only President to ever side with Nevada on a significant battle in this war. His threatened veto beat back the nuclear lobby's attempts to rush high-level nuclear waste to our state.

Once again, in this Congress, a bill has already been introduced to fast track nuclear waste to our state. Now as much as ever, we must be vigilant and determined, and our opposition must be seamless and united.

The influence of the nuclear waste lobbying group is a graphic example of why Nevadans continue to question the integrity of the political process. We now have an opportunity to regain some of that trust. Just as the Open Meeting Law shines the light on the us while we govern, campaign reform will shine on those who seek to govern.

We cannot allow another election to pass, more money to flow into campaigns in secret, beyond the view of public scrutiny. I am asking all of you to join Secretary of State Dean Heller and I and pass strong legislation, this session, to reform our campaign disclosure laws.

As any doctor will tell you, the best disinfectant is the strong light of day. Let us take a major step toward regaining public support and confidence. Let's act swiftly.

There are certainly other issues we will address this session, such as utility restructuring, review of our worker's compensation system, HMO and Medicaid reform. But tonight my focus has been on what we can accomplish today, to meet the longterm needs of our children so they will have the brightest possible tomorrow.

Of course, we never know what our tomorrows will hold in our personal lives. As many of you are aware, this fall, I was diagnosed with prostate cancer.

First, I'd like to take a moment to thank my family — Sandy, Ross, Corrine, and Megan who provided the love, strength and affection I needed to face this head on.

I could never adequately thank you, my friends and colleagues in this chamber, for your very personal expressions of support and best wishes.

And to the foot soldiers of my administration, my staff, who juggled the needs of a governor recovering from surgery and the day to day demands of administering this state, words do not exist to fully express my gratitude.

Of the many Nevadans who wished me well, what stands out vividly are the cards and letters from the children of our state. That, in some, ways provided me with my biggest boost.

Let me share with you a get-well card from Chad Ledbetter, a third grader from Mr. Kehoe's class at Gordon McCaw Elementary School in Henderson,

"Dear Governor Miller. I have not met you. I am sorry you have not met me. I have heard of Miller before. I did not know you were Governor Miller until today. Get well soon."

Again, family and friends, colleagues, and all Nevadans, thank you.

The past eight years have provided me with some wonderful experiences. And one of my mentors, Governor Grant Sawyer, gave me some advice as I embarked on this journey. He told me that my life would go on fast forward, but that I should make sure to capture and enjoy those very special moments. As always, I have tried to heed Grant's advice.

Bill — Joe — and all who have served in this and in past Legislatures, thanks. Through the struggles, and as we grappled with the tough issues, thank you for allowing me to have so many of those special moments Grant talked about.

A much wiser man than I said — "We must always have old memories and young hopes."

While my memories of our work together will take on a glow — especially after you have adjourned before Memorial Day — I can tell you that the focus, the drive, and the desire for our children and their hopes — far from dimming, are burning ever brighter. To you and all Nevadans, I wish you good night.

WHEREAS, As of the last census, Nevada has approximately 95,000 families of low income who are in need of affordable housing; and

SPECIAL ORDERS OF THE DAY

The hour of 11:15 a.m. having arrived, vetoed Assembly Bill No. 367 of the 68th Session was considered.

Governor's message stating his objections was read.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER

CARSON CITY, NEVADA, July 7, 1996

THE HONORABLE JOSEPH E. DINI, JR., THE HONORABLE LYNN HETTRICK, Speakers of the Assembly, Nevada State Assembly, Carson City, Nevada 89710

DEAR ASSEMBLYMAN DINI AND ASSEMBLYMAN HETTRICK:

I am herewith forwarding to you, for filing within the Constitutional time limit, and without my approval, Assembly Bill 367, entitled:

AN ACT relating to the disposal of sewage; requiring state and district boards of health to avoid conflicts with statutory provisions governing general improvement districts when adopting certain regulations; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Assembly Bill 367 places the State Board of Health in a subservient position to General Improvement Districts when regulating sewage systems. Because of the high potential of groundwater pollution from septic systems, however, the regulation of use of individual sewage disposal systems is a core public health activity appropriately placed under the responsibility of the State Board.

Sincerely,
BOB MILLER
Governor

Vetoed Assembly Bill No. 367 of the 68th Session.

Bill read.

The question was put: "Shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?"

MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE OF NEVADA
SIXTY-NINTH SESSION, 1997

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Mr. President. This morning marks my ninth appearance before you to share my thoughts with you on the circumstances that surround and confront our great nation and our great state. Each legislative session has a personality and character of its own, and if the political pundits accurately record your sentiments, this will be a session in which growth and infrastructure will dominate much of the debate.

Riding in this morning from Reno, getting on into the Truckee Meadows and into Eagle Valley, I reflected about the changes that have occurred both in northern Nevada and in southern Nevada since that time on a snowy January morning I first became a part of the Nevada Legislature nearly three decades ago. The changes are profound. Then the state's population was less than a half a million. Today our state's population has grown by more than three-fold. That first legislative session that I served in, only two of your colleagues are still members of the respective chambers from that time, and by circumstance they both serve as presiding officers today, then Assemblyman Lawrence Jacobsen and Assemblyman Joe Dini.

I thought much about that as we met that first year in the old legislative building, upstairs, as the Nevada Legislature had met from the time of its own statehood, and then moving in 1971 into the then new chamber which you occupy today, and then this morning to come and see the magnificent job that's been done in terms of refurbishing this chamber, which I suppose now was an old chamber before it was refurbished. I must say that I have some uncertainty about this glass encasement that is behind you. I was a little curious about that, and I tried to reflect, Mr. President and Mr. Speaker, as to what your thoughts might have been. Then, as you know, as so many good thoughts occur to all of us, late last night it came to me. I thought of the episode that both your distinguished presiding officers will recall and I will share with you. It is the episode that Brent Armstrong, then of the Las Vegas Sun, immortalized in a column dealing with the Mesquite mosquito. Now, let me tell you whereof I think that this idea may have arisen. Like so many of the very difficult votes you all had to make, we had a few in 1969 as well. A call of the house had gone out, and all of us were duly summoned to the Assembly Chamber. It was a very difficult vote. Not one of us in that chamber looked forward to doing so, but when a colleague of ours who represented Mesquite, Nevada's name was called, a great furor erupted in the chamber. Leaping to his feet, he threw open the window and leaped out on the fire escape and exited the chamber. I thought to myself, could there be any correlation with that historical episode and this glass encasement that would make it so very difficult for all of you to leave during those very difficult moments?

Suffice it to say, that was then, and now is today with all of the difficulties that you face. The winter of 1846-1847 unleashed the full fury of a Sierra Nevada winter upon the hapless Donner party. Before the spring thaw came, 42 were dead. We observed this year the sesquicentennial of that great American tragedy, and we are reminded notwithstanding the changes that have occurred in our country and in our state, that winter still has the power to inflict enormous damage upon those of us who occupy the Truckee Meadows and other parts of our great state. Unlike the Donner party in 1846-1847, the response was immediate. The federal agencies, cooperating with state emergency disaster relief and local disaster relief, responded quickly, and I think a word of commendation ought to be extended to each of them: at the federal level, the response from FEMA—Nevada was the first state to be declared an emergency disaster, the first state to be visited by the director of FEMA, James Lee Witt, he came to Nevada; the response by other agencies at the federal level as well, the Corps of Engineers, who are engaged in some ongoing projects; the Department of Agriculture; the Department of Commerce; the Small Business Administration; and others just to name a few. At the state level, the response has been as responsive, coordinated–the kind of thing that people expect us in government to do when crises occur–the response was immediate and the coordination continues, and I applaud all who were involved at the federal, state, and local levels for helping to ease the tragedy that confronted so many of our fellow Nevadans. Would you join me in giving them a round of applause in absentia.

One of the challenges that you will face is the determination of how that match will be made. Most federal disaster relief provides for a 75-percent federal share, a 25-percent match for state and local governments. One of the responsibilities that you will have, to ease the burden that so many of our fellow Nevadans suffered, is to determine how you all, at the state level, will respond to that challenge. I do not believe that you will let any of us down. That pioneering spirit that was evidenced in the winter of 1846-1847 was very much a part of the response of all of those who were affected by this tragedy–neighbor helping neighbor in the great tradition of helping one another during very, very difficult times.

Let me shift the focus to the federal level, if I may, for a moment. Tomorrow as I return to the Senate Chamber in Washington, the debate will begin on a balanced budget amendment. Democratic administrations and Republican administrations, Democratic congresses and Republican congresses, have all proclaimed their devotion to a balanced budget. Democrats blame Republicans, Republicans blame Democrats, congresses blame presidents, and presidents blame congresses. Much like the road to hell having been paved with good intentions, so too is the path to a balanced budget. In 59 of the last 67 years, the Federal Government has spent more in each of those years than it has taken on in income. It is a situation that cannot long sustain itself. Today we pay $350 billion annually on just the interest payment alone on that national debt. That is the second largest expenditure for the Federal Government, and the rate of growth has been exponential. In 20 years, in terms of a percentage of the federal budget devoted to the interest payment alone, it has grown from 7 percent to 15 percent. This constitutional amendment, which is bipartisan, will require a two-thirds vote to meet the constitutional test of passing in both the Senate and in the House. In the last session we fell one vote short. It will be a close vote again. Some have raised the concern about Social Security, and it is a legitimate concern. Democratic and Republican administrations and congresses have wrongfully used the surplus generated each year by the Social Security contributions to help to finance the ongoing expenditures of government. That is wrong. If a trust fund were similarly invaded at the state level, you know the consequences that would attach to each of you. So my first preference is to exclude Social Security from the balanced budget amendment. Realistically, it is unlikely that we will be able to do so. As a result, the only vote that we are going to have that has an opportunity of becoming law is the vote on a constitutional amendment that does not specifically exclude Social Security. But my friends, presidents of both parties, in the budgets that they have submitted to this Congress, and no differently this year, will continue to use the Social Security surplus, to help to finance the operations of the Federal Government, so defeating a constitutional amendment does nothing to enhance or protect Social Security.

For 15 years Nevada has faced the nuclear stigma, an attempt by unenlightened individuals to put a nuclear brand upon us here in Nevada. I have been part of that struggle, as have each of you, over that intervening period of time. We are at a crossroads in this session of the Congress, much as we were in the last session. The focus for much of that 15 years has been an attempt to locate a permanent high level nuclear waste dump at Yucca Mountain. Even the utilities, who are the driving force behind this policy, have given up hope that the permanent repository will ever be enacted into law. For us in Nevada, this issue is all about public health and safety. In a recent poll, 74 percent of Nevadans expressed their strong opposition to this ill-conceived proposal to make Nevada the home for nuclear waste across America. I'm pleased that it has always enjoyed bipartisan support. The late Governor Grant Sawyer headed up our commission on nuclear projects; Brian McKay continues that magnificent effort as our current chairman, and Frankie Sue del Papa, our attorney general, assures us that if they change the deck and shuffle the cards as they are about to do, Nevada will respond with an appropriate legal response. Let me lay it out for you. The proposal now is to place a so-called temporary dump at the Nevada test site. That was the issue that confronted us in the 104th Congress, and we will begin that process, sad to say, on Wednesday, the fifth of this month, in the energy committee. By so doing, we would do several things in terms of public policy. Every environmental law enacted since the Nixon administration, with bipartisan support–clean air, clean water–and there are at least a hundred, would be superseded and effectively repealed if they were successful with the temporary nuclear waste bill that's currently before the Congress. A standard of radioactive emissions of 100 millirem would be written into the law. Lest you are not familiar with the local millirem count, suffice it to tell you that the safe drinking water standard is four millirems. Twenty-five times the standard for safe drinking water would be imposed upon us in Nevada. Cleverly crafted into this legislative proposal is a financial bailout where the nuclear industry will in effect respond by avoiding its own financial responsibilities and asking the American taxpayers to pay for this program over the decades. We are all opposed, your congressional delegation in both the House and the Senate, but it will be a tough battle. In order to prevail we will need 34 votes in the Senate to sustain a presidential veto. In the last session of the Congress, President Clinton did more for us in Nevada in this fight than any of his predecessors, Democratic or Republican, by vowing that if such a bill reaches his desk, he will exercise a veto, and he has pledged to do that again in this Congress, and we are going to need that. This "mobile Chernobyl bill," as I have characterized it, moves on through the legislative process and will require us to get 34 votes. Senator Reid and I are about that undertaking over the past several weeks, and we believe that we can prevail. But the focus of attention is not Yucca Mountain; it is a temporary nuclear waste dump, which for the nuclear utilities is the holy grail of their existence.

Let me talk about a couple of other issues which also are very much in the news. The "religious far right" was the catalyst for an ill-conceived national gaming commission. The President has not yet made all of the appointments to that commission. My concern, and I suspect it is a legislative bias that draws its origins from having served in this chamber, is that a federal commission so established frequently comes up with more federal regulation and the ever-necessitous approach for more revenue at the federal level. That would not be in the best interests of Nevadans. I do not speak here as an advocate of gaming spread to other states. That is a decision for them and them alone. My own preference, expressed many times, is I liked it better a couple of decades ago when we enjoyed a monopoly. But that is not the world in which we live, and we must recognize that that is the circumstance. I am fearful that the commission, with the approach that has been advocated by some, could impact the revenue structure of gaming. That has a profound impact upon all of you as you struggle to arrange the state's legislative priorities, as you try to make your own determinations as to how to fund each of the programs that you are confronted with. We will be watching this very carefully. I've been encouraged by some of the appointments. I believe that we are likely to get a very distinguished Nevadan appointed very shortly to that commission, at least we are told that is the case, and one other Nevadan has already been chosen for that commission. So hopefully its approach will be balanced, but it is a concern that every Nevadan ought to share because, as you know, 40 percent directly of the revenue sources that you have to deal with, in addition to other revenues that add perhaps as much as another 8 percent to the inflow that comes into the state coffers, is directly attributed to the gaming industry in our state.

Let me talk about a couple of other issues that have been in the news. Banking in Nevada has been consolidated and restructured. I serve as a member of the banking committee as you know. My concern in consolidation and restructuring, is that it is my sense, that those of us in Nevada are more removed today than we were a decade ago from the decision making process and the decision making headquarters. I'm going to be monitoring those activities very, very carefully. My concern, as yours, is to make sure that this is in the best interests of Nevada. No longer are some of these decisions being made in Nevada; they are made out of state, and we live next to the 800-pound gorilla, California, with 32 million people. We do not want to be left behind in the decisions which our banking industry makes.

As you know, I recently have joined the finance committee. As such, I will have an opportunity to watch very carefully any proposal that comes out of the gaming commission that would impose additional taxes upon our principal industry. It is that committee that will deal with the complex issues of Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid. I will say something more about that in a moment.

Welfare reform will be an issue that will be debated in this chamber throughout this legislative session. Let me say that I believe that the historic six-decade approach that we've taken to welfare was a system that served neither the American taxpayers nor the recipients of welfare effectively, and for that reason, the bipartisan Congress of the last 104th session passed a comprehensive welfare reform proposal. That means that the responsibility now rests in this chamber to craft the response, to determine by and large what approaches—innovative and others—that you might want to take. Although I do hear some discussion that the process will be reopened in this session of the Congress, it is my view that any changes in the welfare reform legislation enacted by the 104th Congress will be at the margins and not terribly significant.

In Governor Miller's State of the State Address to you, he appropriately focused on the importance of education. It is increasingly clear, I think to all of us, that opportunity for our young people, our children and our grandchildren, opportunity for the kinds of jobs that provide the kind of income levels that they can provide for themselves and their own families, are directly linked to the kind of education that they receive. I'm sad to report that Nevada ranks among the bottom of those who continue their education beyond the high school level. Only about 38 percent do so. We need to reverse that. You know better than I, as you have struggled with your new laptops, a technology that would have been as foreign to the 1969 Legislative Session that I first served in as some extraterrestrial concept that may be advanced in the decades ahead. Clearly the linkage between education, good jobs, and the ability to provide for your family is inextricably tied. I hope that you will favorably respond to the governor's proposals, and we at the federal level can be your partners as well. At least three programs will directly impact the ability of Nevada families to provide higher educational opportunities for their own families. One is an increase in the Pell grants. In the last two decades, federal assistance has come in the form of increasing the loan payments that are available, and that is significant. Today many Nevadans graduate from a graduate or professional school and owe $100,000 on their education. That is a tremendous financial burden for young people who are just about to begin their careers. Pell grants can help. Hope scholarships to make it possible for those who are unable to afford to go on to higher education get the financial help to do so, and indeed, tax credits and an ability to deduct some of those expenses will be helpful as well. The President has outlined these proposals, and I believe that they will enjoy bipartisan support as we continue our quest for educational excellence and recognize that our failure as a country, our failure as a state, to respond to that challenge, dooms Americans and Nevadans to not play the kind of role in the twenty-first century economy which will be increasingly highly technical and focused on those who have sophisticated educational backgrounds.

Two aspects of the growth and infrastructure debate that you are all very much a part of will take place at the federal level. One is the public lands bills which I authored and introduced in the last session of Congress that enjoys the support of the entire congressional delegation. It seeks to supplant a system which currently involves a very complicated land exchange process which often times takes local government out of the loop in terms of planning for growth and orderly development and strengthens the hand of local government to do so. Secondly, it provides that the revenues that are derived from the sale of these BLM lands that surround southern Nevada, much like its progenitor, the Santini-Burton bill did in the early 1980s, will be retained for the benefit of Nevadans at the federal level to acquire environmentally sensitive lands, not just in southern Nevada but all over. I must say that I am hopeful that we will be able to pick up one additional jewel at Lake Tahoe, and that is the Dreyfus property, as it is variously referred to, with more than a mile of shoreline, something that future generations of Nevadans would applaud, if we are able to do so, because it is a unique recreational opportunity for all Nevadans to enjoy. This legislation will be making its way through the legislative process, and I am most hopeful that it will be enacted into law.

The other thing that will be before us is a reauthorization of the formula by which we fund public transportation–highways and the infrastructure of mass transit. For decades, Nevada has always been in a position that we have collected more revenue from the Federal Highway Trust Fund than we as Nevadans pay into that trust fund in the form of gas taxes collected at the local level. If change is the hallmark of this session, so too is change a hallmark of this program. Last year, for the first time, Nevada received less money from the Federal Highway Trust Fund than it paid in. This is not an issue that divides us on a philosophical basis; it is not an issue that divides us as Democrats or Republicans; it is a bottom line issue as to how Nevadans will benefit from this formula. It is, as you might see, going to be a very contested issue but an extremely important one for our state. Those two issues will have a direct impact on the infrastructure funding that will be available to Nevada.

There is a project in which I have had a considerable interest for a period of time. Nevada enjoys an abundance of nature's energy, the sun. If we could successfully harness solar power and transform it into a medium by which we generate power, Nevada has an opportunity to be on the cutting edge of a technology that is rapidly advancing. To that end, we have created a nonprofit corporation that is working to bring private sector energy producers in an unsubsidized program to match that with markets to purchase solar power, and the Nevada test site is the location most likely to emerge as the source of that generating facility. It is ever so close to being there. We have had a commitment from some federal agencies to purchase power to make that possible. By the time that you next convene in regular session, it would be my hope that a solar production facility can be operational in Nevada that will do several things: the policy is right, it is nonpolluting, and it is an endless source of energy. From an economic diversification point of view for us in Nevada, it puts us on a cutting edge where we may become the solar capital of the world with all of the ancillary facilities necessary in terms of engineering, design, and construction to support that facility.

You have before you a proposal that will provide some help for 186,000 veterans in Nevada. I refer to the proposed veterans' home. I hope that you will enact that piece of legislation. We are prepared at the federal level. I've had a conversation as recently as last week with the Secretary of Veterans' Affairs, Jesse Brown. If you will do your part, we will do ours, and I hope you respond favorably.

I have referred in the past to Lake Tahoe as nature's gift to Nevada. It is a troubled legacy. You are much aware of the fact that the relationship with our sister state has been frayed as a result of unilateral actions which they have taken. You know that the quality of our lake continues to decline year after year. It is a resource too precious for us to lose. It is part of the stewardship of our generation to protect it for future generations to enjoy. My colleague, Senator Reid, urged the establishment of a summit at Lake Tahoe, and I believe such a summit is necessary to bring federal, state, and local governments together and see if we might try some imaginative approaches to protect this most precious resource. If we fail to do so, the judgment of history will be harsh upon us. It is an irreplaceable treasure, and I know that you will do your best to make sure that the contributions to protect Lake Tahoe from the state legislative level continue to receive a top priority from this Chamber.

Finally, let me just say a word about the historic time in which we meet. The state legislative processes in Nevada and America have been rehabilitated as partners in that structure that we call government. It is in the process of being redefined. When there is a bipartisan sense, as you have known better than so many, that not all wisdom either originates or abides on the banks of the Potomac. In the state legislative chamber such as this, the laboratory of the great experiments in Nevada, your views—closer as they are to the American people—often contain the kind of wisdom that ought to be respected in crafting legislative policy. That redefinition is occurring; it is becoming more meaningful every day. With it, it brings challenge; challenge in terms of how you can respond because in some areas, welfare in particular, the Federal Government will be less of a partner than it has been in the past. In general, as we try to contain the federal deficit, which for four successive years has declined, a fact that did not occur since prior to the American Civil War, but in this year, the deficit begins to rise again on an annual basis. We are constricted, and appropriately the responsibilities and much of the policymaking will devolve upon you. I know that you will respond appropriately.

Let me conclude by an observation of the body politic. I am troubled, as each of you are, that Americans are participating less in the political process by which each of us in this chamber have been selected. The participation in the last general election was probably the lowest in American history. For those of us in Nevada, the participation was dreadful. I believe part of the estrangement between us, who are privileged to represent Nevadans, arises from the fact that there is a lack of confidence in the system by which all of us–all of us–are forced to compete. I refer to campaign finance reform. I think it is important for you at the state level. The governor and the secretary of state have crafted a bipartisan proposal that looks good to me—your judgment. We certainly must do our bit at the federal level. There is a rising tide of cynicism that affects all of us—Democrats, Republicans, Independents, liberals, middle-of-the-road, and conservative alike, and we must reverse that erosion or democracy itself as we know it is threatened. That is another one of your challenges and another of our challenges at the federal level as we try to rework campaign finance reform into something that represents a more responsible, a more reasonable process in which we try to take the enormous sums of money that all of us are compelled to raise to survive in the political system as we know it.

I wish you well. Your burden is not an easy one. I commented that our first legislative session that I served in with your distinguished presiding officers concluded in 95 days. The snow had not yet disappeared from the Sierra Nevada. I have heard reports that you might be a bit longer this time. Whatever time it takes you, please be assured that having traced my own roots to the decisions that you all are being asked to make in a much more sophisticated and difficult way than we did three decades ago, I have great respect for your judgments, for the difficulties that you face, and I want to be your partner. If I can be of help, a hand is extended to each of you—Democrat, Republican, north, south, rural Nevadans—we are all Nevadans as we deal with our great state's problems.

Thank you so very much.

THE SEVENTEENTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Wednesday), February 5, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:07 a.m.
Mr. Speaker presiding.
Roll called.
All present.
Prayer by the Chaplain, Imam: Mujahid Ramadan.

We pray for children
who put chocolate fingers everywhere, who like to be tickled,
who stomp in puddles and ruin their new pants, who sneak popsicles before supper, who erase holes in math workbooks, who can never find their shoes.
And we pray for those who stare at photographers from behind barbed wire, who can't bound down the street in a new pair of sneakers, who never "counted potatoes," who are born in places we wouldn't be caught dead, who never go to the circus and who live in an X-rated world.
We pray for children
who bring us sticky kisses and fistfuls of dandelions, who sleep with the dog and bury the goldfish, who hug us in a hurry and forget their lunch money, who cover themselves with Band-aids and sing off key, who squeeze toothpaste all over the sink and who slurp their soup.
And we pray for those who never get dessert, who have no safe blanket to drag behind them, who watch their parents watch them die, who can't find any bread to steal, who don't have any rooms to clean up, whose pictures aren't on anybody's dresser, whose monsters are real.
We pray for children
who spend all their allowance before Tuesday, who throw tantrums in the grocery store and pick at their food, who like ghost stories,
who shove dirty clothes under the bed and never rinse out the tub, who get visits from the tooth fairy, who don't like to be kissed in front of the carpool, who squirm in church or temple and scream in the phone, whose tears we sometimes laugh at and whose smiles can make us cry.
We pray for those whose nightmares come in the daytime, who will eat anything,
who have never seen a dentist, who aren't spoiled by anybody, who go to bed hungry and cry themselves to sleep, who live and move, but have no being.

We pray for children who want to be carried and for those who must, for those we never give up on and for those who don't get a second chance.
For those we smother and for those who will grab the hand of anybody kind enough to offer it.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblyman Manendo requested that his remarks be entered in the Journal.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise today with much sadness in my heart. My neighbor, my friend, Danielle "Dani" Jasinski, passed away yesterday at the age of 30, of a very rare cancer. She was a single mother of one. She was very involved in our community, in Neighborhood Watch, and in organizations in her manufactured housing community. She was diagnosed with cancer just five or six months ago, went to California and had some treatments, but the outcome was not successful.

I was wondering if this body could rise for a moment of silence in honor of my friend, Dani Jasinski?

Assemblyman Ernaut requested that his remarks be entered in the Journal.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As a function of my heritage, I generally start my day off by consulting the Basque American Almanac, or "BAA." Well, I noticed today in my Basque American Almanac there was a very important date, February 6. It marks the birthday of someone very important to us here in this body who is a fellow Basque American, and most important to you, she is our journal clerk. Least important to you, she is also my cousin. I would like to lead this body in wishing and singing happy birthday to our Journal Clerk, Bonnie Borda. And it's not Ba Ba Black Sheep, we are singing Happy Birthday.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 4—Urging the United States Postal Service to consider the historic nature of Genoa when determining the size and location of the new post office in that area.

WHEREAS, Genoa, Nevada, is the oldest settlement in the State of Nevada, and it is an established historic district; and

WHEREAS, Approximately 30 buildings and sites in Genoa were listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1975; and

WHEREAS, Genoa is an integral part of Nevada's heritage, and its historic integrity should be preserved for all Nevadans; and

WHEREAS, To preserve historic values, the Genoa Master Plan confines commercial development to a commercial zone in the downtown area; and

WHEREAS, The current post office that serves the 300 residents of Genoa is 611 square feet and sits in the heart of the historic district; and

WHEREAS, The majority of Genoans and the Genoa Town Board have expressed overwhelming support for keeping the local post office within that commercial zone; and

WHEREAS, The United States Postal Service has recently indicated its willingness to consider the desires of the residents of Genoa when making this decision; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED BY THE ASSEMBLY AND SENATE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, JOINTLY, That the members of the 69th session of the Nevada Legislature do hereby urge the United States Postal Service to design a local post office that will fit into one of the various sites in the commercial zone of the downtown Genoa area and to place the post office into such a zone so that Genoa's historic integrity is preserved for all Nevadans; and be it further Amendment 15.

Amend sec. 3, page 2, by deleting lines 29 through 32 and inserting:

"281.581 [A willful failure to file a statement of financial disclosure as required by the provisions of NRS 281.561 and 281.571 or regulations adopted thereunder is a misdemeanor.]

1. Except as otherwise provided in subsection 2, a candidate or public or judicial officer who violates any of the provisions of NRS 281.561 or 281.571 or regulations adopted pursuant to those sections is subject to a civil penalty of not more than $5,000 for each violation and payment of court costs and attorney's fees. The civil penalty must be recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the State of Nevada by the commission in a court of competent jurisdiction and deposited with the state treasurer for credit to the state general fund.

2. If a civil penalty is imposed because the candidate or public or judicial officer failed to file his statement of financial disclosure or amended statement of financial disclosure in a timely manner pursuant to NRS 281.561, the amount of the civil penalty is:

(a) If the statement is filed not more than 7 days late, $25 for each day the statement is late.

(b) If the statement is filed more than 7 days late but not more than 15 days late, $175 for the first 7 days, plus $50 for each additional day the statement is late.

(c) If the statement is filed more than 15 days late, $575 for the first 15 days, plus $100 for each additional day the statement is late.".

Amend the title of the bill, third line, by deleting: "providing a penalty;" and inserting: "eliminating the criminal penalty for willful failure to file a statement of financial disclosure; establishing a civil penalty for failure to file in a timely manner certain statements of financial disclosure;".

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblyman Perkins requested that Assemblyman Goldwater's remarks and the newspaper article read by the Chief Clerk be entered in the Journal.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is indeed a sad week when we lose people like Ms. Ohrenschall's mother and Katherine Simmons. I have lived in Las Vegas for my entire life; my family has been there since the early 1950s and have been Nevadans since the early 1900s. This loss represents the passing of an era where you see people who were truly giants in the community--truly recognized--pass. Their passing is important to note as we recognize our own mortality and the changing nature of our state and our cities. Those states and cities are made up of people, which is truly the important infrastructure, and when these people pass, it is important to remember who they were, what they represented, and that they had made a significant contribution to our cities and to our state.

Thank you for the opportunity.

CHIEF CLERK:

This is an article from the Las Vegas Sun newspaper regarding the death of Katherine Simmons, a long-time friend of Mr. Goldwater and his family.

Long-time Las Vegas resident Katherine Simmons, an avid golfer who hosted parties attended by famous athletes and entertainers, has died at the age of 80.

She died Wednesday at Columbia Sunrise Hospital and Medical Center.

Born August 28, 1916, in Winsboro, Louisiana, Simmons and her husband, Cecil, moved to Las Vegas 40 years ago from Dallas. He became casino manager at the Desert Inn, where he worked from the 1950s to the early 1970s.

Toni Clark, widow of Desert Inn founder Wilbur Clark, remembered Simmons as being "very vivacious, very bubbly."

"She had a Southern accent that was very cute," Clark said. "She used to play quite a bit of golf at the Desert Inn Country Club. She loved the golf tournaments that they had there."

When the country club hosted the annual Professional Golfers Association tournaments, Simmons invited many of the top touring pros for parties at her house on the golf course.

Among those who attended were golfers Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Miller Barber and Doug Sanders. Super Bowl quarterback Joe Namath and Hall of Fame baseball pitcher Don Drysdale also appeared.

Entertainers such as Phil Harris, Alice Faye, Harry James, Betty Grable, and Sonny King also showed up at her parties.

During New Year's Day parties, Simmons would serve her guests Southern fried chicken, candied yams, sweet potatoes, black eyed peas, and corn bread.

Clark recalled that Simmons once sold her home to billionaire Kirk Kirkorian, and then bought it back.

"She was a fun person," Clark said. "She just loved life."

Simmons belonged to both the Desert Inn and Las Vegas country clubs. She also was affiliated with the American Red Cross and with St. Jude's Ranch For Children in Boulder City.

She is survived by her husband. Services are private, and entombment will be in Dallas. Arrangements are being handled by Palm Mortuary in Las Vegas. Donations may be made to St. Jude's Ranch For Children in Boulder City.

The President pro Tempore of the Senate welcomed Senator Reid and invited him to deliver his message.

Senator Reid delivered his message as follows:

SIXTY-NINTH SESSION, 1997

Mr. President, members of the legislature, and friends.

American patriot and public servant Adlai Stevenson said more than 50 years ago that public confidence in the integrity of the government is indispensable to faith in democracy, and when we lose faith in the system, we have lost faith in everything we fight and spend for.

Too often, the media and public dwell on the negative. We as legislators cannot. We all know we can do better, but let us educate the taxpayer of our accomplishments. In late December and early January, northern Nevada experienced some of the worst flooding this century. We saw the Federal Emergency Management Agency quickly respond to short-term and long-term needs of residents and businesses. With FEMA's help, we are rebuilding, and we are well on the road to recovery. Over the years, FEMA has developed an example of good government. This cost-effective, responsive agency has developed an innovative, customer-oriented approach to government. Washoe, Storey, Lyon, Douglas, and Carson have seen their good work.

I am proud of our historic national park system, started in the early part of this century. We now look with satisfaction and pride at our country's special places with names like Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, Yosemite and, yes, Great Basin. There is so much more that our governments can accomplish for our great nation. We need to work together to accomplish this.

Let's look at our economy. Last year was the fourth year in a row with a declining deficit, the first time since before the Civil War we've had four years in a row with a declining deficit. We've had the lowest inflation and the lowest unemployment in more than 40 years. We've had the highest economic growth in 40 years. We have today 300,000 fewer federal employees than we had four years ago. We have a federal government smaller today than when President Kennedy was president.

For the end of one millennium and the beginning of another, we have to make government work. We must work to restore faith in government. We are all part of government: city, county, state, and federal.

There are things we need to do better. I am committed to a partnership with you to make government better. We each, as legislators, have the ability to effect change--change to people, their businesses, and their communities. We need to exercise the power we have with foresight and with discretion. We, as legislators, need to work together in a true federal-state partnership.

Where must we work together? The first area is education. Two-thirds of our kids after finishing high school never graduate from college. These two-thirds, just like those that do graduate from college, are valuable and worth much to society.

The President, in his State-of-the-Union message, set forth 10 specific items to improve the education of all of our boys and girls. The Hope Scholarship proposed by the President to extend school to years 13 and 14 will enable those who do not attend college to learn technical skills or a trade and become productive, vital parts of our business markets. I will work to make Hope Scholarships a reality for all Nevadans so that our high school graduates--all of them--can advance in today's complicated and competitive world.

While we on the federal level can help with Pell Grants for college, Hope Scholarships for community college, and other national goals, the prime responsibility for getting Nevada youngsters to this level lies with you. There is some federal discretion with programs such as reading and math initiatives, national teaching standards, and safe and drug-free schools in grades K through 12, but the main responsibility, I repeat, is yours. I look forward to helping you shoulder this difficult but essential burden for the State of Nevada. State and federal governments must work together to help all children. Governor Miller has worked hard during his more than eight years as governor to help reduce class size and to modernize Nevada's schools. With your help, he has accomplished much. Dr. Moore and Brian Cram have done something that is truly historic. Moore and Cram have anticipated and met many of the education needs of the diverse communities in southern Nevada.

Last night, I was with my oldest granddaughter, Ryan, a first grade public school student in Las Vegas. I asked Ryan if I could borrow her backpack to illustrate why we need to focus on education and technology. What will this backpack contain only 15 years from now, in the year 2010? Let's take a look inside.

Is this a cellular phone? It is that and it's even more. This small device has the ability to phone, page, provide instant information and services about news, weather, sports, and even stock prices. This pocket-size instrument can send data for computers, electronic mail, and faxes. It can handle two-way messaging; it can do conference calls and electronic transfers of funds in your bank. This is what it can do now; think what a similar model will do in the year 2010.

Are there books inside this twenty-first century backpack? No. Instead we have CD ROMS. In one small, feather-light disc, we have an entire set of encyclopedias and even more. I have all my adult life collected books. I have bookcases in my homes in Washington and in Searchlight. I have bookcases in my Carson City office, Las Vegas office, Washington office, and Reno office; but one of these small discs has the capacity to hold many more books than are in my homes and all my offices put together.

Are there traditional notebooks made with paper inside this twenty-first century backpack? No, instead we have a computer laptop. This notebook also serves as a DayTimer® and a calendar. With this, tomorrow's students can do more than could be done with the computer that covered the entire third floor of the Clark County Courthouse only several years ago.

In Searchlight and at Basic where I went to school, we had adequate teachers and some excellent teachers. In the future, all of our students will have access to the best teachers in the country. The best math teacher in Los Angeles can teach students all over Nevada, rural and urban. It will be interactive teaching, and it can be done through an instrument like this small computer.

Last week, I visited Silverado High School in Las Vegas and was fascinated by one teacher's classes. Dan Curry is an innovative science teacher at Silverado who created a global lab program where his students interact with students from Milan, Italy, and Prague in the Czech Republic. This same class also coordinates and shares with students in Hawaii, Indiana, and Texas. There is a waiting list to get into his class. His students love science. They even put out their own global newspaper. I have no doubt that in the year 2015 all high schools in America will be involved in programs similar to Mr. Curry's at Silverado.

Technology is advancing rapidly. As we enter a new millennium, Nevada students should not be left behind. Every time I visit with my five grandchildren, I am reminded about the importance of preparing for the future and making Nevada a strong, healthy state for future generations—yes, for my children and my children's children. There are things we need to do now in order to be prepared for the twenty-first century, but nothing is more important than investing in education, and this backpack of the future shows technology as the new frontier to the best education possible.

We also need to work together on health issues. Six years ago, three women came to visit me in my Las Vegas office. They had a disease called interstitial cystitis. Prior to my advocacy on their behalf, this disease was unrecognized—it was unrecognized even at the National Institutes of Health--even though 500,000 women suffered excruciating pain from this bladder disease. As a result of their visiting my office, we now have a women's health division at NIH, and IC, and other women's diseases such as lupus, multiple sclerosis, breast cancer, ovarian cancer, cervical cancer, and uterine cancers are being aggressively pursued by our research scientists looking for new treatments, preventive medicine, and cures. A male-dominated federal legislature had allowed women to be routinely ignored in medical research, and devastating diseases were overlooked or under funded. Now, what I call "medical sexism" has been nearly eliminated.

There is one success story I want to share with you. Professional golfer Terry Jo Myers suffers from interstitial cystitis. She had the courage to come to me a few years ago and work with me toward finding a cure for this disease. She and I have become friends, and I follow every tournament that she plays. In the Monday morning Reno paper, in the sports page which I always read first, there was an article about my friend, Terry Jo Myers. Let me share it with you.

> Terry Jo Myers' triumph was considerably more than just a golf victory.
> Myers, who has fought a long battle against a painful, depressing disease that led her to the brink of suicide, charged past the fading Annika Sorenstam, to win the Los Angeles open championship Sunday, her first victory in nine years.
> Myers finished with a 6-under-par 66 to rally from five shots behind and beat Sorenstam by two shots.
> The 34-year-old Myers, who two years ago began using an experimental drug that helped clear her of the symptoms of the bladder disease interstitial cystitis, began crying on the sixteenth hole at Oakmont Country Club, realizing that she had, at least for the time, beaten her illness and regained her golf career.
> "My emotion is not about going so long without a win. It's connected more with overcoming a very serious disease and actually being able to win again," Myers said. "That's what the emotion is about, staying out here and playing."

"I'm very proud of myself."

She also won $100,000.

I was encouraged by President Clinton's support of legislation I am sponsoring with the Senate leadership to end what are being called drive-through mastectomies. Our Breast Cancer Protection Act will stop insurance companies and managed care providers from forcing women who undergo mastectomies to leave the hospital the same day they undergo this traumatic procedure.

About two years ago, my wife was stunned by news from the doctor who had interpreted her mammogram. Spots appeared that were not present at the last examination. It was necessary that a surgeon perform a lumpectomy to determine whether it was cancerous. We went through 10 very difficult days, waiting for the surgery and, of course, worrying about the results. The anxiety was intense, especially during the surgery. The doctor came out of the operating room and conveyed the words, "Your wife is okay."

Jackie Zaro had a different experience. Her surgeon told her she would need a mastectomy. Jackie's insurance company and provider would pay for the procedure only on an outpatient basis. She had the surgery and went home within a day. I can't imagine what it would have been like if Landra would have had a mastectomy and been sent home that same day. I am not a surgeon, but I know that mastectomies are painful, invasive procedures. Women need time to recover and learn what is needed for safe healing, with basics, such as wound dressing. I'd like you today to welcome to the Nevada State Legislature, Jackie Zaro, a brave, courageous woman who is here representing the tens of thousands of breast cancer victims and survivors in Nevada who all say we can do better. Jackie, would you please stand.

In 1990, well before the O. J. Simpson trials, I brought up an issue in the Senate that few discussed publicly, domestic violence. At the time, Nevada only had two shelters with about 60 beds. I held domestic violence hearings in Nevada--the first of their kind in the country. I learned first-hand about this tragic violence that scars thousands of Nevada families. The statistics are overwhelming. In our country, 5,000 women a day are beaten by somebody they know. With this knowledge, I was able to craft legislation to provide more shelters and education services. Every year since then, I have made sure that Congress remains committed to providing women the means to end the cycle of violence in their homes. I have appreciated what you have done in the past to stop this oppression. I also anticipate passage of legislation offered by Assemblywoman Ohrenschall this session, co-sponsored by every Assembly member, to make restraining orders easier to obtain, to create a clearinghouse for domestic violence information, and establish sentencing guidelines. I thank you very much.

Individual participation in our democracy can effect real change. Three or four years ago, a friend of mine from Las Vegas, Sandy Jolly, called me in Washington and said she had seen a terrible example of man's inhumanity on a television program. I obtained the program and for the first time was confronted with a tortuous procedure known as female circumcision, or female genital mutilation. At least 130 million women have been mutilated; 6,000 each day, seven days a week. Two million girls each year have their genitalia cut from their bodies without anesthesia and with the crudest of instruments, including razor blades and broken glass.

I was horrified that this procedure could take place, and even take place in our country. Two years ago I had legislation passed to require the United States Department of Health to compile data on FGM and to disseminate this information, including to medical schools. Last year I authored and had passed legislation making FGM illegal in the United States. A new law also directed the executive directors of international financial institutions to oppose loans to countries that are not working to eradicate this barbaric practice.

Because of Sandy's call to me, we now have federal law that makes a difference in the lives of women and their families. Sandy Jolly is here today. She is here in Carson City attempting to work with each of you to pass a state law to criminalize FGM in Nevada. She is a terrific example of a citizen legislator. Sandy, would you please stand so we can thank you for your good work.

Another overlooked policy arena when it comes to women is pension equity. Nevada does well in protecting spouses. We are one of 11 states in the country that require, by statute, spousal consent to waive survivor pensions. This means there must be actual written consent of the participant's spouse in the event that the participant does not select an annuity with survivor benefits. This shows that Nevada recognizes the importance of the spouse's participation in the process of structuring retirement benefits. Nevada is one of the states that has a statutory provision that requires the pension plan to comply with court orders, awarding a share of the participant's pension to a spouse. On a federal level, we need to encourage other states to follow Nevada's example. I am sponsoring the Pension Equity Act in Congress to make sure that women everywhere are afforded retirement security to the same extent as men.

We are witnessing the greatest social transformation of women's roles and the structure of the family unit since the beginning of time. It is a time rich with opportunities, yet complicated with countless demands and challenges. Women have made great strides despite unfair setbacks and discrimination. Now, more than ever, we need to work together to eliminate the roadblocks that prevent women from reaching their fullest potential.

We have a proven partnership when it comes to meeting the needs of those in their golden years. Together, we have made some important changes. Nevada, magnet for seniors--Summerlin, Henderson, Dayton, Elko, any place in Nevada--has a large, growing senior population. This past year has made it easier for people moving here with pensions from other states. This legislature passed resolutions on more than one occasion advocating passage of the source tax repeal, which I had authored, and with your help, my legislation passed.

One of the main reasons we were able to complete my source tax bill was because of another citizen legislator who took the time to make government more responsive. Bill Hoffman and his wife Joanne started on their kitchen table an organization called RESIST. Until his work, this was ignored. His initial meeting, as I've indicated, was over his kitchen table in Carson City. Members from all 50 states joined this grass roots movement he called RESIST. The rest is history. Bill Hoffman is an example of how democracy can work if one allows himself or herself to get involved. Bill Hoffman and his wife Joanne should be congratulated. Because of them, we no longer have in Nevada the source tax. Would you please stand, Bill and Joanne.

Two weeks ago, I introduced a free-standing bill in the Senate to force the federal government to stop using Highway Trust Fund monies for unrelated government spending. The trust fund was set up to use these gas taxes for road building and repair and mass transit. But more than $20 billion of this trust fund is being used to mask the federal deficit. The House has passed my legislation; the Senate should also pass it. Join with me in this effort to resolve that all trust fund monies be used to pay for road construction and nothing else. This is extremely important to a booming state like Nevada where our roads and highways are stretched to their limits. With this money from the Highway Trust Fund, I have been able to direct money to the U. S. 395 expressway between Reno and Carson City; the Sparks interchange; the Sahara overpass; the Spaghetti Bowl; the Spring Mountain exchange; the road to Pahrump; Henderson beautification; and many more. But this is only a small amount of what could be done if we had our share of the $20 billion trust fund. Raiding the Highway Trust Fund to pay for unrelated government expenses is the same as using the Social Security Trust Fund to offset the deficit under a constitutional amendment to balance the budget. I support a balanced budget amendment, but I do not favor the Social Security Trust Fund being used like the Highway Trust Fund. When one goes to buy a gallon of gas, the 19-cent federal tax perhaps should be advertised as not really going into a trust fund but a slush fund.

Also, an employer pays into a fund with their employees to set up a retirement plan we call Social Security. This money should not to be used for other purposes. I used to be a lawyer, and when I practiced law, when we collected money from one of my clients, it was put into a trust fund. If I were to use this money to pay for something personal in nature, I could lose my license to practice law or even be prosecuted criminally. Likewise, I say it is wrong we use Social Security Trust Fund monies for other purposes, and I think it should be illegal for Congress to deplete the Social Security Trust Fund monies the way that we're doing.

When I started this battle to protect Social Security three years ago, I was a voice in the wilderness. Slowly, support has escalated. Even as we speak, a courageous group of sophomore Republicans in the House of Representatives have decided not to march with their leader, Newt Gingrich; they have said yes to a balanced budget amendment, but we're not going to vote for a balanced budget amendment unless we exclude Social Security. I appreciate that, I appreciate that a lot. I also am aware of articles within the past few days in the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times which indicate that almost 75 percent of the American people want a balanced budget, but they don't want it if Social Security is used to balance the budget. I also am aware that in the Nevada State Legislature in the last several hours, there has been a resolution authored by Senator Coffin and supported by nine other senators, that calls for the State of Nevada to follow the lead—yes, let's have a balanced budget amendment, but let's exclude Social Security, and I appreciate each of you who are willing to go forward and help us in Washington on this issue.

One of the ways considered to preserve Social Security in the out years is to mandate that all state and local government employees would have to participate in this federal program. In Nevada, this would mean about 70,000 employees. We must join together to stop this. It is a bad idea, number one, because it is tantamount to establishing a new tax on middle class Nevadans; two, mandatory Social Security would undercut the ability of state and local governments to continue to fund state retirement; and, three, state and local governments do not need another unfunded mandate.

Finally, as to older Americans, we heard a lot of speeches for years about having a veterans' cemetery; we now have two. We have a VA hospital in Reno; we also have one in Las Vegas, but we are one of only nine states without a veterans' home. With Governor Miller's leadership and your advocacy, we are finally going to get what the veterans have so long deserved. This has given me great satisfaction and stands as another example of a productive federal-state working partnership.

If we are to maintain Nevada's high quality of life into the next century, we need to take steps now to protect our natural resources. Our economic well-being is inextricably linked to a healthy environment and clean and abundant water supplies. Countries that have ravaged their natural resources for short-term gain have learned hard lessons about the importance of environmental protection. As growth continues, we need to pay close attention to our natural resources and properly prepare for the challenges ahead.

I, like you, am proud of Nevada's tourist attractions--the Las Vegas Strip; Glitter Gulch; South Virginia Street; Lake Tahoe. But nothing gives me more satisfaction than promoting our state's natural grace and radiance. Our state, the most mountainous state in the United States with the exception of Alaska, has natural beauty that is second to none. Our 14 wilderness areas are the talk of the West. But we in Nevada also have major environmental problems stemming from our population growth.

Unprecedented expansion has created dust and smog in the valleys of Las Vegas and Reno. The federal government has helped Nevada maintain water quality, clean air, and a wide range of our natural resources. As a member of the Senate Environment Committee and the Appropriations Committee, I have helped develop solutions with you to ease Nevada's growing pains and protect magnificent gems like Red Rock Canyon, Mount Charleston, Lake Mead, Mount Rose, Great Basin, and Lake Tahoe. The stress being placed on our great outdoors necessitates continual vigilance.

The Nevada congressional delegation is sponsoring a bill to provide for long-term planning of public land sales to enhance open spaces. The Nevada Public Lands Management Act incorporates local entities into the planning process and gives state and local governments a portion of the profits from the sale of this federal property. We need a long-range management plan for conveying certain public lands to state and local interests in exchange for environmental protection of fragile areas. When our bill passes, I envision a carefully planned, interconnected system of parks and biking and hiking trails. It is a win-win in the truest sense; the environment wins, the economy wins, and most of all, Nevada wins.

Our vigilance must carry over to our urban environments as well. Across America, downtowns are struggling for survival. Las Vegas and Reno downtowns have benefited by line items I placed in the Treasury and Postal Service appropriation bills. Almost $40 million for our beautiful courthouse in Reno, and now $100 million for the Las Vegas courthouse to fill the Minami hole. These appropriations could not have come about without direction from the Nevada judiciary and leaders of the cities of Reno and Las Vegas.

Another environmental concern Senator Bryan and I have been battling since we both entered Congress is nuclear waste. I still hold the record for the longest filibuster for a freshman senator when I stymied the Yucca Mountain nuclear waste bill in 1987. Last year, I developed a new parliamentary procedure in the Senate called a rolling filibuster to derail a bill to propel nuclear waste into Nevada at an interim site. As we all know, politics, not science, made Yucca Mountain, Nevada, the final site selected for a permanent repository. This has been the critical flaw in the entire process.

Over the years, the nuclear industry has grown tired of the studies at Yucca Mountain, conducted to ensure public and environmental health. The possibility that Yucca Mountain may be found unsuitable for permanent storage has increased, and a decade of battling with me and Senator Bryan has taken a toll. So the industry came up with a sneaky, dangerous plan to circumvent current law and propel waste into Nevada on a supposed temporary, or interim, basis at the Nevada Test Site, bypassing strict public safety requirements. Last year, we beat back the interim storage legislation scheme with our filibuster and a vow from President Clinton to veto this unsafe legislation. While Senator Bryan and I got a lot of headlines, our success would not have been possible without the leadership of Governor Bob Miller and the overwhelming opposition to nuclear storage in Nevada by both the Nevada Assembly and Nevada Senate. I appreciate that. Nevada has won many battles, but the war is not over.

Another battle we face is over water. Our supplies are limited and our demand growing. In 1929, when waters from the lower Colorado River were apportioned, no one could have guessed that Las Vegas would be the booming metropolis that it is and the country's fastest-growing region. At the time, Nevada only got a tiny share of the water allocated. We need to modernize water laws governing the river to better reflect population trends, density, and demands. We must also keep our options open for other projects such as desalinization and water banking.

Given the lack of water in arid regions, western water disputes have been contentious, longer even than Nevada has been a state. When I was elected to the Senate in 1986, I said water was the biggest problem facing northern Nevada and decided to become involved in these conflicts. My Truckee River Negotiated Water Settlement, signed into law by President Bush on the date of the birth of my granddaughter, November 16, 1990, was a turning point in the history of western water.

Significant progress has been made in implementing the negotiated settlement dealing with the Carson and Truckee Rivers. More than I, however, have worked on this legislation; Barbara Vucanovich; the leaders of the cities of Sparks and Reno; Washoe County; Pete Morros; Mike Turnipseed; the Sierra Pacific Power Company; the Pyramid Lake Paiute Tribe; the Fallon Paiute Tribe; and my friend, Governor Bob Miller, have been instrumental in our record of achievement on this landmark legislation. This has ended a 100-year water war between the states of Nevada and California. We dealt with two endangered species; two Indian tribes; threatened wetlands; upstream water storage for Reno and Sparks; a beautiful desert lake called Pyramid; and several agricultural communities. Law review articles, water conferences, and academics speak of the importance of our work. We are now in the final stages of implementing this historic legislation.

All of northern Nevada, especially Pyramid Lake, benefited from the negotiated settlement, but nearby Walker Lake is in serious trouble. I have been working to save this unique body of water in Mineral County that is drying up. The Walker River and Walker Lake are part of the Great Basin and an integral part of Nevada. Walker Lake is a popular fishing and recreation attraction that has played a vital role in the economy of Mineral County for decades.

The problems of the Walker River system are a challenge for us all. This fragile desert river now needs our full attention. The federal presence is not as overwhelming as with the Carson and Truckee Rivers. The agricultural communities of Mason Valley; Smith Valley; Schurz; the Walker River Paiute Tribe; Lyon County; Yerington; Hawthorne; and, of course, Walker Lake, depend on our responsible stewardship of this delicate ecosystem. There are only 21 other desert terminus lakes in the whole world.

When I first announced I wanted to save and preserve this thing of nature, I was approached by an elected official and landowner who asked to meet with me in Reno. We met, with their short and succinct message to me being, "Let Walker Lake dry up." I quickly responded, "No." That is still my response. We must save this priceless piece of nature. We can save Walker Lake and preserve the green of the two picturesque valleys called Mason and Smith. It won't be easy, but working together we can do it because I believe we must.

Finally, Lake Tahoe, which Mark Twain described almost 140 years ago as, "...surely the fairest picture the whole earth affords." Lake Tahoe is in trouble. It needs help. We again need to work together, not only within the state, but also with the State of California. As you know, I have asked President Clinton to convene a summit to focus national attention on the treasure we share not only with California, but with the world. This body of water is in stress, but I am today elated to inform you that just yesterday the White House informed me the Tahoe summit was a go. In fact, the President's note on the briefing papers he was given stated, "I'm okay. I want to do this in the spring or early summer." So I say to you, Mr. President, "Thank you. With your attention, our crown jewel, Lake Tahoe, will continue in its unparalleled majesty."

I have enjoyed our visit today. I appreciated your attention. Most of all, I acknowledge and applaud your public service, your sacrifice for the intended good you perform. I leave you, though, with the words of one of America's great leaders, Woodrow Wilson: "I would rather lose in a cause that will some day win, than win in a cause that will someday lose." Please keep this counsel in mind as we travel in time to the end of a millennium and prepare our great state, the State of Nevada, for its entrance into the next century, a new millennium.

Thank you very much.

SIXTY-NINTH SESSION, 1997

Thank you, Mr. President; Mr. Speaker; Senate Majority Leader Raggio; Senate Minority Leader Titus; Assembly Minority Leader Hettrick; all the Supreme Court Justices that are here; all the Constitutional Officers; and a special welcome to my colleague and the junior member of the Congressional delegation, Jim Gibbons.

I am pleased to be able to address you and all of those in the audience today as well.

Most of you don't know, especially up here in northern Nevada, some of my background. Some of my early stomping grounds when I was here in the fourth and fifth grades were right here in Carson City—in fact, right where we're standing. As a matter of fact, driving in here today, I drove by where my first job was. I think it was called the Lamplighter located off of Winnie Lane. I used to take the garbage out for the bar that we lived next door to on Winnie Lane. I have a lot of fond memories here in Carson City. I spent a few years in Reno, and then many years up at Lake Tahoe.

My family has been a Nevada family since 1906. My grandmother was born in Ely, Nevada; my grandfather was born—I think there were three houses at the time—in Dayton. I don't think that he, God rest his soul, would recognize Dayton as it exists today. My mom was born right here in Carson City. I will never forgive my mother for moving out of state. So I cannot truly call myself a native Nevadan even though my grandparents, my mother, and my children are all native Nevadans.

I was reading a newspaper article the other day, and it was about whether Congress had its continued resolve to devolve power back to the states without increased mandates that Washington sometimes likes to do.

Today, I want it to be absolutely clear, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that I am totally committed to the tenets founded in the Tenth Amendment; to bring back decisions, power, money, and everything that goes along with it, to chambers like this across the country, because I truly believe that we can solve problems here in our own state much better than Washington can solve them, and I am committed to that.

Two years ago, I spoke before this body and I talked about the real changes that were going to happen in the bastion of bureaucracy back in Washington, D.C. I talked about prohibiting the federal government from imposing unfunded mandates on the states and about the need to allow states and local governments the flexibility and resources to solve local problems.

Let's take welfare reform as an example. In what has been called the most sweeping social policy change in 60 years, the federal government was said to have ended welfare as we know it. We are not. We are allowing you to end welfare as we know it. We are just getting out of the way. Today, welfare rolls in Nevada are down 32 percent since the spring of 1995, and we're not done yet.

A lot of credit goes to a lot of different people: the booming Nevada economy; Governor Miller, and many of you in this room, especially state Senator Maurice Washington. These reductions will translate into significant savings for our state as the funding formulas--the block grants--were locked in at 1995 levels. Since our rolls are now down 32 percent from that level, you now have the flexibility, as well as the money, to look out and say, "Let's have a true welfare reform that talks about compassion and getting people from welfare into real jobs that make for a brighter future for them and their children."

Much has been made about the hardship cases on the welfare rolls. I've read many articles in the press about that. You now have the resources and the flexibility of a 20-percent exemption from the work requirement to handle any of the hardship cases. There truly are those who cannot work, so we gave that flexibility to you to handle it the best way Nevada knows how.

In addition, I realize that any block grant approach could be dangerous to such a fast-growing state, and to compensate for this I had included in the bill a growth formula. By the way, Nevada had already qualified for the growth formula before the law was actually penciled in. As soon as the law was penciled in, we qualified for that growth formula. It will help offset a lot of our sizable growth. We didn't do this alone. We did it working together with the governor and this legislature to develop a solution not mired down in politics. When we succeeded in devolving power to the states, we did it by listening to those of you who told us that you could do it better, and we did it by spending money smarter rather than just throwing more money at the problem.

Along with the population growth formula, Nevada has the ability to take advantage of another key provision in this welfare bill. The five states that are most successful in decreasing out-of-wedlock births without increasing abortions are eligible for $20 million each in additional funding. For the State of California, which spends billions of dollars on their welfare programs, $20 million is not a lot of money. But to the State of Nevada, if we could qualify for the $20 million, that would be a 50-percent increase in our welfare funding, so it is worth the interest of the people and of you to design innovative programs to decrease the out-of-wedlock births. Not only will we be doing a service for all of those people and those children that are unfortunately born out-of-wedlock, but we will also be doing our state a service with an additional $20 million.

In America, we must not only look at individual welfare reform; we must also look at the whole corporate welfare state. Many provisions written into our federal tax code and trade laws don't benefit small businesses. They benefit the multinational mega-conglomerate corporations. For example, when we passed the Freedom to Farm Act which phases out all the farm subsidies over seven years, those farm subsidies were not going to the small family farmers. Those farm subsidies were going to several large, mega-national corporations. They were intended to help the family farmers, but that is not where they ended up. We have just begun to scratch the surface in the area of corporate welfare. We will continue to look for other ways to slash subsidies and loopholes for big business without calling everything under the sun "corporate welfare." There are legitimate business expenses that a lot of people are calling corporate welfare, and we don't want to include those. However, there are subsidies out there that we do need to eliminate at the federal level.

I mentioned before that I have more faith in Nevadans to solve our problems than I do in the federal government. My faith in state and local government to find solutions is not the only reason for my fight to return power and money to Nevada. The other reason is that the more the federal government spends, the more economic damage it can do to our state.

Let me explain. Simply stated, Nevada ranks 15th in the amount of money per person that we send back to Washington. We rank 45th on the amount of money we receive back per person from Washington. If your stockbroker delivered this kind of return on your money, I don't know if you would keep that stockbroker employed too long; I certainly wouldn't. That's why I've been fighting to limit Washington's spending and get some of our money back here in the state. We, as Nevadans, must understand that this is happening and work together to continue to reduce Washington influence.

I want to talk about the balanced budget for a moment. It is critical that we balance the budget in Washington. A balanced federal budget, aside from being the right thing to do, will have a positive effect on each and every American. In order to get our fiscal affairs in order, we must focus on reducing what Washington spends rather than on increasing taxes on middle-class Americans. If we continue as is at the federal level, perhaps in the year 2020 or 2025, tax rates on average middle-class Americans will have to be set at 80 percent. Think about that. Think about what it was 30 years ago and how little of your dollar actually got spent on local, state, and federal taxes. Are we going to tell our children that we don't have enough fiscal discipline and that we want them to pay 80 percent tax rates in the future?

There are some economic benefits to balancing the budget as well. Interest rates will drop by two percent. What does that mean? In real terms, it means a savings—and economists agree on these—$37,000 on the average middle-class home in America, over $2,000 on the average student loan, and $1,800 over five years on the average car loan. Folks, these are real dollars for real people we're talking about. This is real money in Americans' pockets to help them do better and make better decisions for their own families.

Some people say that a balanced budget amendment is not needed. We seem to agree that we need to enact a balanced budget, but agreeing on how we get there—therein lies the problem. Our country has not had a balanced budget since 1969, and because of that, every child born in 1997 will have to pay $200,000 in their lifetime just to pay the interest on the national debt. Think about that--$200,000 just to pay the interest. They get nothing for that. They get no roads; no education; no Medicare; no Social Security; no national defense. That's just their share of the interest on the national debt because people in Washington have not had the discipline to live within the money constraints that Americans send them every year.

There are two main reasons people give for not enacting a balanced budget amendment. The first is that we don't need a balanced budget amendment; we just need to enact a balanced budget. The second is that the balanced budget amendment would be a threat to Social Security.

Let me start with the first argument. As an example to show you how I think we need to force this fiscal discipline on Washington, we only have to look at the President's latest budget. While I applaud the President for bringing a balanced budget to the table, the problem is most of the savings are in the years 2001 and 2002. He will be out of office, and because we enacted term limits on committee chairs, those committee chairs will also be gone from their current posts. That means all new people will be in office. Do we really expect them to make the difficult choices without the fiscal discipline that is required with a balanced budget? I think not.

The second argument states that using a balanced budget amendment is going to be a threat to Social Security. We have had what is called a "unified budget" for as long as I can remember. Any member of Congress who was there last time or in the Congress before that has voted for using Social Security trust funds to fund the government. We've been using it all along. In the President's current budget, he proposes doing the same thing. The people who are suggesting that Social Security would be hurt, need to tell us where we are going to get the $350 billion in additional cuts that are going to be necessary if we exempt Social Security and take it completely out of the budget process. It is ironic that these are the same people, if you look at their careers, who have voted for most of the spending increases in Washington. I think it is time for a balanced budget amendment to the constitution. It is just one of the steps necessary.

Let me now turn to Medicare. Medicare is one of the most important issues facing our country. It is going bankrupt. Everybody agrees it is going bankrupt by the year 2001, maybe even a little earlier than that. This is according to the President's own trustees on Medicare. It is absolutely time to quit playing politics with Medicare.

The last election is behind us. There's a new attitude in Washington about bipartisanship. Medicare is going to be the true key test to bipartisanship. We are ready to join the President. He needs to show leadership on this. He has brought one proposal to the table so far. It's a good start, but we need to save Medicare for the 37 million seniors and disabled people that are currently dependent upon it. We can't just do it from a numbers game.

I believe strongly that our current Medicare system, as well as the rest of our health care system, is really a "sick care system." If somebody gets sick, we pay doctors and all the providers. We pay to fix them, but we won't pay to keep them healthy. That is why I think it should be called a "sick care system."

I co-authored a bill this year with a Democrat, Carol Maloney, from New York, that will provide annual mammograms for women over the age of 65. The bill is needed because as a woman ages, her chances of contracting breast cancer increase. Yet when she turns 65, Medicare only pays for mammograms every two years. This is called prevention. This is called keeping people healthier. There are other proposals, as a matter of fact, including the President's proposal, that states we're going to teach diabetics how to stay healthier and we're going to pay for prevention to keep them healthier. A large percentage of the total Medicare dollars spent today are on diabetes and diabetes-related diseases. If we can keep people healthier and out of the hospital, not only is it better for the people themselves, but in the long run, it is better for the taxpayer; it is better for the federal budget; and it is better for all the things government does that are good.

I believe strongly we need to continue to look for better ways of doing things in Washington and here in Carson City as well as in the local governments around the country.

I want to now turn my attention to taxes because I believe that our current tax code is unfair. It picks winners and losers in business. People make business decisions based on arcane tax code and tax laws, not necessarily according to whether it is a good business practice. We have such things in our tax code as a marriage penalty. We penalize you if you get married. We have such things as a death tax, known as the estate tax. You get up in the morning and you get in your car. Of course, you've paid the gasoline tax, you've paid your road taxes, you've paid your property taxes. You go to work, and, of course, you pay your payroll taxes, and you pay your Social Security taxes and you pay your Medicare taxes. If you get through all of that, and some of the other fees and taxes along the way—you get down to the end of the day and you decide to go home—and if you happen to be somebody who enjoys some of the simpler pleasures in life like maybe a Budweiser at the end of the day, you now pay 42 cents out of every dollar for beer that you drink. At the end of your life, if you happen to have accumulated a little money that you want to leave to your kids, they slap you with a 55-percent death tax. Our tax system needs to be changed. It needs to be changed in a way that simplifies it, makes it fair, and makes America more competitive in the global economy.

The 104th Congress governed smarter by deregulating the telecommunications industry thereby creating millions of jobs over the next 10 years in America; by allowing workers to take their health insurance with them when they change jobs without the fear of denial due to preexisting conditions; by giving small businesses tax relief and even some expanded pension and health care options; and by reintroducing personal responsibility to individual behavior by encouraging work rather than welfare.

As a member of the 105th Congress, I will again fight to balance the budget, save the Medicare program from bankruptcy, and work in a bipartisan manner with the rest of our state delegation to make sure that Nevada does not end up being the nuclear dump site for the rest of the country. And, by the way, as you are attempting to tackle campaign finance reform, we will also attempt to bridle the beast of campaign finance reform at the federal level. It will be a very difficult process.

Let me now turn to some state initiatives. Infrastructure is a big issue at the state and local levels this year, but the federal government does have a role. Our infrastructure needs have never been greater, as the fastest-growing state in the nation. Besides fighting for our fair share of highway tax dollars, called ISTEA (Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act), Senator Bryan and I have introduced a bill. We introduced it in the last session of Congress. We now have the entire Nevada delegation in agreement on it. It's called the Southern Nevada Public Lands Management Act. On the House side, we affectionately call it the Ensign/Bryan Lands Bill. I allow Senator Bryan to call it the Bryan/Ensign Land Bill on the Senate side. This was done in a bipartisan fashion. It's an excellent piece of legislation and it will help pay for some of the desperately needed water infrastructure in southern Nevada. I believe this is the type of legislation that came together with developers, environmentalists, and local governments, the federal government, state government, and everyone coming together with better, smarter governmental solutions to some of our problems. We need to continue to use that as a model.

I would like to commend the governor and every member here today for your support of a state veterans' home in Nevada. We are one of the few states without a veterans' home, and we have the highest population of veterans of any state in the Union. We surpassed Florida last year with the highest percentage of veterans. This project is absolutely critical to those Nevadans who have proudly worn the uniform in the United States Armed Forces, and I urge quick passage of the bill at the state level.

Let me turn briefly to education, because education is such a critical issue. It can get partisan at times. It shouldn't be partisan. What we should be doing is thinking of the kids and the future of our great country.

I attended George Whittell, which at that time was grades 7 through 12, up at Zephyr Cove. George Whittell School was one of the best educations I can possibly even tell you about. One of the reasons that it was, and I can compare this to the schools in southern Nevada, is because it concentrated so heavily on the basics—reading, writing, and arithmetic. Everything else became easy. I believe very, very strongly in technology, but until our schools start teaching the basics again at an early age and introducing discipline, we will never have the finest schools in the world.

Another item in educational reform is the concept of character education in our public schools. During most of our history, character education--or the teaching of core values--was considered just as important as intellectual knowledge. I think most of us would agree that character education has been taken out of our schools, especially our public schools. I was reading an article in the Wall Street Journal which detailed the positive and dramatic results that character education had on some inner city schools, both in student behavior and academic performance. Let me just read a little bit from this article.

> The Allen Elementary School, an inner city school in Dayton, Ohio, with 60 percent of its students coming from single-parent homes and 70 percent from families on welfare, was a near disaster in 1989. Allen was ranked 28th out of Dayton's 33 elementary schools in test scores, and teachers couldn't teach because of disciplinary problems. The principal implemented a comprehensive character education program. Five years later Allen was number one in test scores without any increased funding and its behavior problems had improved dramatically.

They had other examples in this article. What I found the most fascinating was that it was submitted by a nonprofit character educational partnership. Board members included Barbara Bush and the Reverend Jesse Jackson. If those two people can come together on educational reform, can't we, as Republicans and Democrats, realize the importance of teaching core values in our schools and start doing it so Nevada schools become the best in the entire United States?

Let me close by quoting Elie Wiesel, the Romanian writer and Holocaust survivor who once said, "I've looked for answers in many ways--religious, political, humanistic, in different places. I have come to believe there is only one response, the moral response. Whatever we do must be measured in moral terms."

So easily spoken, yet often so difficult to practice.

I remain totally committed to continuing to return money, power and influence to all of you. This is morally right for our future as a nation and becomes simply a matter of political will.

I'm enthusiastic about this session of the legislature and what you're doing here. I want to commit my efforts to joining with you in having this be a bipartisan, let's just say nonpartisan, session of this Legislature and session of Congress where we start serving our parties best by serving our state and our country first.

God bless you. Thank you for allowing me to be here.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblywoman Cegavske requested the following be entered in the Journal:

NEVADA'S YOUTH IN GOVERNMENT

By Diana Tran

With the presidential and state elections in 1992 and 1996, Nevadan youths were granted the opportunity to get involved in the political world. Instead of learning the principles in government books and campaign ads on television, Nevada's youth, including myself, experienced the excitement first hand. As part of our government assignment was the opportunity to earn extra credit and experience, Durango and other high school students volunteered at local campaign headquarters. Volunteering at campaign headquarters proved to the public how we care about our future. Such expressions of our opinion, taking public surveys, and informing the public on the candidate's issues are how we got involved.

Representing the youth's population in Nevada, volunteers told the candidate some of the issues that we care about. From the flaws in the school system to the lack of recreational programs, we expressed our opinions, concerns, and needs. Without the voice of the youth, the candidates would not know or be aware of the issues that affect us. If an issue is not addressed, no action can be taken.

Candidates just don't pick any issues they want. This is when surveying takes its action. The main source of democracy is the people. Thus, volunteers went out and knocked on doors and surveyed the public. From asking the public on the status of their life regarding the government influence to asking what their needs were, we recorded their valuable answers. From this survey, the candidates get a good idea of what issue to attack and make the public satisfied.

Once the candidate's platform has been formed and announced, volunteers went out and informed them on the important issues. We served as messengers for the candidate; we told the public what the candidate stands for and how the public could benefit if that candidate is elected. We could answer tough questions and effectively express the issues favorably.

When the public goes in the voting poll and votes for the candidate that we advertise for, we know that we have done our job. By voting, the public expresses their concern, and their voices are heard. When volunteering at political campaigns, we are taking action and getting involved in the government. We don't sit back and expect others to get things done. By expressing our concern on issues, taking surveys, and informing the public, we are taking actions in bettering the representation of Nevada's youth in Nevada and Washington.

MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE OF NEVADA
SIXTY-NINTH SESSION, 1997

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, members of our legislature, colleagues, and fellow Nevadans. Thank you very much for this opportunity to speak to you to fill you in on what has been happening in the judiciary of our state.

Before I begin my speech, I'm sad to announce that Justice John Mowbray died this morning at 4:00 a.m. at Desert Springs Hospital. He served the citizens of Nevada on the Supreme Court for 26 years and before that on the district court in Clark County. Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. on Saturday. I ask for a minute of silence for one of our dedicated public servants.

Senator Pat McCarran, who served on the Nevada Supreme Court from 1913 to 1918, stated, "There is no place on earth that constitutes so fine a political burial ground, as the bench." In the last couple of years, I have been wondering where that elusive burial ground went as we have continued to make political headlines. But the headlines seem to emphasize the negative and don't usually give an accurate or complete picture of what is really happening in our judicial system. That's why I appreciate this opportunity to talk to you about our judicial system, its problems, and the steps the lawyers and judges are taking to improve the service to the citizens of Nevada.

For those of you who are new to our justice system, I'd like to give you a brief overview of our judiciary. In giving that overview, it is interesting to note that, even though we are a relatively new state, the core responsibility of our branch of government, the judiciary, has not changed since the writing of the Magna Carta almost 800 years ago. The Magna Carta states, "All courts shall be open; every person for an injury done to him, goods, person, or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law; and right and justice shall be administered without favor, denial, or delay." It sounds as relevant today as it did in 1215, which indicates that there is a deep and long-standing social and political consensus as to what the people expect of the justice system.

The courts that most Nevadans see are the justice courts because they handle traffic offenses, misdemeanors, small claims and evictions, as well as preliminary hearings on felonies and civil matters in which up to $7,500 is in issue. Each township has a justice of the peace, and the larger townships like Las Vegas and Reno have more than one. Nevada has 56 justice courts, with a total of 67 justices of the peace.

In the population centers where felony cases are a major part of the caseload, the judges are attorneys, but in most of the state the justices of the peace are not attorneys. That does not mean that they don't have legal training. We are fortunate to have the National Judicial College in Nevada so that our Nevada judges have the opportunity to gain judicial education relatively conveniently and inexpensively. Recently, I had the privilege of giving education awards to a great many of the JPs, each of whom had completed hundreds of hours at the Judicial College.

Except for the preliminary hearings on felonies, the vast majority of cases in justice court require the judge to deal directly with the people, not through attorneys. That makes justice court particularly challenging because the judges don't have assistance from attorneys and, in order to do justice, the judge must often take a more active role in the proceedings. I have always considered the justice courts particularly important because it is the only court that the vast majority of our citizens ever experience.

Municipal judges also have a high volume because they process the traffic offenses and misdemeanors within the cities and the violation of city ordinances. They also deal directly with the people for the most part. We have 18 municipal courts with 29 judges, some of whom double as JPs.

Everything that is not specifically assigned to the justice and municipal courts goes to the district courts. We have nine judicial district courts with a total of 48 district judges. The district court is the general jurisdiction trial court. On the criminal side, the district court judges are responsible for felony proceedings including trials, pleas, and sentencing, as well as hearing petitions for habeas corpus and other post-conviction petitions. All jury trials, both criminal and civil take place in district court.

On the civil side, the district courts process every type of civil litigation that people file as long as the value is over $7,500. That includes cases involving personal injury; contracts; real estate; corporations; review of agency decisions; homeowner association disputes; and anything else about which people decide to sue. Most of the district courts also process family matters like divorces; child custody disputes; paternity actions; child support; and juvenile matters. However, in Washoe and Clark counties there is a family court which was formed for the specific purpose of dealing with family law matters. Eight of the district court judges in Clark County and one in Washoe County are specifically designated family court judges.

That brings me to the Nevada Supreme Court which is responsible for appeals from district court judgments and some original proceedings, such as petitions for writs of prohibition or mandate. On appeals, the Supreme Court does not receive any evidence or testimony, but only reviews the record in the trial court to see if the proceedings were proper and the decisions legally sound. We also receive petitions for writs which are usually asking us to order either the court or some government agency to follow the law. The published Supreme Court opinions interpreting statutes or rules, ruling on constitutionality, or determining what the common law is where the legislature hasn't spoken, set the policy for the state until you in the legislature decide to change it.

The other element of our judicial system is the officers of the court—the attorneys. The Nevada State Bar has 4,194 attorneys in active practice. The State Bar, as well as the judges, are very concerned with the quality of law practice in Nevada. The State Bar conducts the written examinations and background investigations of attorneys applying for admission to practice in Nevada and also conducts the discipline proceedings against attorneys who are accused of ethical violations. The Bar also sponsors numerous continuing education seminars for attorneys throughout the year.

Of particular concern to all of us is the quality of representation in criminal cases, especially in death penalty cases. Those cases get intensive review, not only in our court, but also in the federal courts. It is very wasteful of all of our resources if the trials are not conducted fairly and effectively in the first place, because it just means that retrials are necessary. I don't know how we can increase the quality of representation in these cases, but at a minimum, I believe we must have more mandatory education. It might also help if the level of compensation for the court-appointed attorneys was higher. Law office overhead is very high, and many of our best attorneys opt out of representing indigent defendants because the hours of commitment are high and the level of compensation is too low to even support the office. Attorneys are willing and do provide much free service, but death penalty cases are so all-consuming that if they do those for free or minimal compensation, they are very soon out of business.

As you know, most costs are rising, and that includes the cost of being in court. One of the concerns of both the lawyers and judges has been access to our courts. We can have the best legal system in the world, but if people can't afford to use it—can't afford to get their day in court—it is a failure. One approach that has been taken in recent years to help people to resolve their disputes inexpensively is to divert them from the courts.

Pursuant to enabling legislation that you passed in 1991, the Neighborhood Justice Center was established in Clark County. I am particularly impressed with the effectiveness and efficiency with which disputes are resolved there. Thousands of cases have been referred from justice courts and successfully resolved, not only relieving the courts, but also empowering people to solve their own problems. The center trains volunteer mediators who have donated thousands of hours in helping people resolve their own disputes in a peaceful, and often resourceful, manner. Of course, this also saves the people the costs, frustrations, and time of going to court as well as achieving a level of satisfaction that is often not possible in the courts. People can agree to many creative solutions to problems which the courts would not have the power to order. We all also benefit when disputes are peaceably resolved and do not escalate, perhaps preventing acts of vandalism or personal injury.

One of the most impressive programs of the Neighborhood Justice Center, and valuable in the long run, is the school peer mediation program in which students are taught how to effectively help peacefully resolve conflicts before they escalate. This has great potential to deterring violence in our schools and eventually in our communities. The peer mediation program has also assisted in the truancy prevention program in Clark County.

However, not all disputes can be resolved without court intervention. Protective orders, divorces, and bankruptcies must be handled in court and have many legal ramifications which require the assistance of an attorney. Yet many people simply cannot afford to hire an attorney. Out of this need to serve people with limited means, attorneys have instituted a number of programs to provide free or low cost legal services to those who cannot afford to pay a lawyer.

One type of program that county bar associations have instituted are pro bono projects in which referrals are made to attorneys who have agreed to provide legal services at little or no cost. The attorney's time is donated. In each of the pro bono projects throughout the state, family matters such as divorce, child custody and protective orders were the majority of the needs addressed. In the Clark County pro bono project, over 8,500 clients were served in 1996 and 95 percent of those were on domestic matters. The Volunteer Lawyers of Washoe County reported that 80 percent of their clients were the victims of domestic violence. Despite the stellar efforts of the attorneys in these volunteer programs, the need is greater than the availability of services.

In 1994, the State Bar commissioned a Nevada Legal Needs Study in order to assist it in carrying out its mission to ensure reasonable access to the legal/judicial system for low- and moderate-income families. The study reported that approximately 108,000 households experienced at least one legal problem for which legal assistance was needed in the past five years. Low-income households experienced legal-related problems or needs more often than moderate-income households, especially in the basic needs areas of housing, employment, bankruptcy, and health care. Some households reported as many as 18 legal problems; the mean was 2.6 in five years. Sixty percent of these households had no legal help of any kind to resolve their problems.

Some of the reasons they did not look for legal help were that they thought it would be too expensive; they feared retaliation; they feared being turned down for legal aid; they didn't realize they had a legal problem; or they just didn't know where to turn. The survey revealed that most were not aware of the existence or availability of free or low-cost services. Overall, the types of legal needs relate to financial matters—consumer problems, housing problems, and employment problems were the leading areas where assistance was needed.

As a result of this study and the recommendation of the State Bar, last year the Supreme Court adopted a rule asking that each lawyer provide a minimum of 20 hours each year of professional service without a fee or 60 hours at reduced fee levels to persons of limited means or contribute $500 to an organization providing free legal service. The Court also ordered the chief judge in each judicial district to appoint a pro bono committee to determine and address the specific unmet legal needs of that jurisdiction. The Court and Bar hope to make legal services available to those Nevadans who cannot otherwise afford them and to expand the present pro bono programs.

Each of the districts has complied with the order to establish a committee, but the outstanding work accomplished by the Washoe County committee chaired by Judge Connie Steinheimer is particularly noteworthy. The committee conducted research and investigation into the unmet legal needs of Washoe County residents and found that the most critical legal problems were, first, family law problems, including domestic violence, abuse and neglect, child support, custody, and divorce. The second most frequent problems were in the area of housing law, including landlord/tenant matters, discrimination, home ownership, and availability of affordable housing. The third most frequent problems related to income and financial matters, including credit, bankruptcy, consumer cases such as auto repair and home improvement matters, and access to government benefits.

To meet these unmet needs, the committee has formed the Washoe County Access to Justice Foundation which will raise money for, and actively promote the provision of civil legal services to disadvantaged persons and households. The foundation will also provide leadership in accessing and developing new sources of funding to support and expand the provision of civil legal services to the poor and develop and support initiatives to increase equal access to justice. There is an increasing deficit in legal services because of the continuing growth of the low -and moderate-income communities and decreasing federal funding for civil legal services. Therefore, this effort by the Washoe County legal community is wholeheartedly welcomed by those now struggling to meet the legal needs of the community.

And there are those organizations that have been valiantly struggling to help. Despite a drastic cut in federal funding, Nevada Legal Services last year completed 6,800 cases involving approximately 17,000 people in its priority areas of housing and public benefits. Clark County Legal services completed 1,427 cases involving approximately 3,000 individuals in its priority areas of consumer problems, Social Security, and civil rights. Yet according to the last census, there were 119,000 Nevadans below the poverty line, which has to mean that there are many unmet needs.

Because of the severe funding limitations, both the staffed legal service organizations and the pro bono projects have been forced to narrow and limit their focus on the most desperate needs of clients. Consumer law problems have been virtually untouched and immigration representation is virtually non-existent, leaving immigration clients easy prey for people who purport to be able to help, but do not; they just take their money and produce no results. Affordable housing will continue to be an intractable problem caused by the unrelenting population growth of the state. I hope that some of the initiatives by the Access to Justice Committees can help.

Meanwhile we have other programs that assist our citizens. Both Clark and Washoe counties have senior citizens law projects. We are all aware of the dramatic increase in the number of senior citizens living in Nevada. The over-85-year-olds are the fastest-growing segment of the population. The southern Nevada program sponsored by the City of Las Vegas each year serves approximately 5,000 persons over 60 years of age free of charge and the Washoe County project assists about 1,500 clients. Both programs provide assistance in preparing wills, assisting in small claims court, assisting with Social Security, estate planning and consumer problems. Both programs also provide service to home-bound and nursing home residents.

Another program for providing free volunteer legal services is starting in Clark County specifically to meet the needs of children involved in the legal system. This is the guardianship attorneys program aimed at advocating for the neglected and abused children in the custody of the county or state, the children involved in disputed child custody cases, and those children caught up in delinquency proceedings who really are in need of professional treatment. Having served as juvenile court judge, I know that many of the children need help in seeing that their interests are considered rather than being a pawn in some adult's agenda.

I know that we've all heard, and probably told, attorney jokes. In fact, I think I've even heard some reference to them in this legislature's committee hearings. But I want you to know that you have reason to be proud of Nevada attorneys. They have donated countless hours and their professional skills to help the less fortunate in Nevada.

The Young Lawyers Section of the Nevada Bar is particularly to be commended for its action during the recent flood. They immediately organized a training program for lawyers so that they could provide legal assistance to those who were victimized by the flood. The program was even taped and used to train northern California attorneys in the rural areas that were devastated by the floods; most of the California attorneys had no knowledge of how to gain Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) assistance. The Nevada Young Lawyers set up stations at emergency shelters and gave free advice to Nevada flood victims on insurance coverage, on FEMA funds availability, and on all kinds of associated problems like whether they had to pay rent or were responsible for damage.

There are other ways in which our lawyers are helping our communities. The Clark County Bar Association has established a trial by peers program which diverts cases from the juvenile courts and allows some juvenile offenders to be tried and sentenced by their peers. Volunteer attorneys introduce young people to the justice system by providing an eight-week training course to students who then serve as prosecutors, defense attorneys, judges, and jurors. The type of cases they hear are the less severe offenses like petty larcenies and vandalism. You may not be surprised to hear that the sentences that the students give are more severe than those in juvenile court. Even if a juvenile is found not guilty, he or she must then return for jury service. The education provided is invaluable and the recidivism rate from this program is phenomenal—only one student has reoffended!

Lawyers and judges throughout the state conduct mock trials in both grade and high schools. The trial of Goldilocks is a big hit! We believe that it is vital that our young people understand our legal system and can appreciate the protections and opportunities that it affords.

Both the Washoe and Clark County bar associations conduct special programs at public places like malls on May 1, which is Law Day, giving free legal advice and publicizing the free legal services which are available. This year the Clark County Bar is going to do something different by donating services to build a house in conjunction with Habitat for Humanity. Judges, lawyers, and many others in the legal system have volunteered to help build the house. The lawyers have also raised money and secured contractors and vendors to commit time, products, and equipment toward the house.

I've only discussed the activities that have been officially sponsored by our lawyers' organizations, but I'm sure you know that the contribution of our lawyers to other community activities is considerable in both time and money. I hope you are as proud of the contribution made by our Nevada attorneys as I am.

Another aspect of insuring that our Nevada citizens receive the benefits of our system of justice is to assure that everyone receives fair treatment in our courts regardless of race, religion, gender, or economic status. In 1993 the Supreme Court established a task force for the study of racial and economic bias in our justice system. This effort was funded at the last session of the legislature. A number of public hearings have been conducted throughout the state and studies have been conducted by both UNLV and UNR on various aspects of our justice system. A preliminary report has been received from UNLV in which the faculty collected and analyzed empirical data from the public and state and local justice-related agencies. The initial findings from the study suggest that significant racial and economic inequalities do exist in Nevada's justice system.

When the final reports are issued we plan to review the results and recommendations and take appropriate action. I would suspect that education programs will be needed for those working in our justice system to make them aware of how they may be discriminating and help them to remedy the problems. We all believe that we make decisions based on principle, not prejudice, but often we don't even recognize our own prejudices until they're pointed out to us. I hope to incorporate into any education program the recommendations from the earlier gender bias task force as well as the recommendations of the current task force.

On a happier note, on May 8, 9, and 10 of this year, Nevada is hosting the ninth annual meeting of the National Consortium of Task Forces and Commissions on Racial and Ethnic Bias in the Courts. Nevada representatives will be actively participating in the programs as well as gaining ideas and information from the experience in other states. I know that a number of chief justices from around the country will be attending.

I have received reports from judges throughout the state and some common themes emerge. The rural justice and municipal courts are particularly impressed with the possibilities now open to them with technological advances.

Being able to conduct arraignments by video can result in many savings. Often the jails are many miles from the courtrooms. For example, Dayton Justice Court is 54 miles from the jail. By installing video equipment in the jails and courts, the county is able to cut down on time, transportation costs, and attendant security risks. In Lyon County, all four of the Lyon County justice courtrooms are being equipped with cameras and terminals so certain hearings can be conducted without the necessity of transporting prisoners.

On the other hand, many of the rural courts cannot afford to take advantage of the tremendous strides being made in technology which can make every aspect of running the courts easier and more efficient. I believe all courts now have computers, but many are old, outdated or on their last legs. Computers are not only important for sharing information, but also to improve efficiency in tracking records and accounts receivable.

The big project that the Administrative Office of the Courts is now undertaking is to tie in the various computers in the state with each other, with the Department of Motor Vehicles, and the criminal justice information repository. For too long offenders could get away with multiple offenses without having to pay. A person could be convicted of a DUI in one township or county and be convicted of another DUI in another area. The second judge would not know of the first conviction and would treat the second conviction as a first offense. Similarly, warrants would be issued in one jurisdiction and when the offender was in court in another jurisdiction and he might be released on his own recognizance because the judge was unaware of the warrant. Temporary restraining orders in domestic violence cases are also another source of problems across jurisdictions.

The availability of information has been on a hit-or-miss basis. The technology is now available that those scenarios shouldn't happen. Actually, the technology has been available for a long time, but we in government often lag behind in taking advantage of technological advances because we don't have the flexibility in financing. It is to be hoped that in the near future all criminal justice information will be immediately available to all courts throughout the state. I would think we will also be able to save more of our trees by communicating electronically instead of on paper.

All of the justice and municipal courts have programs to increase the rate of collection of fines. Various methods are being used, including using collection agencies; adding marshals; allowing credit card payments (even by telephone); mailing notices before issuing warrants; hiring a judicial enforcement officer to monitor payments; and just plain hard-line judicial enforcement.

Of course, not everyone can afford to pay fines and most courts have alternative work programs. Many thousands of man-hours are contributed by offenders throughout the state on beautification, cleanup, and other civic projects. In Carson City alone, last year 920 people contributed 24,380 hours of community service. Even in the less populated area of the Argenta township in Lander County, thousands of hours were donated to the community. The Las Vegas Municipal Court reports that $2,000,000 worth of labor was contributed by defendants!

One option that most justice and municipal judges use in sentencing defendants are counseling programs. They require counseling in lieu of, or in addition to, a fine or jail for certain offenses. Drug and alcohol counseling programs are particularly popular and effective. In Dayton, 90 percent of DUI defendants are ordered into drug or alcohol counseling for one to three years, with strict requirements and close monitoring. The results have been excellent. In Moapa Valley Township the number of DUIs have been reduced by 50 percent and the number of repeat offenders by 90 percent by a combination of tough sentencing and required treatment.

Las Vegas Municipal Court has the most diversion programs for various types of offenses. The philosophy of the Las Vegas Court has been to divert, when appropriate, first- and second-time non-violent misdemeanants to self-funded diversionary programs in lieu of high fines and jail sentences, in the hopes that long-term solutions to problems can be found. The court's traffic school processes 27,000 violators each year, and in 1996, for the third year in a row, the National Safety Council has presented its "Best Performance" award in the category of state, municipal, and county governments to Las Vegas Municipal Court Traffic School.

In Las Vegas Municipal Court, domestic violence offenders are ordered to the court's domestic violence program. A recent study has shown that the recidivism rate for those who completed the program was 8.4 percent, while the rate for those who did not complete the program was 20 percent.

Las Vegas also has an evaluation center for those who have committed offenses while using drugs or alcohol. The center provides treatment recommendations for their substance abuse. A study of 1,090 clients revealed that 82 percent had not reoffended. Of the offenders who completed the court's DUI program, only 7.6 percent had a subsequent DUI.

Las Vegas Municipal Court has always been in the forefront in taking advantage of technological advances, so that that court is able to generate statistics that are not feasible for many courts. Of course, the access to services is hindered in the rural townships by the great distances one must travel to obtain services. For example, in Austin, the nearest counseling for domestic violence is 90 miles away. An effective program must be closer to home. We're hoping to develop one soon.

One request that many municipal and justice courts in rural areas have made is that they have some access to the probation department. Alternative sentencing, in other words, not just fines and incarceration, requires monitoring, and most of the small courts do not have the resources or staff to do effective monitoring. The Carson City courts have in effect created their own mini-probation department, but most townships cannot afford to do that. Many of the diversion programs are effective in providing a long-term solution to problems rather than just a quick fix, but monitoring is necessary for their success.

The district courts report a steady increase in case filings. The area that seems to be increasing at the greatest rate is family law. Perhaps part of that is due to the increased emphasis on preventing domestic violence and increasing child support collection, but even basic custody disputes seem to be increasing. Perhaps fathers are seeking to take a more active role in their children's lives rather than leaving everything to the mother as happened previously.

Of course, I'm sure you have heard that the greatest growth has been in Clark County. In addition to the approximately 1,120,000 residents served, the 2.5 million visitors each month also have an impact on the justice system. In 1996, 55,903 cases were filed, resulting in 2,541 cases per judge. This is about twice what is nationally recommended. The prospect of litigating all those cases by traditional means is more than enough incentive for creativity.

Part of the solution has been to use the services of masters to hear specialized kinds of matters like discovery, paternity, child support, juvenile delinquency, and mental commitments. Also, Clark County has gone for greater specialization, dividing into civil and criminal courts. Clark County has also made extensive use of alternate dispute resolution. Last year, 4,248 civil cases were diverted to alternate dispute resolution. One diversion program that has been particularly effective has been the drug court. Drug addicts are taken out of the criminal system and put into a treatment program lasting one year with regular testing and court appearances required. There are presently 850 addicts in the program. The drug court has had 588 graduates and only 52 have been arrested on any charge. As any of you know who have dealt with drug addicts, that is an extremely low rate of recidivism. The best reward for Judge Lehman who started the drug court in Las Vegas is the number of graduates who have come up to him and thanked him for changing their lives and saving their families.

Based on the success of the adult drug court, a drug court has also been started for juveniles in Clark County. It's even more important that we succeed with our youth. In Washoe County, a drug court is also in operation in the adult as well as in the family court for adults and juveniles. In Washoe County, the family court drug court is specifically addressing the needs of addicted women with children who invariably face almost insurmountable problems relating to housing, employment, child care, in addition to their addiction. One judge described this program as "wildly successful."

The Washoe County Family Court has been particularly successful with its mandatory settlement program in domestic actions, including divorces. Ninety percent of the 8,032 cases are settled. About three out of four child custody disputes are successfully mediated.

Both Clark and Washoe counties have excellent Court Appointed Special Advocate or CASA programs in which highly-trained volunteers represent the interests of children who are abused or neglected or who are caught in nasty custody disputes.

In the family courts in Clark and Washoe counties and in the other counties that do not have family courts, the biggest increase in case filings is in protection orders against domestic violence. Thousands are issued annually throughout the state and many more thousands inquire about them at our courts. That shows that this legislature was filling a real need when it passed the legislation authorizing the courts to issue the protection orders.

Despite the increasing caseloads and the multitude of problems in Clark and Washoe counties, the judges there are lucky because they have greater resources and some flexibility in meeting problems. I'd like to see a justice center in Las Vegas, but I don't envy Judge Papez who has to sit in courthouses in White Pine and Lincoln counties with no central heat or air conditioning. There are window coolers and heaters, but they are so noisy they have to be turned off when court is in session. Neither do the rural judges have some of the services available in the bigger cities to help defendants, victims, and the communities. On the other hand, in the communities where everyone knows everyone else, the community pressure can be a major deterrent to committing crimes. One of the judges in a rural area commented on how parents are willing to endure unbelievable commutes to work just to be able to raise their children in the small town environment.

The courts are constantly seeking ways to improve their delivery of services and the efficiency of operations. The Clark County Family Court has contracted for an organizational and workflow analysis as a step toward developing changes directed at expediting and facilitating early and lasting resolution of domestic disputes. However, the very nature of our role precludes a mass production or assembly line approach. Each case must be processed, heard, and decided individually. Criminal trials, child custody issues, and the myriad of other types of cases cannot be decided by formulae. Justice has to be tailor-made to fit each case. Justice cannot be sacrificed in the name of efficiency.

The Clark County District Court has contracted for assistance in developing a more advanced and efficient juror summons and management system. I regard our jurors as one of the greatest resources we have and some of our greatest advocates. Jurors have gotten a bad rap in recent years because of some highly publicized cases, but I respect jurors. We have hundreds of regular citizens serving as jurors in this state. Sometimes they come in very reluctantly and with a very negative attitude toward either our courts or the defendants or the prosecutors. My experience has been that even when they come in with attitudes, they still take their duties very seriously, deliberate honestly and reach a fair verdict. I found that most regard jury service as an overall favorable experience. They come to realize how carefully we try to protect the rights of the individuals and how meticulously evidence is presented. Many jurors have commented to me what a valuable experience jury service was and how their respect for our system has increased.

I haven't talked to you about the problems and proposed changes for the Nevada Supreme Court because I'm sure you'll be hearing about them in the Finance and Judiciary Committees. I'll just say that for the first time we've tried to present a comprehensive plan which will allow us to provide the necessary service to the citizens of Nevada in a timely and efficient manner. It hasn't been easy. As my learned colleague, Justice Young, reminded us the other day, "When you're up to your waist in alligators, it's tough to start planning how to drain the swamp." I've tried to give you an overview of how our justice system is serving the citizens of Nevada and how we are constantly trying to improve our service, with an ever-increasing workload and sometimes with inadequate resources. The vast majority of the lawyers and judges of our state are dedicated to serving the citizens of Nevada and are trying to make our justice system work ever better. I hope we, in our separate branches of government, can work together to achieve that goal.

United States Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger said, "Ideas, ideals and great conceptions are vital to a system of justice, but it must have more than that—there must be delivery and execution. Concepts of justice must have hands and feet or they remain sterile abstractions. The hands and feet we need are efficient means and methods to carry out justice in every case in the shortest possible time and at the lowest cost. This is the challenge to every lawyer and judge in America."

The lawyers and judges of Nevada are doing their best to meet that challenge. Thank you for the opportunity to tell you about it.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblyman Perkins requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal.

ASSEMBLYMAN PERKINS:

Today, as everybody is probably aware, we have many Girl Scouts with us. Particularly from my perspective, Mr. Speaker, I am very proud and honored to have two Girl Scouts with me as well as to see the group that we have in our Chambers. With today's problems and social ills, it's always very wonderful to see an organization that is able to focus and direct young people's attention towards good things, and I for one would like to congratulate the Girl Scouts and their organization for being here today.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN FREEMAN:

I would like to join our Majority Leader in his welcome to all of those in our Chamber today. I have a few brief remarks to make.

Margaret Meade told us never to doubt that a small group of dedicated individuals can change the world. She said, "Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has." Margaret Meade might well have been speaking of the groups here today for Grassroots Lobby Days. Thirty-seven organizations and more than 150 individuals have gathered here to share their viewpoints with us. These are the "movers and shakers" of grassroots campaigns, representing thousands of members of their organizations throughout the state.

Since 1991, Nevada Women's Lobby has coordinated this visit to the legislature to encourage citizen involvement in the legislative process.

Seated with us on the floor today are young women who will create the world of the future. The Girl Scout Councils arranged their "Day at the Legislature" to coincide with Grassroots Lobby Days. This is a visual reminder that the decisions we make today will influence the lives of these young women and the families of the future.

Let us welcome the members of all the organizations today.

Mr. Speaker, I have a list here of 26 organizations who are core sponsors today, and I'd like to enter these into the record: The Action Network; American Association of University Women; Americans for Mental Health; Boys and Girls Clubs of Western Nevada; Church Women United; Great Basin Primary Care Association; League of Women Voters; Maternal and Child Health Care Coalition; NAACP; UNLV Chapter; Nathan Adelson Hospice; National Association of Social Workers; Nevada Chapter; Nevada Nurses Association; Nevada Women's Political Caucus; NEW Project; Nevada Federation of Business and Professional Women; Nevada School Counselors Association; Nevada Women's Lobby; Planned Parenthoods in Nevada; Progressive Leadership Alliance of Nevada; Religious Alliance in Nevada; Progressive Leadership Alliance of Nevada; Religious Alliance in Nevada; Republican Women of Incline Village; Soroptimists International; Tahoe Women's Services; Toiyabe Sierra Club; UNLV and UNR students; Washoe Family Care.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN KOIVISTO:

I also want to reiterate how important it is that we recognize the theme of this year's Grassroots Lobby Days: Today's Decisions, Tomorrow's Heritage, and that we remain mindful of this throughout the 1997 Session as we make decisions which will influence the lives of future generations. These young women sharing the floor with us today are counting on us to continue to make Nevada a state where all citizens have opportunities to succeed and where all families and individuals are valued.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

As a former Girl Scout, I was quite shocked today to learn that one of the young ladies sitting with me happened to be one of my former students from when I taught at K.O. Knudson, so it was serendipitous.

2. If a justice or judge does not declare his candidacy, or if a majority of the votes cast on the question of his retention are cast against his succeeding himself, a vacancy is created at the expiration of his term that must be filled by appointment pursuant to section 20 of this article. The initial term of the justice or judge appointed to replace the justice or judge who is not succeeding himself is the term the former justice or judge would have served had he succeeded himself.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

SENATE CHAMBER, Carson City, March 12, 1997

To the Honorable the Assembly:

I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day adopted Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 16.

MARY JO MONGELLI
Assistant Secretary of the Senate

MOTIONS, RESOLUTIONS AND NOTICES

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 16.

Assemblyman Sandoval moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblymen Sandoval, Giunchigliani, Nolan and Chowning.

Assemblyman Perkins requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal:

ASSEMBLYMAN SANDOVAL:

Unfortunately, we often hear of the negative aspects of youth such as gangs and crime. We also listen to horrible stories of child abuse and know that in these abusive situations, the brains of little children will be permanently affected. I am very, very honored to show a bright spot today. We're here to honor Stan and Jan Berenstain.

I've borrowed some props from my son—some of the Berenstain books and a little stuffed animal of Brother Berenstain—to emphasize some points. The Berenstain books are the second-most popular children's books of all time, second only to Dr. Seuss. There are a hundred titles with morals and good points in each book that, I think, apply not only to children, but also to the members of this house, such as: The Trouble With Money; The Big Election; Get in a Fight; Hug and Make Up; Good Deed; for my colleague from District 37, New Baby; and last, but not least, We are a Family. There are also videos, and I watched Big Paw last night with my son, James. There have been several TV specials, audiocassettes, and other things.

In closing, I'd just like to say that I think we all owe a very, very large debt of gratitude to Jan and Stan Berenstain for their dedication to our children, and I urge the members of this Assembly to join me in supporting Senate Concurrent Resolution 16.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

I, too, rise in support of SCR 16. Jan Grant and Stan Berenstain wrote and drew for many magazines, such as Collier's, Saturday Evening Post, and many others. They also produced many books. For example, they set up a series of paperbacks produced by Knox entitled Marital Blitz, Education Impossible, How to Teach Your Children about Sex without Making a Complete Fool of Yourself; How to Teach Your Children about God without Actually Scaring Them out of Their Wits; and Have a Baby, My Wife Just Had a Cigar.

We've heard that phase, "pictures speak louder than words," and while the stories written by the Berenstains will live on forever, I think it is the pictures or the cartooning that they created which we will remember. Most specially, it will be vivid within the children's minds. For example, the Berenstain Bears began in the 1960s with a book which had pictures with rides on two rickety elevators and a climb of the twisty stairs to see a fellow named Theodor Seuss Geisel, better known as Dr. Seuss, who became an editor for many of their series. Even my junior high students still get a kick out of the Dr. Seuss books, especially the pictures.

The Berenstains have proved how important writing and the arts are for quality of life, but most importantly they've shown us how important humor is, because even we take ourselves too seriously from time to time. I would hope my colleagues would join in supporting this resolution in honor of people who not only could draw and brought civility and respect to the issues that many children have to deal with, but also left us with the more lingering issue, which is humor. Thank you very much.

ASSEMBLYMAN NOLAN:

I, too, rise in support of this resolution. As you know, my two little sons, who will soon be visiting us here in these chambers, much to my colleague's chagrin—as you can see, he's very excited about that—use the Berenstain Bears quite frequently. Over the last several years, we've purchased several of their books and videotapes. When I recently purchased a new CD-ROM computer for the two little boys, it came with a program already on it which was The Berenstain Bears on the Farm, and it is an interactive, wonderful program. Sunday nights now have turned into a wrestling match between myself and my two little boys as to who gets to control the bears through the farm, and I finally had to lock them out so I could have some fun with it.

Their publications and products are wonderful, and I, too, join in offering a debt of gratitude to these two fine individuals.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN CHOWNING:

I, too, rise in support of SCR 16. The few times that I get to see our granddaughter, Alysse Beasley, who resides in New Hampshire, are very, very joyous indeed. We try to read to the three grandchildren every chance we can. The oldest is just about to go to school, and she loves the little blue dress and the little hat with the white polka dots. Her favorite book is about somebody going to school, and I just want to tell you thank you.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Father Chuck Durante.

We stand before You, Holy and loving Creator, conscious of our weakness, but aware that we gather in Your name. Come to us, remain with us, enlighten our hearts. Give us light and strength to know Your will, to make it our own, and to live it in our lives. Guide us by Your wisdom, support us by Your power, for You are God of us all. You desire justice for all: enable us to uphold the rights of others; do not allow us to be misled by ignorance or corrupted by fear or favor. Unite us to Yourself in the bond of love and keep us faithful to all that is true. As we gather in Your name as Your faithful servants, may we temper justice with love, so that all our decisions may be pleasing to You and will be for the common good of all people: children, women and men. AMEN.

THE SIXTIETH DAY

CARSON CITY (Thursday), March 20, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:18 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Stan Pesis.

I attended a seminary in downtown St. Louis. A busy street passed below our classrooms and the lectures were often punctuated with the sounds of sirens, police cars, fire trucks and ambulances speeding by on their way to crucial business. Most of the time the professors merely paused until the ruckus ended. But as those emergency vehicles interrupted one class, that professor could be heard to respond, "Go baby, go." Lord, when the eyes of Your people see buildings and people threatened by flames; when the ears of Your people hear the wails of vehicles speeding to save property and lives; when the lips of Your people plead, go baby, go; Lord, go baby, go with those men and women dedicated to such service. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

To the Honorable the Assembly:

I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day adopted Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22.

MARY JO MONGELLI

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22.

Assemblywoman Lambert moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblymen Lambert, Anderson, Hettrick, Ernaut and Amodei.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN LAMBERT:

We see fires on TV, and they look very awesome and very dangerous. Well, I was an eyewitness to this one—frankly, all too close. I could look out my upstairs window, across I-80 and the Truckee River and see this fire just eat up everything before it. The arsonist started the fire just as the wind began picking up in the afternoon—the resolution says 30 miles an hour, but you can't prove it by me. You could hardly stand up in that wind.

The fire moved faster than any person could possibly run ahead of it; probably faster than you could drive in front of it. In a very short period of time, with phenomenal coordination, there was an army of people fighting the fire from the ground and from the air. I saw some things that really, I think, redefined my definition of heroism. I could see the house that is across the street from mine by the Steamboat Ditch, and there was a fire truck parked by the house. They had evacuated the residence, and the fire had burned up to the house. It is a two-story house, and the flames were two or three times higher than the house. The firefighters were there; they stayed there as the flames burned around the house, and when the smoke cleared and I could see again, the house was still standing. The firefighters were still there. They stayed there all night, and as the fire flared again and again, they put it out, and in the morning, the house was still there and the firefighters were still there. If you could only see what they were up against—the courage that they displayed was incredible.

I would hope that you would support this resolution. It took tremendous coordination of many, many people with phenomenal courage to put this fire out, and we owe them all a debt of gratitude. It is really an honor to be able to express our appreciation, and I hope you will join me in approving SCR 22. Thank you.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

I also rise in support of the resolution. I had the great fortune of only having to witness this travesty and this fire via the television rather than being an eyewitness to it as my distinguished colleague from the western section of Washoe County has reported to you already.

I wanted to point out, however, that this resolution also speaks to the joint efforts of the Nevada Division of Forestry. In one of its Friday "weekend with Bernie" trips, the Judiciary Committee recently toured the Silver Springs Facility Conservation Camp. The women at that facility provided services for the Nevada Division of Forestry, and that conservation camp is, of course, part of one of the programs we do through the prison system. Often times we think our efforts in supporting such programs prove for naught, and this is one clear example of where we've put a program together that helps every citizen and raises the worth of human dignity. I think this resolution speaks well for the people who did this, but also for our support, and I want to rise in support of it.

ASSEMBLYMAN HETTRICK:

I, too, rise in support of this resolution. I don't want to take away, in any way, from this resolution and the recognition of the people who fought at the Belli fire. I would just like to point out that many of these same agencies fought multiple fires within the State of Nevada, including one in Douglas County, and I'd like to recognize them verbally, with this resolution going through, for the job they did down there in very trying conditions.

My secretary, Linda Cooper, had photographs of the fire up in the office—the fire that came right up to the back door of her house and the fighting that went on there to try to save her house, which they did. We did lose four homes there before fire staff could get to Douglas County and help. I definitely want to rise in support and honor the people who fight fires all over the State of Nevada, not just Belli, but certainly support them for that, as well.

ASSEMBLYMAN ERNAUT:

I, too, would like to stand and voice my support for SCR 22. I think anybody that's lived in Nevada a long time, especially in the rural parts of our state, knows the feeling in their stomach when they look up in the sky and for the first time see a cloud of dark smoke rising up into the air and know that somewhere there's a fire.

Like Mrs. Lambert, I was very close to the Belli Ranch fire. As a side note, the fire was roaring towards District 37 until the Division of Forestry got involved and they diverted it successfully to Mr. Sandoval's district, right at the Steamboat Ditch. On a serious note, we were at the edge of Caughlin Ranch helping friends move personal belongings from their homes as the fire raced towards Caughlin Ranch at about 40 miles an hour. The flames were three and four stories high, and I'll never forget—I still get choked up thinking about it—I'll never forget the fire line as they knelt and pulled their helmets down and said, "It stops here." And it did. That was courage beyond anything I've ever personally seen in my life, and I just want to say thank you very much.

ASSEMBLYMAN AMODEI:

Being raised in the NDF family, as my father is a retired NDF employee, and seeing the state forester and some of his folks over at Mrs. Lambert's desk, I just want to rise in support of this resolution also and urge you to provide the support that it surely deserves.

Resolution adopted.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblyman Price requested that Assemblyman Ernaut's remarks be entered in the Journal.

I wanted to give everybody an update. Many of you have asked, and I really appreciate that. Tomorrow morning at 6 a.m., we're going to go in and induce pregnancy—I got the process a little backwards. God, my mind is way away from here. We're going to induce labor, so hopefully by somewhere around this time tomorrow, I'll be a dad. I know that it's going to happen this time because my wife just called me and said that she and my mother-in-law had gotten in an argument over the Winnie the Pooh wallpaper border, so I know that it must be time. Thank you for everybody's cards and letters and really nice thoughts and comments, and hopefully when I see you all on Monday morning—if I do see you all on Monday morning—I'll be a less rested, but proud father.

Representative Gibbons delivered his message as follows:

SIXTY-NINTH SESSION, 1997

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, President Hammargren, Senator Raggio, Senator Titus, Assemblyman Perkins, Assemblyman Hettrick, members of the Legislature, Supreme Court Justices, constitutional officers, and fellow Nevadans.

Please allow me to take a brief moment to make a special introduction of someone who is very special to me and well known to many of you. During my service in Desert Storm in 1991, she served in this body as an assemblywoman. Let me introduce my wife, Dawn.

As I look out over this august body in this great chamber, I am reminded of my first experience as a state assemblyman. I was a freshman then, and eight years later, I'm still a freshman. I look over at the chair where Assemblywoman Ohrenschall sits, and I remember that I once sat there too, only it wasn't in one of those nice, inviting, $750 chairs. Hopefully, they're not too comfortable because we wouldn't want the session to go on any longer.

Legislators in our state are far more sensible than those in Washington. In both houses of Congress, there are two separate wings with an aisle separating them. All of the Democrats sit on the left, and all of the Republicans sit on the right. In Nevada, we have it exactly correct. Democrats and Republicans sit among each other and work together for the benefit of all Nevadans, despite political affiliations. Because you know, as well as I do, that good legislation is the result of both sides working together, shaking hands rather than shaking fists. It is indeed a pleasure to return to Carson City, and I see so many friends who I always looked upon for sage advice. In this very room, I developed fond memories, lasting friends, and a great respect for public service. My first experience and exposure to the legislative process was during the 1989 session when I was just a typical beginner. My predecessor had encouraged me to take on a simple bill that he had requested before his departure. It was A.B. 55, and it had nothing to do with the speed limit. This bill prohibited that ghastly practice of living in storage sheds, and that "legislative trial balloon," as Speaker Dini called it—gee, you were just in your fourth term as speaker then—was referred back to the desk of Mouryne Landing, now Mrs. Dini. I believe it went from third reading and final passage back to the desk a record 10 times before it was ever passed. So to you 12 freshman in the class of 1997, I offer you this advice: Be very cautious about ideas your forerunner may suggest you undertake. Sometimes there is a reason why they didn't, they wouldn't, or they couldn't do it themselves.

I look out and I see Senator Mike McGinness. Mike and I entered the legislature in 1989 as freshman members of the Assembly. Mike was always bemusing the fact that he represented such a large area of the State of Nevada. Well, Mike, I know exactly how you feel now. So many miles and so little time between campaigns. Each crusade is an odyssey of adventure, always finding out more about our independent heritage and western spirit. But it is here, in Carson City, where I learned so much from so many people about government service.

Senator Bill Raggio is one of Nevada's true legends and respected statesmen. He is a straight shooter, calls it like it is, and if it's a bad bill, like the ticket scalping bill in 1993, he's been known to send his "subtle veto" on such things. I believe one of the biggest travesties in Nevada's political history is not sending Bill Raggio to the United States Senate. It would have been exciting to see Bill Raggio work his magic in Washington, especially with some of the egos back there. Bill, maybe you'll reconsider that one of these days; however, I believe that Dottie will exercise her veto first.

It is also in this chamber that you so warmly welcomed my wife, Dawn. When I received a call to the Persian Gulf, she displayed as much courage as anyone I know. Before driving to Carson City each morning, Dawn would watch General Norman Schwarzkopf's and Colin Powell's morning press conference. Painfully aware of the events taking place on the other side of the world, she served the 23rd Assembly District with enthusiasm, sensitivity and strength. Each day she would pray for the war to end and for me to return home safely and quickly—just so she could give this job back to me!

Dawn is my finest wing man, but let me thank some very special legislators for taking her under their noble wings: Assemblywomen Jan Evans, Joan Lambert, Sandie Krenzer, and the indomitable Assemblyman Bob Price. You encouraged and helped her each day, and we will be forever grateful to you. This experience taught me the power of human character, candor and compassion that so many public servants here in Nevada have.

The value of a good education is critical to our nation's future. We must support the goal of having every child able to read by the time they are eight years old, and please allow me to stipulate that I believe that that should be in English. For this vision to succeed, we must determine what works and what doesn't work and what will work in the future for our schools. Historically, one aspect of learning has proven itself that it is the teaching of reading, writing, math, and science, the basic foundation of every child's education. In this search for what works, let me introduce to you an educational success story here in Nevada.

In rural Nevada, 60 miles southwest of Ely, is Duckwater. Duckwater is a one-room schoolhouse. It's not fancy; it's not elaborate. In Duckwater, their schoolteacher is an historic person. Their teacher teaches students of all walks of life—Native American, ranching and farming kids, migrant workers' children, and children from the oil and gas area out there. For 35 years, Edna Foresgren has focused on the basics of math, English, reading, writing, history, and geography. A vast majority of her students go on to receive a higher education, a higher degree. Many of her students receive college degrees and Ph.D.s; some are veterinarians, some are doctors. For 35 years, Edna has taught in this one-room school class and schoolhouse, focusing on the education of her children, teaching the basics and sending these kids, with that foundation, to college. Let me introduce to you a 1997 Michael Milken nominee for Teacher of the Year in the Nevada area, Edna Foresgren.

What I'd like to do now is introduce to you my idea of an unconventional backpack for our children. This is an ample book carrier, of course, for a future student at "Bernice Mathews Elementary School." Now, this backpacker must be a political activist, because attached is a campaign bumper sticker, and I guess we've advanced in time because here is Megan Miller, the governor's youngest daughter, running for President of the United States. I'll bet she'll win. Inside this backpack is this traditional pencil, which will probably still be around late in the 21st century, and four books: English ("property, Bernice Mathews Elementary School"); math; science; history. These are tools needed before one prepares to move on to the computer.

Sometimes the more things change, the more they stay the same. Much has been said about computers right here in this building. These are wonderful tools—computers and the Internet, but they are simply two of many. They haven't, they can't, and they never will replace the books in our libraries because reading builds those fundamental skills and critical thought processes that are necessary for a child's early training and a continual life of education for an adult.

One solution to this process is to engage parents more in the decisions and outcome of their children's educations, and in this effort I am reminded of the story of Ben Carson. Ben Carson, a young black boy growing up in Harlem, New York, was living in poverty. He had a mother, but no father. By the time Ben had reached the eighth grade, he could barely accomplish second grade work. Failing at school, on the verge of turning to a life of crime to find his way out, Ben's mother decided to get involved—to change the future of her son's life. Ben's mother, although she was very poor, knew the value of reading and writing. She made young Ben Carson walk to the local library and read just two books a week and write her a book report on the subject of each of those books. Within just one year, Ben Carson went from failing every subject to being the top honor graduate of the ninth grade. Ben Carson graduated from high school as the valedictorian and Phi Beta Kappa from Harvard. Now he is the chief of pediatric neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins University.

Instead of being a statistic, Ben Carson is a success story, all because he was made to read. By the way, when Ben was required by his mother to read those two books and to write those book reports, little did Ben know that his mother could not read or write herself. Seeing the success and watching the triumph of her son encouraged her to learn. Today, Ben Carson's mother holds an honorary doctorate degree from New York State University.

The lessons are clear. For the future of our children, schools need to be safe places where children aren't threatened; a secure haven where they're able to learn more, not less. We all know education resource dollars are far too scarce. It is up to all of us to make the most out of those limited support funds. We cannot afford to needlessly waste one penny. Whether it is in Washington or here in Carson City, we must seek new solutions that allow us to realize our vision and obtain our goals. As we prioritize where to spend taxpayer dollars, we must always commit to spending them in our classrooms where they will have the greatest impact. Our money should be reserved for our children and our teachers, not for Washington bureaucrats.

We all agree with the President on his commitment to address the wave of juvenile crime and the affliction of drugs that is washing over our nation. In this battle, our commitment must be aggressive, strong, and powerful. As parents, we must engage ourselves in the academic process as well as the academic environment of our children.

At this time, please indulge me. I would like to introduce my young son, Jimmy. Jimmy is one of three reasons why I decided to run for Congress, and he's on break from school. He attends year-round school while his older brother and sister are still attending classes in Reno at the University of Nevada. As products of Nevada's fine public education system, I am proud that they have been schooled here in Nevada. Our greatest assets are our children. They are our future and our best investment.

Let me move on. Personal freedom has enabled America to become the richest and most prosperous country on earth. As prosperous as we are, however, it is equally important to remember that children, veterans, seniors, and disabled should never be hungry, homeless, helpless or abused. This is not a Republican issue, it is not a Democrat issue, but a human one. It demands compassionate solutions.

To help seniors, Congress is tasked with ensuring the solvency of the Social Security Trust Fund. It is a number one priority in this term's agenda. We have been informed that Social Security will be broken in 32 years. That means busted and bankrupt. It is very bad news for seniors and those of us who are baby boomers. We cannot allow this to happen. For those of us planning to be around in the year 2029, we must do everything in our power to save Social Security. After all, it is our money.

To help with this, I have co-sponsored the Social Security Preservation Act of 1997. This will require the managing trustees of the Social Security Trust Fund to invest the annual surpluses of the trust funds into federally-insured, interest-bearing securities and certificates of deposit. This will prevent those notorious spendthrifts on Capitol Hill from using it to balance the budget.

Also at the top of our congressional priorities for our families and our children's future is balancing the federal budget. Three weeks ago, the amendment to balance the budget failed by just one vote in the United States Senate. It seems clear that the weak link in our federal government is fiscal responsibility. I am a proponent of the balanced budget amendment, and I will continue to fight for its passage. Seventy to 80 percent of the American people support a constitutional amendment to force Washington to live within its means. The public has to balance its own checkbook, and they demand the same of Washington. Now, some will argue that a constitutional amendment isn't necessary, but a close look at recent federal budgets show a completely different story. The federal budget hasn't been balanced in the past 28 years. Our nation's debt now stands at well over $5 trillion. The latest proposal from the President shows a deficit of nearly $70 billion. If we persist down this path, it will ultimately lead to continual higher and higher taxes for every working American.

Washington has proven itself, that it doesn't have the discipline necessary to balance the budget, and that is why an amendment to the Constitution is necessary and expedient. If we don't balance the budget, that bridge to the future may become the "bridge over troubled waters."

Besides balancing the budget, Congress must reform our tax system. In just three weeks, you and I and millions of other Americans will struggle with our Internal Revenue Code in a desperate attempt to determine our tax obligation. I am committed to reforming the current tax rules. These rules are so complex that it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the average person to understand, let alone a $4 billion computer that was paid for to solve the problem of figuring out the Internal Revenue Code. You shouldn't have to hire a certified public accountant or a tax attorney to do something that you are obligated to do every year.

Next month, I will be joining Representative Jennifer Dunn in championing the Internal Revenue Service Accountability Act. Many constituents have complained about the numerous problems with our system of taxation. One of the major concerns is the intrusive nature of the IRS. This bill will bring greater accountability to this agency, from the commissioner on down to the field agent. We need to provide a more civilized, if not gentler and kinder, Internal Revenue Service, as well as a reformed tax system that is flatter, fairer, and simpler for all Americans.

Recently, we heard about an elderly gentleman in Fallon whose health was failing. He had achieved what we used to call the "American Dream." He had founded a small and successful family business. Unfortunately, he was not using the remaining time of his life to reflect on his happy years with his loved ones. Instead, he was concerned with their future, having to worry about how his children would pay his death tax without selling the family business and the family home. It is unfair. The estate tax, or death tax, is one of the worst provisions of the existing tax code. This is why I am proud to support the Family Preservation Act. This bill completely repeals the estate and gift taxes. These taxes penalize families who have worked so hard to provide financial security for themselves and their children and grandchildren. These people who saved for that "rainy day" or for their "golden years" are finding out that it was all for nothing. The truth was discovered too late. They learned that they had only scrimped and saved and sacrificed for some stranger in government to feast upon while their children are left a pittance. Repealing the estate tax, reducing or eliminating the capital gains tax, and making the income tax easier, flatter, and fairer are worthy first steps in easing America's tax burdens and making it more equitable.

Sometimes, Washington has its priorities all out of balance. Rather than worrying about how to obtain an extra dime from an individual who is being laid to rest, they should be focusing on how to extend and prolong lives in the first place. Following in the footsteps of my predecessor and respected colleague, Barbara Vucanovich, I am proud to join many of my colleagues in Congress in the fight against breast cancer. This disease is the second-leading cause of cancer deaths among American women. Last year it claimed the lives of some 44,000 mothers, wives and daughters. Preventative medicine and concentrated efforts toward improving the patient's quality of life will greatly decrease the incidence of this devastating disease and improve survival rates.

I am proud also to have attached my name to two bills which address these goals. The Breast Cancer Early Detection Act, which was introduced by my southern colleague, John Ensign, will ensure coverage of annual mammograms under Medicare. Yearly mammograms will lead to early detection when treatment options are most promising. The Women's Health and Cancer Rights Act of 1997 will end the gruesome practice of "drive-through mastectomies." It will ensure coverage of inpatient hospital care following surgery. This bill is comprehensive legislation that returns personal medical decisions to the patient and her attending physician.

As we work to improve the health of all Americans, we must also work to improve the quality of life for working families. I supported the Working Families Flexibility Act. This bill will allow employers to offer their employees a voluntary option of selecting paid compensatory time off instead of overtime wages. This alternative will effectively make it easier for working mothers and fathers to balance their work and family lives. It will allow parents the time off to care for sick or injured children. It will allow them to attend parent-teacher conferences or even a child's piano recital.

A major project of the first session of the 105th Congress is also the reauthorization of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act, commonly and affectionately known as ISTEA. Each member of Congress was required to submit to the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee a proposal for highway project funding in their district. I want Nevada's tax dollars to be returned to our state so that we can complete needed projects like the Carson City bypass, I-580 extension, and some greatly needed public transportation projects in our communities.

Additionally, I am endorsing a request from Congressman Bob Stump of Arizona for a new bridge over the Colorado River to replace the current, but very dangerous, Hoover Dam Bridge. In the halls of Congress, this bridge has affectionately become known as the "bridge to the 21st century."

Another important goal for our environment is that we work to protect Lake Tahoe for future generations. Our "Lake of the Sky" is a national treasure, and it is the pride and joy of all Nevadans, whether you're from the south, from the north, from the east, or from the west. It is necessary because numerous pollutants have caused the water to lose its renowned clarity, and the surrounding pine trees are now starting to die. Preserving Lake Tahoe is critical, not only to our environment, but also to our tourism-based economy as well. I am working with Nevada's delegation in solving Tahoe's transportation problems and to maintain that precious balance with nature. We must pull together to become a single, powerful voice to ensure that this natural resource is preserved.

Few, if any, problems have become more challenging in recent years than the disposal of nuclear waste. Nevada has long been targeted as the nation's nuclear dumping ground even though we have no nuclear reactors in our state. In 1987, Congress designated and selected Yucca Mountain to be the exclusive repository for this nation's nuclear refuse. I believe there should be certain standards on the basis of sound reasoning, engineering and science. In addressing nuclear waste storage, we should recognize the safety, health and welfare of this nation's citizens first.

This is not just a Nevada issue because many states will be directly affected by rail and trucking transportation routes through which this waste must pass. A high speed accident could unseat a valve or damage a seal, releasing hazardous particulate matter into the environment. Each one of these casks of nuclear waste holds up to 24 fuel assemblies. In terms of poisonous gas, each fuel canister contains 10 times the amount of radioactivity that was released from the bomb that we dropped in World War II on Hiroshima. We cannot have this material simply dumped in our laps, and we must—it becomes clearly evident—address as federal legislators, the biospheric and safety concerns of every American.

In addition to the nuclear waste problem, I noticed in the newspaper recently that California is now seeking to dump their landfill refuse in our backyard. These people believe that they should heap their spoiled garbage on us. Well, I say rubbish! We won't be trashed with their fried, green, organic waste.

Before I was sworn in as a member of Congress, it became very evident that dealing with the maze of bureaucracy would be very difficult. Recently, the Bureau of Land Management published regulations in the Federal Register claiming to consolidate their law enforcement authority that they said was previously granted to them. Their intent was to gather all of their constabulary rights and present them together, and this was done to make the public aware of their pledged authority. After reading the proposed regulation, I was appalled by the unconstitutional power they have deemed for themselves.

Along with several other members of Congress, we requested that the subcommittee chairman, Jim Hansen, conduct hearings on these new law enforcement regulations. Chairman Hansen agreed, and it was soon after that that Secretary Babbitt withdrew the proposed regulation changes.

Unfortunately, it seems that Mr. Babbitt just doesn't get it. He still believes BLM possesses additional police powers, and once again, we have to go back to Chairman Hansen and encourage him to follow through with his scheduled hearings so that we, in Congress, can actually tell him that we disapprove of the proposal. It is critical, in my belief, that the federal government live within its constitutional boundaries. I will do everything in my power to assure that they do not purloin anything more from the people of Nevada.

The abuses to the prosperity and independence of this state do not stop here. In the President's budget, he is proposing a direct attack on one of Nevada's largest industries. His proposed budget would eliminate the percentage depletion allowance. This was originally created in recognition of the capital demands that are required to explore, develop and maintain mineral-producing properties. Percentage depletion allowance is more important to the continued viability of the domestic mining industry today than at any other time. Repeal of this provision, ladies and gentlemen, would cost Nevada an annual estimate of $220 million. This assault on Nevada would reduce household incomes by an estimated $68 million in Nevada. This proposal would mean the loss of about 2,300 high-paying jobs for our workers in Nevada. Because of the large salaries the mining industry pays, Nevada families now have a better living standard. This proposal would impose a hardship for many, and it is one that we must work to defeat.

Nevada's mining industry and its federal lands are, again, not the only areas under attack. Every day, the eastern establishment attacks our entertainment industry. Nevada's number one industry, gaming, has been unfairly characterized and is under assault. Those on the Potomac would just love to get their greedy little hands on our life's blood. They just can't leave us alone. Nevada has been in this business for well over 60 years. We already have the most self-imposed, controlled, and regulated industry in the world. We have paid our fair share and more. It is difficult enough without Washington's intrusion. Our gaming revenues support Nevada schools, Nevada causes, Nevada goals. We do not need their interference in our lives, in our land, or in our businesses.

Nevada's Second Congressional District is well populated with military personnel, veterans and a number of installations. Nellis Air Force Base, Fallon Naval Air Station, Hawthorne Ammunition Depot, and many Nevada National Guard units are located within its boundaries. There are also included in these bases such great institutions as the Air Force and Navy Fighter Weapons Schools, 2,500 National Guard members, 12 Guard units as well as a major Army ammunitions depot. I am very pleased, as a member of the Readiness, Research and Development Subcommittees, to be on National Security. My appointment to the Air Power, Guard and Reserve, Depot and Army Caucuses, enables me to better serve the needs of this region. Each of these subcommittees and meetings directly relate to military issues, personnel and families within our state.

In addition to your efforts here in this body, I am working with Congressman Ensign to build our first 190-bed veterans' home in Nevada a reality. Funding for this freestanding nursing and extended-care facility for our vets will come from a combination of federal and state funds.

Ladies and gentlemen, whether it's education, nuclear waste, the environment, Social Security, businesses, business tax, BLM, health, or any other issue, I will always fight for your best interests. I have not forgotten the reason folks sent me to Congress. It was to portray, to reflect and simulate their voices. I have fought for my country during two wars, and I will fight for my state in the battle Washington has waged on Nevada.

As I leave here to undertake that challenge, let me conclude my remarks by wishing you all well as you address so many important issues facing our great state. May you always exclude any aisles, any barriers, real or imagined, that may separate you from serving the best interests of the people. May God lead, guide and direct you in your decision-making process, and may you always work together in protecting, representing and serving the interests of the state we love, Nevada.

SENATE CHAMBER, Carson City, March 26, 1997

To the Honorable the Assembly.

I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day adopted Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 23.

MARY JO MONGELLI

MOTIONS, RESOLUTIONS AND NOTICES

Assemblyman Price moved that all rules be suspended, reading so far had considered second reading, rules further suspended, Assembly Bill No. 301 considered engrossed, declared an emergency measure under the Constitution and placed on third reading and final passage.

Remarks by Assemblyman Price.

Motion carried.

Assembly Bill No. 301.

Bill read third time.

Remarks by Assemblymen Carpenter, Marvel, Price, Neighbors, Freeman, Giunchigliani and Goldwater.

Assemblyman Carpenter requested the following remarks be entered in the Journal:

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

Assembly Bill No. 301 authorizes Elko County to impose a sales tax up to one percent with voter approval to construct a new hospital in Elko County. The tax will be in effect for no more than four years and is designed to raise the approximately $30 million necessary to build the hospital. Allowing the voters to decide the issue is supported by the County Commission and many residents of the county. They believe that the sales tax is the best way to preserve a modern, technologically-advanced public hospital in Elko County. If approved by the legislature and signed by the governor, this bill will allow voters in Elko County to decide the issue at a special election held in conjunction with the municipal elections on June 3. If the voters approve the increase, construction on a hospital can commence within one year and will be paid for with little or no debt burden on the taxpayers. Your Committee on Taxation urges your support. Thank you.

ASSEMBLYMAN MARVEL:

I, too, rise in support of A.B. 301. As many of you know, much of my district is in Eureka, Elko, and Lander counties, so many of my constituents do access the medical facilities of Elko County. Philosophically, I like the bill because it is enabling legislation and not a mandate. It is philosophically correct because it allows the people of Elko to vote on the matter. If they feel they need the hospital, they'll vote for it; if they decide to reject it, they have that option.

My colleague from District 37 was here yesterday asserting that he was born at Elko General Hospital. My claim to fame is that is where I got a staph infection.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I might just add that since the purpose of this bill is to enable—I did double-check with our Legislative Counsel Bureau today and got a verbal opinion—it only requires a simple majority to pass. It does not require a two-thirds vote because we are not imposing a tax or a new fee on anyone. We are enabling the county commissioners and/or the citizens of Elko County to make that decision.

ASSEMBLYMAN NEIGHBORS:

During the committee meeting, there was quite a bit of discussion regarding privatization and private ownership as opposed to a sales tax. I have been asked to repeat some of my comments to the committee.

My experience with privatization, as far as rural hospitals, has been a total disaster. The current management company that we have didn't last one year. Prior to that we had a major company, a subsidiary of Petrolane—which is a billion-dollar corporation on the New York Stock Exchange—come in under the name of Vance Health Systems. They told the county that if they would sign a non-cancelable contract, they would never have to worry about making any more payments. The way you cancel a non-cancelable contract is you leave in the middle of the night—I think it was 12:01 a.m. The next morning at 8 a.m., I'm trying to make arrangements to meet with the Interim Finance Committee, which we did, and they helped bail us out and keep that hospital open.

I have found that one of the big issues with privatization or private ownership of hospitals is indigence. The state law says that if you have an indigent, you must pay it. Some of those bills can get to $20,000, $40,000, or $50,000. The county commissioners can go to the hospital board and usually negotiate these, but when you're a private hospital, you can't do that.

I urge your support on A.B. 301.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN FREEMAN:

I also rise in support of A.B. 301. In the 10 years that I've been here and been on the health committee, we've seen a number of the rural public facilities disappear from the scene because of the difficulty of dealing with the health care market nowadays. I think that whenever a local government has the opportunity, or whenever the people that live in the local area have an opportunity to retain their publicly-owned facility, we should allow them that opportunity.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

What is the tax rate now within Elko, and what would it go up to under this?

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

Our sales tax rate right now is 6.5 percent, so if this measure was passed by the voters, our sales tax rate would be 7.5 percent.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

In addition to that, you don't have any allocations you've not used, anything for flood control or roads or transit as some of the other counties have done at this point in time?

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

That is right. Ours is at 6.5 percent, and we do not have any of the other options that are available to other counties at this present time.

ASSEMBLYMAN GOLDWATER:

I rise in support of Assembly Bill 301. I sit on the Taxation Committee as well. I was initially opposed to this bill before I heard the testimony. The reason I was opposed was because we're building a county hospital, and, for example, Clark County, and I think Washoe County, financed their county hospitals via property tax. Unfortunately, property tax does not raise nearly enough money to finance a county hospital.

The other question that concerned me was whether or not a sales tax increase was legitimate for a hospital as opposed to a water facilities system. I made the point that one is for a municipal utility and the other is for a county hospital. However, we must realize that in the rural areas of Nevada, a county hospital can be considered a municipality or a municipal institution because of the fact that there is not too much private industry involved in that area of the market.

For those reasons I supported the bill, I voted for it in committee, and I urge other members to support it.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I just wanted to add—because it is in the bill—that this will have a sunset for four years. This particular tax, as it exists in the bill right now, will only go for four years, and then it would be sunset.

Roll call on Assembly Bill No. 301:

NAYS — Lambert.

Excused — Ernaut.

Assembly Bill No. 301 having received a constitutional majority, Madam Speaker pro Tempore declared it passed.

Assemblyman Price moved that all rules be suspended and that Assembly Bill No. 301 be immediately transmitted to the Senate.

Motion carried unanimously.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 23.

Assemblyman Dini moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblyman Dini.

Assemblyman Nolan requested that Assemblyman Dini's remarks be entered in the Journal.

It is certainly an honor for me today to pay homage to a man who had a lot of influence in my life as I grew up in Yerington. Walter was a life-long friend of mine and the owner of the Mason Valley News. His dad and mother were two beautiful people. His dad was a white-haired man who reminded me of Mark Twain. The family was in the printing business for years and did an outstanding job for our community. On the Mason Valley News headline is, "The only newspaper in the world that gives a damn about Yerington," and I think that's true.

When we were in about the eighth grade, we learned our first lessons about the printing business. I worked for Walter for 75 cents an hour melting lead with George, here, out behind the printing shop. Eventually in high school, I was running the linotype machine part-time. I also had access to the press, so I had the best-looking stationery in high school, all custom made.

When I was around 12 or 13 years old, I would work in the office and he'd always hang around there with a big cigar and two or three buddies from around town. They'd chat about the business community and ideas to make money. I was impressed with that early in life, and he was pretty good at it, too.

Walter was a neighbor; we had adjoining properties. I really miss him. He's not out in his garden this year or taking his morning walk to the post office—I miss those things.

Walter has been a big benefactor for our state. His wife had Alzheimer's disease. When she passed away, he made a major contribution to UNR to do Alzheimer research, and for that I commend him. He has been a very good, very charitable man, and there was a wonderful feeling in the community towards Walter.

Walter was a year older than my mother—that's what my mother used to remind me of—that he was older than her. He lived a long life and I think he made a great contribution to our state. He was a respected member of the gaming commission for many, many years under a couple of different governors.

I am sorry that Jack McCloskey—his best buddy from Mineral County—is not here today. Jack writes the Jasper column in the Mineral Independent. When I first started serving here, I could always tell when there was a printing bill that was going to be acted on. If it interfered with the small newspapers in any way, Jack and Walter would come and double-team us. They were quite a duo. They kept everything under control. They were good at it.

I could go on and tell a lot of stories, but I guess I'd better not. It might take too much of your time, and I think the family wants to leave. It is my privilege to recommend that we adopt this resolution, and then I will introduce some people who are real friends of mine.

Resolution adopted.

By the Committee on Natural Resources, Agriculture, and Mining:

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 7—Urging the Secretary of the Interior to suspend or withdraw the new regulation of the Bureau of Land Management governing bonding requirements for certain mining operations on public lands.

WHEREAS, The United States Bureau of Land Management proposed on July 11, 1991, to amend its policies governing bonding requirements for reclamation of hard-rock mining operations on public lands, as set forth in the regulations governing surface management in Subpart 3809 of Part 3800 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations; and

WHEREAS, The Bureau of Land Management recently adopted those proposed regulations with the publication of a final rule on February 28, 1997, approximately 5 1/2 years later; and

WHEREAS, The newly amended regulation takes effect on March 31, 1997, and contains new policies that were not a part of the policies proposed on July 11, 1991, including requirements for the certification of reclamation cost estimates by a third-party professional engineer; and

WHEREAS, The general public was not apprised of the substance of the final version of the regulation and the significant issues involved, and therefore had no opportunity to comment on the new policies included in the final rule, in violation of the federal Administrative Procedures Act (5 U.S.C. § 553); and

WHEREAS, The final rule will have a negative impact on large and small miners, on their suppliers and contractors and on the economy and residents of the State of Nevada; and

WHEREAS, Without any opportunity for comment and with no increase in federal funding, the final rule will substantially increase the work load for agencies in the State of Nevada that administer programs in the areas of environmental protection and minerals; and

WHEREAS, The final rule could have a severe impact on the administration of the program providing for the pooling of reclamation performance bonds established in this state pursuant to chapter 519A of the Nevada Revised Statutes; and

WHEREAS, The final rule would place the Bureau of Land Management in the position of enforcing criteria for water quality, a task that rightfully belongs to the State Department of Conservation and Natural Resources pursuant to the Nevada Revised Statutes and the federal Clean Water Act; and

WHEREAS, The Bureau of Land Management has provided no documentation or evidence of problems regarding the failure of miners to carry out required reclamation efforts in this state; and

WHEREAS, The State of Nevada has been a strong supporter of mining reclamation programs, and the Bureau of Land Management itself acknowledges that this state is a leader in such programs; and

WHEREAS, The Bureau of Land Management has initiated a complete regulatory review of the regulations governing surface management set forth in Subpart 3809 of Part 3800 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations but has separated the policies regarding bonding requirements for reclamation of hard-rock mining operations on public lands from that review without explanation; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED BY THE ASSEMBLY AND SENATE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, JOINTLY, That the members of the 69th session of the Nevada Legislature are outraged by the procedures followed by the Bureau of Land Management in adopting the final rule on bonding requirements for reclamation of hard-rock mining operations on public lands, especially because those procedures violate the guarantee of due process in the United States Constitution; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the members of the 69th session of the Nevada Legislature urge the Secretary of the Interior to suspend or withdraw the final rule on bonding requirements for reclamation of hard-rock mining operations on public lands and to include the subject matter in the review, which is already in progress, of Subpart 3809 of Part 3800 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the Secretary of the Interior, the Vice President of the United States as the presiding officer of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

RESOLVED, That this resolution becomes effective upon passage and approval.

ASSEMBLYMAN PERKINS:

It would be very difficult to properly put into words the impact that Mr. Speaker has had on our state and on the people in this body. Your influence on us and your mentoring and education of us in the legislative process will go on and be a legacy that will be unsurpassed by any. Suffice it to say, as well, that our children and our grandchildren will long read in the history books about the public service of Speaker Dini.

It gives me great pleasure to bring this resolution forth, and I stand in support of the resolution.

ASSEMBLYMAN HETTRICK:

I, too, rise in support of the resolution. I've had the opportunity to visit some other chambers and I've seen their floor session in progress, and I wasn't very impressed. I also remember attending some meetings for some of the national organizations and listening to legislators talk about the rancor, fighting, harsh words and so on that went on on the floor during their sessions. I was almost shocked; I could hardly believe it.

I believe a great deal of the reason this body runs like it does—where we can have some humor and some fun and at the same time accomplish a great deal of work with respect for all—is to a tremendous degree the result of Speaker Dini's work in these chambers for seven terms as Speaker. Having had the opportunity to share that position with him, I know the kind of work he does, the tremendous job he does, and the respect he has from the staff and everyone involved here. I just want to say that I think this is more than fitting, more than appropriate, and urge every one of us, and I know we will, to support this resolution.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I, too, rise in support of the resolution. Most of the things I have learned and been encouraged with over the years have come from Speaker Dini. I, too, have had the opportunity to observe the operation of different legislatures.

I would like to amend one thing that our Majority Leader just said—that our grandchildren will not be so much learning about the Speaker and his deeds from history books, but from history computers since they're all going to be reading computers in the future. Seriously, our beloved Speaker is in those history computers for several different reasons, one of which is serving as Speaker longer than any other person in the history of Nevada. Up until about 1975, no person had even served as Speaker twice. Historically, the house had changed Speakers every session. Joe has been a member of this house much longer than any other person who ever served in the Assembly, and so he holds that record in Nevada's history also. I think that it will be wonderful to have that very fine instrument up on the wall.

ASSEMBLYMAN MARVEL:

It is a pleasure for me to endorse this resolution. As the longest serving Republican in the Assembly, I've found Joe to be fair. Very seldom have we really ever been on a partisan issue. Whenever it has been partisan, Joe has, I think, used the best judgment and we've had a great relationship.

Most fitting is the fact that Joe is recognized not only for what he's done for the State of Nevada by Nevadans, but he is also recognized for how he has served his state on a very national level. I think this is most fitting that we honor the Speaker today.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

I, also, rise in support of the resolution for a wide variety of reasons. My colleague from Assembly District 17 indicated that it would be computers that were going to enshrine you as an historical figure. In reality, that's not the case, as all of us know. We're happy to support this resolution not only because the gavel will now be encased, and therefore incapable of being thrown—and thus for the protection of the Sergeant at Arms and others in near reach, but also because wherever we stand, we always know that you're there behind us and supporting us.

Like any other historical event, the telling of having served with a person like you makes us all better. Your light has extended for all of us to become better legislators and sets a model that we all hope to achieve.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

I rise in support of the resolution. I think that, Mr. Speaker, you are the rallying point for all of us—from the north to the south; the east and the west; Republican and Democrat. I believe you're the person most responsible for holding this body together, and I just want to give you my thanks.

ASSEMBLYMAN ERNAUT:

I, too, rise in support of this resolution. I'll try to give the perspective from one of the younger guys, now that the older guys have spoken.

I think the foundation of any body, and especially this body, is deeply rooted in its history; the farther that we stray from that history, the farther we stray from our jobs and our duty here in this body. I don't think there is any person or any institution that is more synonymous with the history of this body and the history of the State of Nevada than Speaker Dini. I know that I speak for many of our colleagues here when I say we are proud that we had the chance to serve with you. This gavel being enshrined behind the rostrum is a small token of our appreciation for your leadership, and hopefully it will endure the ages as you have.

ASSEMBLYMAN DINI:

Thank you, very much. This thing is a lethal weapon. It should be enshrined someplace, but it was given to me at that banquet, and if you approve, then we are going to put it up.

Resolution adopted.

Our Father in Heaven, we are gathered today under Thy watchful eye in this general mercantile store we call the Nevada State Assembly. In this marketplace, our stock in trade is freedom and restraint; our medium of exchange is words; our goal is human dignity; the glory is Thine. As Thou hast said: "Out of small things proceedeth that which is great." Please bless us, dear Lord, in the cacophony of lobbying, testifying, orating and debating to hear, to listen to and to remember the eternal sounds of our now-silent pioneers who once sat in this Assembly where we sit, to remember their noble deeds and their pure ideals and as we remember them, please bless us to recognize and follow the still, small voice of Thy Spirit. MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

SENATE CHAMBER, Carson City, April 7, 1997

I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day adopted Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 25.

MARY JO MONGELLI

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 25.

Assemblywoman Ohrenschall moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblymen Ohrenschall and Segerblom.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN OHRENSCHALL:

I believe everybody in Nevada knows that Roger Foley was a judge of intellect, integrity and compassion. What they don't know, perhaps—because he never boasted of it—was that he was a man of great personal and professional courage. I had the honor of practicing before him in the federal court. He was known universally as a judge who listened to both sides, was always there, and worked very, very hard.

In addition, Judge Foley was the godfather of my son, James Ohrenschall. He took the time to show the example that young people need in growing up.

I'm extremely honored to rise and make this motion. Sitting with me are Ann Foley, his widow, Liz Foley, and his brother, George Foley. I strongly urge this body to adopt this resolution.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN SEGERBLOM:

I have known the Foleys for some 50 years and went to college with Roger. Some of the Foleys even painted with my husband. We have been very good friends, and I would like to second or join in the resolution. I have at my desk John Foley and Helen Foley, both of whom served Nevada as state senators, and Mary Lou Foley. For 91 consecutive years, the Foleys have served this state. It started with Thomas L. in 1904, and currently, Helen's father, Joe, is a University regent.

Resolution adopted.

62.211 1. Except as otherwise provided in NRS 62.212, if the court finds that a child is within the purview of this chapter it shall so decree and may:

(a) Place the child under supervision in his own home or in the custody of a suitable person elsewhere, upon such conditions as the court may determine. A program of supervision in the home may include electronic surveillance of the child. (b) Commit the child to the custody of a public or private institution or agency authorized to care for children, or place him in a home with a family. In committing a child to a private institution or agency the court shall select one that is required to be licensed by the department of human resources to care for such children, or, if the institution or agency is in another state, by the analogous department of that state. (f) Order the parent or guardian of the child to participate in a program designed to provide restitution to the victim of an act committed by the child or to perform public service.

(g) Order the parent or guardian of the child to pay all or part of the cost of the proceedings, including, but not limited to, reasonable attorneys fees, any costs incurred by the court and any costs incurred in the investigation of an act committed by the child and the taking into custody of the child.

(h) Order the suspension of the child's driver's license for at least 90 days but not more than 2 years. If the child does not possess a driver's license, the court may prohibit the child from [applying for] receiving a driver's license for at least 90 days but not more than 2 years:

(i) Place the child, when he is not in school, under the supervision of:

(1) A public organization to work on public projects;

(2) A public agency to work on projects to eradicate graffiti; or

The person under whose supervision the child is placed shall keep the child busy and well supervised and shall make such reports to the court as it may require. As a condition of such a placement, the court may require the child or his parent or guardian to deposit with the court a reasonable sum of money to pay for the cost of policies of insurance against liability for personal injury and damage to property or for industrial insurance, or both, during those periods in which he performs the work, unless, in the case of industrial insurance, it is provided by the organization or agency for which he performs the work.

(j) Permit the child to reside in a residence without the immediate supervision of an adult, or exempt the child from mandatory attendance at school so that the child may be employed full time, or both, if the child is at least 16 years of age, has demonstrated the capacity to benefit from this placement or exemption and is under the strict supervision of the juvenile division.

(k) Require the child to provide restitution to the victim of the crime which the child has committed.

(l) Impose a fine on the child. If a fine is imposed, the court shall impose an administrative assessment pursuant to NRS 62.223.

2. If the court finds that a child who is less than 17 years of age has committed a delinquent act, the court may order the parent or guardian of the child to pay any fines and penalties imposed for the delinquent act. If the parent or guardian is unable to pay the fines and penalties imposed because of financial hardship, the court may require the parent or guardian to perform community service.

3. In determining the appropriate disposition of a case concerning a child found to be within the purview of this chapter, the court shall consider whether the act committed by the child involved the use of a firearm or the use or threatened use of force or violence against the victim of the act and whether the child is a serious or chronic offender. If the court finds that the act committed by the child involved the use of a firearm or the use or threatened use of force or violence against the victim or that the child is a serious or chronic offender, the court shall include the finding in its order and may, in addition to the options set forth in subsections 1 and 2 of this section and NRS 62.213:

(a) Commit the child for confinement in a secure facility, including a facility which is secured by its staff.

(b) Impose any other punitive measures the court determines to be in the best interests of the public or the child.

4. At any time, either on its own volition or for good cause shown, the court may terminate its jurisdiction concerning the child.

5. Whenever the court commits a child to any institution or agency pursuant to this section or NRS 62.213, it shall transmit a summary of its information concerning the child and order the administrator of the school that the child last attended to transmit a copy of the child's educational records to the institution or agency. The institution or agency shall give to the court any information concerning the child that the court may require.

6. In determining whether to place a child pursuant to this section in the custody of a person other than his parent, guardian or custodian, preference must be given to any person related within the third degree of consanguinity to the child whom the court finds suitable and able to provide proper care and guidance for the child.".

THE EIGHTY-FIFTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Monday), April 14, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:06 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Thomas D. Tostenson.

Our Father, on this day in 1865 an assassin's bullet brought about the death of the great president that gave this state, and this body, its birth. Yet his place in history was not hinged on this moment in time, but on his service to his fellow man. Lord teach us by his example that greatness is not found in money, nor power, nor titles, nor even long life, but in our character. That it is not found by causing our constituency to like us, but by causing ourselves to love and serve our constituency. Lead us and guide us Lord as You led and guided Lincoln in the century past, that by Your leading we may find the courage to love, and the courage to care. This we ask in the Name that is above all names. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

THE EIGHTY-SIXTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Tuesday), April 15, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:08 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Thomas D. Tostenson.

Father God, let this body never become complacent about this daily meeting with You. Let this time never become rote or routine. For prayer is the thread that upholds hope in the combat soldier, as well as hope in the homeless. It is how Nevada's terminally ill will prepare this day for eternity, and how 85 years ago today the passengers and crew of the Titanic prepared for infamy. Father, if we know how to turn to You in perilous times, then teach us to see the perils of each day. Then we shall understand that a wise person has many counselors, and that there is no counselor wiser than Thee. This we pray in the Name of the wonderful Counselor, and the Mighty God. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Also, I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day passed Senate Bill No. 227.

MARY JO MONGELLI
Assistant Secretary of the Senate

By Assemblywoman de Braga:

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 10—Urging Congress and the Uniform Law Commissioners to make certain changes to the laws regarding jurisdiction over matters of child custody.

WHEREAS, The mental and physical health and well-being of a child is jeopardized when his parent or guardian is threatened with or subjected to acts of domestic violence; and

WHEREAS, To avoid such threats or acts of domestic violence, the parent or guardian will often move the child to another state; and

WHEREAS, The legislatures of each of the 50 states have adopted in some form the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, which sets forth various grounds on which courts may assert jurisdiction over matters of child custody; and

WHEREAS, Congress enacted the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act in 1980, which applies to any case involving the custody of a child for which the court of more than one state may assert jurisdiction; and

WHEREAS, The Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act sets forth similar grounds on which courts may assert jurisdiction over matters of child custody; and

WHEREAS, Although the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act and the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act provide that a court may assert jurisdiction over a matter of child custody in emergency situations in which the child has been threatened with or subjected to abuse, these Acts do not address the exercise of such jurisdiction when the parent or guardian of a child is threatened with or subjected to acts of domestic violence; and

WHEREAS, In addition, neither Act establishes a clear order of priority for the exercise of jurisdiction by courts in matters of child custody; and

WHEREAS, Failure to provide courts with an order of priority for the exercise of jurisdiction has led to conflicts over which court may retain jurisdiction when two courts in different states assert jurisdiction, resulting in the issuance of conflicting orders and the delayed resolution of matters of child custody; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED BY THE ASSEMBLY AND SENATE OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, JOINTLY, That the members of the 69th session of the Nevada Legislature hereby urge the Uniform Law Commissioners to adopt an amendment to the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act and urge Congress to amend the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act to:

1. Provide that the threat or occurrence of an act that constitutes domestic violence against a parent or guardian of a child constitutes grounds for the exercise of emergency jurisdiction by a court over a matter of child custody; and

2. Establish an order of priority for the exercise of jurisdiction over matters of child custody and provide that emergency jurisdiction enjoys the highest priority; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the President of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the members of the Nevada Delegation to the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the Vice President of the United States as presiding officer of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

THE EIGHTY-SEVENTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Wednesday), April 16, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:01 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Thomas D. Tostenson.

Thomas Jefferson once said, "God who gave us life gave us liberty. Can the liberties of a nation be secure when we have removed a conviction that these liberties are a gift of God? Indeed I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just, that His justice cannot sleep forever." Father, lead us in our law making, that we may solve the social ills of our state; that our legislation may not be seen as Band-Aids, but as cures. Let us not worry about the passing fads of political correctness, let us be concerned about correcting the polity. That what we do today shall stand the test of time, and that Nevada shall stand the test of the ages. This we pray in the Name of the King of Kings. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

We have the honor of having those students with us here today in our Chambers. This legislation was their legislation. To reiterate the remarks of the Speaker this morning, it's good to see the young people in our schools moving and working toward providing a bright future for Nevadans.

I think it's highly appropriate and timely that today we not only acknowledge the contributions of James Pierson Beckwourth, but also those of another group, the Clampers, who for 49 years have preserved, studied and maintained the history of the West in Nevada.

James Pierson Beckwourth played a very significant role in some of the most exciting events in 19th century American history. A friend and associate of men like Kit Carson, William Ashley and Jim Bridger, he participated in the development of the third trail to the Far West, and, of course, the California gold rush. Perhaps even more important to historians is the fact that Beckwourth, who was regarded as one of the most honest traders in the fur business, left a record of a very packed and colorful life.

The value of Beckwourth's memoirs to us has already been demonstrated by its widespread use in American literature and in 19th century American history.

Beckwourth is also known for his work as a guide for the United States Government and as a trader. Beckwourth's discovery of Beckwourth Pass led to the development of the Comstock Lode and much of Nevada. The fact that Beckwourth recorded his exploits teaches children the importance of having the ability to read, write, think and record. The fact that Beckwourth discovered a path in the mountains that greatly facilitated the passage of many immigrants into this country teaches children the importance of caring and sharing with people who may be different and understanding and reaching out to people who may need them. The fact that Beckwourth lived and led several Indian tribes teaches children the importance of and the rich history of our Native Americans. The fact that the students from Kit Carson Elementary School in Las Vegas, who are with us today, researched and studied the life of Beckworth teaches all of us that James Pierson Beckwourth—the trapper, hunter, mountain man, guide, and writer—deserves a place in American, and more importantly, in Nevada history, along with men like Kit Carson and John Frémont. I urge my colleagues to adopt this resolution.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

I rise in support of the resolution. I cannot pass up an opportunity to recognize Mr. Beckwourth's accomplishments and the contributions of Black Americans to the development of the West. In our search for the West, Beckwourth is one of those individuals in American history—much like Jeremiah Johnson—who we often overlook. Those mountain men who led the way West clearly set the standard of behavior that we should all practice—to look for the way to accomplish the goal for all without looking to personal engrandizement. Beckwourth clearly showed that quality in all of his activities.

Like many other early travelers, sometimes we don't recognize what an unusual event Nevada history is in the move westward. Most of the early settlers crossed this state and then, having crossed the area, turned around, recognized the great value that they had walked through, and then wanted to rediscover the area. Beckwourth's Pass led to the rediscovery of Nevada by providing the smallest and shortest crossing with the least elevation through the Sierras and thus the greatest and safest passage. His contribution is extremely important, and clearly the young people from Kit Carson Elementary School understood this. It is a very easy resolution to support.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

I, too, rise in support of AR 10. As school districts debate the issue of naming of public facilities, such as schools, they tend to forget about the history. There has been more of a practice lately of naming after individuals who are in the "here and now" rather than those who have contributed something, such as this gentleman. I think it's proper and responsible for us to react to students who have researched something, being able to bring that to our attention and then call on local districts around the state to name schools after this type of an individual.

I would urge our support for this. As I've been sitting here, I've recalled that one of our colleagues, who I think was very much a contributor to public schools in Nevada, former Assemblyman Marvin Sedway, has never had a school named after him, and maybe this will be another approach that I'll bring back to this body for consideration

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Thursday), April 17, 1997

Assembly called to order at 11:05 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Thomas D. Tostenson.

Lord God, give us the courage each day to understand one another. Help us not to slip into the lazy patterns of prejudice. For You have said in Your work, "from presumption comes nothing but strife," and You have shown this proverb to be true by many examples within our culture, within our families, and within ourselves. Lord, if You could cause this body, 78 years ago, to ratify prohibition into our nation's constitution, then teach us never to judge a book by its cover. Give us the fortitude to understand, that we may gain from it a capacity for love, for graciousness, and for wisdom. This we pray in the Name of the only wise God. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

THE EIGHTY-NINTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Friday), April 18, 1997

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present except Assemblymen Braunlin, Carpenter, Ernaut, Goldwater, Lambert, Marvel, Mortenson, Neighbors, Parks, Tiffany and Williams, who were excused.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Thomas D. Tostenson.

William Penn once said, "Men shall either be led by God, or ruled by tyrants." Throughout our world we see countless examples of this founding father's wisdom. Despot replacing Despot, oppression following oppression. Even tomorrow, we as a people are reminded of our own plight with the second anniversary of the Oklahoma bombing. Father, let us not fall into the error of so many ancient civilizations, who you judged with the words, "in those days men did what was right in their own eyes." Lest in an attempt to exercise liberty, we initiate tyranny. Father lead us, that by Your guidance our liberties may be secured. Help us we pray, in the Name of Him who is slow to anger, and abundant in loving kindness. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend William L. McCord.

O Lord our God, I ask Your blessing on those gathered here this morning. Be with them in their deliberations; provide them with such discernment that they may see through the myriad of problems before them how best they may serve the people. Help them to keep ever mindful the needs of those who are without power and position. The Prophets have reminded us that unless we look after the widows and children, those weakest among us, we will forfeit our right to govern. This we pray remembering those faithful who have gone before, Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Joseph J. Frank, National Commander, American Legion:

Lieutenant Governor Hammargren, Speaker Dini, members of the Nevada State Legislature, veterans, ladies and gentlemen—thank you for inviting me to your beautiful state. I certainly appreciate your interest in the concerns of The American Legion.

Before I get into the substance of my remarks, I want to recognize a few patriotic Americans, some of whom accompanied me here this morning. The Nevada Legislature and The American Legion share a special distinction. Both are stomping grounds of State Senator Lawrence Jacobsen of Minden. Senator Jacobsen has looked out for the interests of veterans throughout his 34 years in the Nevada Legislature, and he is a survivor of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Lawrence, take a bow.

Also here with me today are officials from the Nevada Department of The American Legion: Commander of the Nevada American Legion, John Stingerie of Hawthorne; First Vice Commander of the Nevada American Legion, H. B. Williams, of Laughlin; Second Vice Commander, Pat Burch of Hawthorne; and, lastly, a member of the Carson City County Planning Commission, a former Nevada Assemblyman, former Nevada state senator, and an American Legion National Executive Committeeman, Archie Pozzi.

Sometimes after I read the morning paper, I shake my head in despair. I read about all of the bad things that happen in our nation and I ask my wife, Barbara, "What's our nation coming to?" Too many children are out of control; too many streets are unsafe; too many sick veterans feel abandoned; and the Supreme Court says it's okay to burn the American Flag. I ask you, what is this nation coming to?

I believe our nation's problems boil down to a decline in traditional values -- pure and simple. People who join patriotic organizations such as The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary are fighting to restore those values. Just as you elected officials, we want to be a part of the solution rather than silent, unwitting bystanders who are part of the problem.

There is one thing I really love about the Silver State. Nevadans live up to their state's motto. You really are "All For Our Country," and that's a big deal to a Missourian.

Some people say they're in favor of restoring values, but they aren't. Some people say they care about veterans, but they don't. What you say to a Missourian doesn't mean anything unless you practice what you preach. I'm from Missouri. You have to "Show Me."

There's a vein running through this state legislature that bears a commodity more precious than any mineral—the spirit of Americanism. The breadth of Nevada's diversions is exceeded by the depth of Nevadans' support for the one unifying symbol of our nation. Nevada stands with The American Legion family in support of a constitutional amendment to protect Old Glory from physical desecration. While social misfits, who don't even know what they're doing, stand on Old Glory, the people of Nevada stand by Old Glory. The Nevada Legislature passed a resolution in support of a flag-protection amendment, and every member of the Nevada congressional delegation supports a constitutional sanctuary for Old Glory. Nevadans should be proud of that, and I thank you for that, my friends. The amendment, House Joint Resolution 54, was introduced February 13 by Representatives Gerald Solomon of New York and William Lipinski of Illinois. The bill has 303 supporters in the U.S. House of Representatives, far more than the two-thirds required, and both members of Nevada's delegation are among the bill's, as of yesterday, 272 co-sponsors. That's an incredible number of co-sponsors for anything, especially a constitutional amendment. The House vote will be held between Flag Day, June 14, and Independence Day. After the House vote, a companion bill will be introduced in the Senate, where 64 members of the Senate say they'll vote to protect Old Glory.

The bottom line is we need three more Senate votes to send the flag-protection amendment to the states for ratification. We know the Senate will be our battleground. In the 104th Congress, the amendment passed in the House, but it fell three votes short in the Senate. At least we don't need to lobby for Senate votes in Nevada.

People here have certainly shown me a resolve to translate the will of the people into the law of the land. That's one reason I'm honored to be with you this morning. I like your style here in Nevada. This state does not forget about the men and women who stood in harm's way to preserve the freedoms we all enjoy in this country.

Charles Abbott directs a veterans-service apparatus that's doing great things for those who sacrificed for freedom. With the support of this state, a chapel will be built at the Boulder City Veterans Cemetery, where more than 5,000 veterans are buried. I urge you to enter into a partnership with the federal government to build that chapel, a partnership in which Nevada would only have to cover 35 percent of the construction cost.

With the support of this 69th Nevada Legislature, this state can do more for older veterans. I commend this body for considering funding a veterans nursing home in southern Nevada. My thanks to Governor Miller for including a $6.7 million appropriation in his capital improvements budget. The federal government would pick up nearly two-thirds of the construction cost and provide per diem and Medicaid payments. The State of Nevada can't get a better deal than that. Many of Nevada's 190,000 veterans are seniors, so Nevada needs the 180 beds that the facility would provide. Mike O'Callaghan Hospital, a fine facility at Nellis Air Force Base, must devote its resources to active duty personnel—first.

Older veterans need—not want, but need—a facility designed to put them first. While I'm talking about health care, I must point out that most veterans can't use the Department of Veterans Affairs health care system. That's real unfortunate. The system has restrictions on who can be treated. Those restrictions are budget-driven. The American Legion has a remedy. The GI Bill of Health will be introduced later in this session of Congress. If Congress passes the GI Bill of Health, then the VA health care system will become accessible to all our nation's veterans and their families under certain managed-care principles. Service to existing VA patients will not be curtailed. I hope your congressional delegation backs The American Legion's newest GI Bill, and not just because it will make VA health care accessible to all veterans. Of course, you may recall the original GI Bill that was authored by The American Legion, and many of us in this room may have used the GI Bill of Education. The GI Bill of Health would also let the VA health care system retain third-party funding, which will preserve this vital national asset for future generations. The system needs the additional funding to survive. Without it, the VA will simply crumble.

A moment ago, I talked about your state's potential partnership with the federal government. Now I want to remind you of another partner—The American Legion Family. When it comes to upholding traditional values, Nevada and The American Legion Family are a winning team.

Think about how the people of Nevada benefit from The American Legion Family's presence. Think of all the native sons and daughters of the Silver State who've participated in Boys State and Girls State, Boys Nation and Girls Nation, the National High School Oratorical Contest, and, of course, American Legion Baseball. Think of all the children who will be a little safer because the McGruff Safe Kids program taught them how to avoid abduction. Think of all those hospitalized veterans who were helped by volunteers from our Legion family. Think of all those veterans who will use the Department of Veterans Affairs health care system, which Legionnaires in Nevada and across the nation are fighting to maintain. Think of the countless veterans who depend on American Legion service officers to help them file claims for disability compensation, including sick Gulf War veterans who deserve long-term treatment for their symptoms while scientists search for the cures and the causes of their illnesses.

Last week, I got a letter from a disabled Gulf War veteran in Germany named Steven Wood. Steven will testify Thursday before a U.S. House Committee investigating the government's handling of Gulf War illnesses. If there ever were words to characterize The American Legion's commitment to our nation's newest wartime veterans, Steven Wood chose them. Steven Wood was declared 100 percent disabled by the Department of Veterans Affairs. Steven figured his 100-percent disability rating would be an impossible dream, but The American Legion's Gulf War Task Force paved the way for people such as Steven to receive just compensation. He writes: "I knew that I was entitled to 100 percent from the VA, but I figured I would have to fight for years to get it. With The American Legion on my side, it was done right the first time." Those are heartwarming words.

Think about the difference The American Legion has made in the lives of many veterans in Nevada and elsewhere who seek benefits. Finally, think of the moral impact of providing constitutional sanctuary for the American Flag—the unifying symbol of this great nation.

Now I want to put all that bad news in the daily newspaper into perspective. We mustn't forget that, for all the discouraging news, there is a lot of good work being done that seldom gets reported today. And much of the community service in Nevada is performed by this state's nearly 7,000 Legionnaires. Programs that uplift our nation's young people, take care of veterans, and restore values don't make headlines very often, but those programs make a positive impact on our communities. That is what counts. As long as I'm breathing, I'm going to don my American Legion cap every day and go to work in an organization comprised of 3 million men and women who are "Still Serving America." I'm certain what will be going on here in Nevada. You, the members of the Nevada Legislature, and the people of your state, will continue to practice what you preach, especially taking care of veterans, standing by Old Glory, and working to preserve traditional values along with members of your Nevada American Legion Family. This is a place where people pull together to do the right thing.

Nevadans supported one another during flooding in January in the northern region. Nevadans have stood for a constitutional sanctuary for our Flag. And Nevadans have forged a covenant with their veterans—our nation's patriots—who sacrificed for our blessed American freedom. I'm from Missouri. You have to "Show Me." Nevada has shown me beauty which neither its resorts nor its entertainment complexes can equal—the beauty of a people who exemplify mutual helpfulness, the beauty of a people who love their country and cherish its Flag, and the beauty of a people who are "All For Our Country."

Thank you for the opportunity to be here.

RESOLVED, That section 2 of article 19 of the constitution of the State of Nevada be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 2. 1. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 1 of article 4 of this constitution, but subject to the limitations of section 6 of this article, the people reserve to themselves the power to propose, by initiative petition, statutes , [and] amendments to statutes and amendments to this constitution, and to enact or reject them at the polls.

2. An initiative petition shall be in the form required by section 3 of this article and shall be proposed by a number of registered voters equal to 10 percent or more of the number of voters who voted at the last preceding general election in not less than 75 percent of the counties in the state, but the total number of registered voters signing the initiative petition shall be equal to 10 percent or more of the voters who voted in the entire state at the last preceding general election.

3. If the initiative petition proposes a statute or an amendment to a statute, the person who intends to circulate it shall file a copy with the secretary of state before beginning circulation and not earlier than [January 1 of the year preceding the year in which a regular session of the legislature is held.] 1 year before the date on which the Legislature to which the petition will be transmitted commences its regular session. After its circulation, it shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than 30 days prior to any regular session of the legislature. The circulation of the petition shall cease on the day the petition is filed with the secretary of state or such other date as may be prescribed for the verification of the number of signatures affixed to the petition, whichever is earliest. The secretary of state shall transmit such petition to the legislature as soon as the legislature convenes and organizes. The petition shall take precedence over all other measures except appropriation bills, and the statute or amendment to a statute proposed thereby shall be enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 days. If the proposed statute or amendment to a statute is enacted by the legislature and approved by the governor in the same manner as other statutes are enacted, such statute or amendment to a statute shall become law, but shall be subject to referendum petition as provided in section 1 of this article. If the statute or amendment to a statute is rejected by the legislature, or if no action is taken thereon within 40 days, the secretary of state shall submit the question of approval or disapproval of such statute or amendment to a statute to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election. If a majority of the voters voting on such question at such election votes approval of such statute or amendment to a statute, it shall become law and take effect upon completion of the canvass of votes by the supreme court. An initiative measure so approved by the voters shall not be amended, annulled, repealed, set aside or suspended by the legislature within 3 years from the date it takes effect. If a majority of such voters votes disapproval of such statute or amendment to a statute, no further action shall be taken on such petition. If the legislature rejects such proposed statute or amendment, the governor may recommend to the legislature and the legislature may propose a different measure on the same subject, in which event, after such different measure has been approved by the governor, the question of approval or disapproval of each measure shall be submitted by the secretary of state to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election. If the conflicting provisions submitted to the voters are both approved by a majority of the voters voting on such measures, the measure which receives the largest number of affirmative votes shall thereupon become law.

4. If the initiative petition proposes an amendment to the constitution, the person who intends to circulate it shall file a copy with the secretary of state before beginning circulation and not earlier than September 1 of the year before the year in which the election is to be held. After its circulation it shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than 90 days before any regular general election at which the question of approval or disapproval of such amendment may be voted upon by the voters of the entire state. The circulation of the petition shall cease on the day the petition is filed with the secretary of state or such other date as may be prescribed for the verification of the number of signatures affixed to the petition, whichever is earliest. The secretary of state shall cause to be published in a newspaper of general circulation, on three separate occasions, in each county in the state, together with any explanatory matter which shall be placed upon the ballot, the entire text of the proposed amendment. If a majority of the voters voting on such question at such election votes disapproval of such amendment, no further action shall be taken on the petition. If a majority of such voters votes approval of such amendment, the secretary of state shall publish and resubmit the question of approval or disapproval to a vote of the voters at the next succeeding general election in the same manner as such question was originally submitted. If a majority of such voters votes disapproval of such amendment, no further action shall be taken on such petition. If a majority of such voters votes approval of such amendment, it shall become a part of this constitution upon completion of the canvass of votes by the supreme court.

And be it further".

Assemblyman Nolan moved the adoption of the resolution.

Remarks by Assemblymen Nolan, Ernaut, Collins, Anderson and Close.

Assemblyman Perkins requested that the Assemblyman Ernaut's remarks be entered in the Journal.

Mr. Speaker, I have endured, over the past two weeks, the discussion of what is appropriate and inappropriate from the pulpit in the morning prayer; whether someone can say "Jesus" or they can't say "Jesus" because they are personally offended. Well, ACR 21 personally offends me, along with my colleagues from Districts 3, 36 and 31. We'd like to stand and say that we would like the ACLU to take our case to the people, that we cannot be subjected to this kind of heresy and harassment by our own colleagues.

I see in the gallery the co-founder of the "Bad Lunch Caucus," the Secretary of State. I'm sure that he would join me, along with the other members of the "Bad Lunch Caucus," in saying that ACR 21 must die. Thank you.

I'm embarrassed. I'd like to rescind my earlier opposition. I didn't see on page 2, in the third "Whereas," that this has been endorsed by the Coors Brewing Company, so I will declare my unbridled support of ACR 21. Thank you.

Resolution adopted.

Assemblyman Nolan moved that all rules be suspended and that Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 21 be immediately transmitted to the Senate.

Assemblyman Nolan moved that the Assembly recess subject to the call of the Chair for the purpose of a fitness presentation.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 34.

Remarks by Assemblymen Evans, Humke, Price, Hickey, Ernaut, Chowning, Lambert, Giunchigliani, Hettrick, Anderson, Carpenter, Marvel and Dini.

Assemblyman Hettrick requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN EVANS:

I am delighted to have at my desk this morning one of those "old" timers, emphasis on the "old." I first came to the Nevada Legislature in 1981 as sort of a gofer for then-Senator Sue Wagner. It was the now-landmark legislation for domestic violence, the first bill that provided funding for the fledgling programs in the state. There were, you might say, two-and-a-half programs at that time. There are now 14 programs in the state. Although we, over the years, have passed numerous pieces of legislation on domestic violence and are still doing so, I think all of us who care so deeply about that particular issue will always have the greatest respect and deepest gratitude for Sue Wagner's leadership on that very important measure.

If you look at Sue's record, you will see that it is eclectic. She chaired Judiciary, as many of you know. Her bills cover every type of subject matter: gaming regulation; the environment; ethics; prisons—you name a subject in the Nevada Revised Statutes and you're going to find lots of bills with Sue's name on them.

It said in the resolution that Sue was chosen as National Republican Legislator of the Year. Some of us thought that that was perhaps a misnomer; we thought maybe it should be National Democratic Legislator of the Year because of her ever-present sense of balance and her nonpartisan way of conducting herself and her legislation, which I think is an example for each of us.

We are particularly honored to have Sue back with us as head of the legislative intern program. It had, I would say, fallen into somewhat of a state of disrepair. Early on when Professor Driggs did the program, it was quite well managed and successfully done. When he retired, it sort of evaporated. In the last two years, we've seen a remarkable turnaround, and I would submit that it is because of Sue's leadership. Everybody is really thrilled at the work you've done on that, Sue.

Sue Wagner was recently appointed to a very prestigious post on the Gaming Commission here in Nevada by Governor Miller, and I think she will add a great deal of knowledge and depth to that commission. Her titles have been assemblywoman, senator, lieutenant governor, and now commissioner; Sue, we await your next title.

ASSEMBLYMAN HUMKE:

I'd be remiss if I didn't rise to lend my support to SCR 34 and to commend my former senator from Washoe County. What I recall most of her service in this body—and I'm very happy to say that I did serve with her—was her indomitable spirit, which was demonstrated in many, many ways. When she was the Senate Judiciary chairman, Sue proved that she was just as tough as anyone else in this body when she stood toe-to-toe with some of the major industries and interests in this state and never backed down. She has gotten a little wayward since leaving the legislature, really gotten off track—in her forays into the executive branch—but that can happen to the best of them. It's okay, Sue.

Sue serves as a tremendous role model for all women and girls in this state. Thank you for your service.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I'm a little bit emotional. I rise in strong support for SCR 34. I cannot convey to this body the respect, admiration, and, while I don't want to start any rumors, affection, that I have for Sue Wagner. I remember so well, even in my fuddled memory, the first time that I recognized and learned who Sue was. In 1975, she was maybe in this seat here. I, for many years, sat back in the very back of the room. We were in the 1975 session. It would be hard for any of the youngsters here to know this, but in those days, there were no campaign reform laws. You went out and raised money as you could, spent it and there were no reports or anything else. One day this lady came walking around getting everybody to sign on some bill. She came to my desk and wanted me to sign on a campaign reform bill, and my thought was, "Campaign reform, is she nuts?" She went on her way, and I turned to the legislator next to me—you will remember, Lloyd Mann—and I said, "Who is that woman?"

As time has moved on and I watched Sue's career progress, I have had nothing but great respect for her. Sue Wagner serves as an example as a legislator and as a leader in this state, not only to women and girls, but to all who have observed her—men, women, all Nevadans and anyone else who is interested. I am so pleased that we are recognizing your hard work, Sue.

ASSEMBLYMAN HICKEY:

I, too, rise in support of this resolution. As a former legislative intern myself, I'm honored that Sue Wagner has taken over the reigns, and frankly, somewhat relieved that she wasn't there when I was an intern. I think this resolution is especially noteworthy because, as was stated, it comes near the reception that many of us are attending today as this legislative session nears an end.

ASSEMBLYMAN ERNAUT:

It is a special privilege for me today to be able to stand in support of SCR 34 for my good friend and former Lieutenant Governor Sue Wagner. I think all of us, especially from northern Nevada, know of some of the trials and tribulations that Sue Wagner has endured in her life. To me, she is somebody who exemplifies grit and determination and everything that is right in a public official. She is always happy. She is stubborn. She stands up for what she believes in, and above all, she is probably one of the most honest people I've ever met in my life.

Sue served as a role model and mentor to me and many other people in this body and showed us that there wasn't always a blueprint of how to be a Republican, that there was moderation and there was compromise and there wasn't always a need to dig your heels in for an extreme view.

My father told me something when I first came into this body that has stuck with me. It's something that I think Sue Wagner exemplifies more than any public official that I've ever met. He said, "Leadership is not doing what is popular, but doing what is right and making it popular." Thank you.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN CHOWNING:

I, too, rise in support of SCR 34. It is a privilege for me to stand here and give tribute to a strong presence and role model such as Sue Wagner. I have watched her with great respect. I've learned—I can't tell you how much—from her service. The personal trials that Sue has gone through would have broken many people, but instead of looking at things as problems, Sue looks at them as challenges. She bursts through, breaks down the wall and carries on. What a wonderful tribute it is for our young people that Sue is choosing to continue to be a teacher and role model, and we want to say thank you.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN LAMBERT:

I rise in support of SCR 34. We've all said that Sue is a role model. Well, I can testify from personal experience that she certainly made a difference. When I first ran for office in 1984, it was more unusual to see women running for office. The reputation that she had, the hard work that she performed in this body, made it easier for a lot of us to run. I heard comments when I went door-to-door, "We'll give you a chance. There's another woman in that Legislature that's doing an outstanding job." I have to publicly thank her for that, and I certainly appreciate it.

I think the interns in the intern program have a unique opportunity. They are very fortunate, because when Sue does something, the only way she knows how to do it is at least 150 percent of her effort. They are getting a phenomenal amount of experience and enthusiasm along with a very strong sense of ethics to lead them in that program. I think they realize they are very fortunate, and we certainly realize they are.

Finally, I'd like to pay to Sue what I feel is the ultimate compliment: she is a lady who makes a difference.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

I, too, rise in support of SCR 34. I think it's unfortunate, though, that we had to share this day in honoring Sue Wagner with the likes of a marathon race and exercise and energy demonstration. However, I think to some extent maybe that epitomizes Sue's natural energy and the fact that she is a marathon distance runner in her own right.

People have mentioned the intern program, and I think that it has always been very, very special. But when I first decided to get into the area of politics, my mentor at that time was Eileen Brookman. Eileen shared many stories of working with a fellow peer, both in these halls as well as down the hall. Sometimes we forget that as women, we can be tough, and yes, Mr. Ernaut, we can have grit, but that we also have to prove the difference between assertiveness and aggressiveness. I think Sue has been able to do that. She is a woman who has been able to handle a great deal with grace under much fire. For that, I would like to say thank you as well.

ASSEMBLYMAN HETTRICK:

I obviously rise in support of SCR 34. At a time when so many people who are involved in politics are looked at negatively and the image of people involved in this profession always seems to be one that is denigrated, I think this lady exemplifies what all of us should strive to be and strive to portray—the highest standard of ethics, no question at all of honesty and forthrightness, someone who exhibits every character trait that every one of us should strive to have. I think this lady exemplifies these qualities, so I am proud to rise in support of SCR 34.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

I, also, wish to rise in support of SCR 34. As a schoolteacher, I would feel remiss not to say thank you to Sue Wagner for all the time and caring that she has shown to the children of our state for what she did as a member of this Chamber and of the other Chamber.

When I arrived here in 1991, I was somewhat disappointed to realize the limited involvement that members of the Assembly have with the Lieutenant governor of the state meant that I would very rarely, if ever, see Lieutenant governor Wagner other than as she came down the hall. And, of course, 1991 was a very difficult year for her. In the 1993 session, I received a note one day asking me to come to the Lieutenant governor's office to discuss a license plate bill. Now license plates, of course, have come to be my trademark. I was somewhat curious that the Lieutenant governor would want to have any discussions about license plates; however, she was clearly concerned about a fundraising opportunity for the University System—an opportunity to put out a Wolf Pack license plate and a UNLV license plate. After having a lengthy discussion with Sue over lunch—I had brown bagged that day, and she, of course, had done a similar kind of operation—she looked at me and said, "I can't believe that we're spending this much time with this kind of a little tiny piece of legislation." I responded, of course, "Absolutely, Lieutenant Governor. We'll get this taken care of right away."

This lady is the kind of legislator that all of us hope to be, the kind of person who has the dedication and grit to serve in our state and a model for all of us. It is a pleasure to see her here in our Chamber and to recognize her for her great accomplishments for our state.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

I, too, rise in support of SCR 34. I just want to congratulate Sue and thank her for all of the wonderful work that she has done for the citizens of this great state, and especially for rural Nevada.

ASSEMBLYMAN MARVEL:

Thank you, Sue, for being you. You certainly have been an example to all politicians in the State of Nevada, and you've done your part in trying to dispel the odium that sometimes comes with being a politician. I think this is a most fitting resolution in your honor. Again, thank you for being you, Sue.

Mr. Speaker requested the privilege of the Chair for the purpose of making the following remarks:

With your permission, I would be remiss if I didn't take the opportunity to speak from the rostrum. Sue and I have been friends since 1973, when she came to the Assembly. In 1977, my first term as Speaker, there were 35 Democrats and five Republicans, and Sue used to hold the minority caucus in the phone booth. Since then, it's changed a little bit.

We've worked together on a lot of legislation. We are very close personal friends; our tragedies and our happiness have all come together. As a personal friend, I want to commend you, Sue, and I hope you do well as a member of the Nevada Gaming Commission. And when I come before you, please treat me nicely.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

Assemblywoman Giunchigliani requested that Assemblywoman Cegavske's remarks be entered in the Journal.

On May 2, 1997, Mrs. Teri Cram, wife of Superintendent Brian Cram of the Clark County School District, passed away. Monday, she was laid to rest.

As today is Teacher Appreciation Day, I thought it would be fitting to recognize Teri for the outstanding teacher that she was. I had the privilege of being her room parent for several years, and I also had both of my children in her third-grade classroom. Her compassion and her love of teaching accounted for the success of her students. Teri was known for her hugs. The young men who, in the beginning of the year, would try to run by her or to just shake her hand because they didn't want to be hugged, by the end of the year went to her asking for a hug.

I do believe that a teacher makes a difference in your life, and Teri made a difference in my children's lives and mine, as an adult. Without objection, Mr. Speaker, I would request that we adjourn today in memory of Teri Cram. Thank you.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

ASSEMBLYWOMAN KRENZER:

It is a pleasure for me to introduce today, Dr. Bernard Feldman. Dr. Feldman is the past chairman of the Governor's Advisory Board on Maternal and Child Health. He is currently the president and vice chair of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Nevada School of Medicine, the chair of the Nevada State Board of Health and the president of the Clark County Medical Society.

Dr. Feldman was the first neonatologist in the State of Nevada, and for 20 years, he was the director and pioneer of the Neonatal Center at Sunrise Hospital. He has saved the lives of many, many preemies and single-handedly developed a program that continues today. He is a great humanitarian and my hero. Please make Dr. Feldman feel welcome.

ASSEMBLYMAN NOLAN:

I would also like to mention something about our guest with Ms. Krenzer today. Not many people know that Dr. Feldman was one of the professionals who worked at Bethesda Naval Hospital at the time that John F. Kennedy and Jacqueline Kennedy's first child was born prematurely and rushed to that hospital. He was one of the experts who were sought to come in and treat that child's illnesses. Unfortunately, the Kennedys' first child expired, but as a result of that, Dr. Feldman helped pioneer the use of surfactant, which now saves many children's lives in those same circumstances. We are very fortunate in this state to have somebody of his caliber amongst us and working on our own premature children. Thank you, Dr. Feldman, for all that you've done for the children of this state.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINTH DAY

CARSON CITY (Thursday), May 8, 1997

Assembly called to order at 10:49 a.m.

Mr. Speaker presiding.

Roll called.

All present.

Prayer by the Chaplain, The Reverend Bruce M. Henderson.

I read from both the Hebrew and Christian scriptures: "To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heavens: A time to be born and a time to die; a time to plant and a time to pluck up that which is planted; a time to kill and a time to heal; a time to break down and a time to build up; a time to weep and a time to laugh; a time to mourn and a time to dance;" Ecclesiastes 3:1-4.

Father, today we are reminded of terrible things in the past—of death, of plucking up, of killing, of breaking down, of weeping and of mourning. We now pray for birth, planting, healing, building, laughing and dancing. Please hear us, O Lord. AMEN.

Pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Assemblyman Perkins moved that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Speaker and Chief Clerk be authorized to make the necessary corrections and additions.

Motion carried.

Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 22—Recognizing May 8 as the Day of Remembrance for Victims of the Holocaust and commending Irene Gut Opdyke for her bravery during those years.

WHEREAS, Two-thirds of the Jewish population of Europe were exterminated during World War II and countless other civilians were subjected to brutal anti-Semitic atrocities solely because they were members of a particular faith; and

WHEREAS, In this present time of racial and religious disharmony, it is particularly important to remember the Holocaust and its effects; and

WHEREAS, Few Europeans lived without terror during World War II, including Irene Gut Opdyke, an 18-year-old Polish nursing student of the Catholic faith who lived in Poland and witnessed the persecution and murder of Jews, while she herself was forced to endure vicious attacks, severe beatings and total humiliation at the hands of enemy soldiers; and

WHEREAS, Despite her fear, Irene Gut Opdyke willingly risked her own life to save at least 12 Jews by hiding them for 8 months in the basement of a German-occupied Ukrainian villa where she worked as a housekeeper for a Nazi officer; and

WHEREAS, Irene Gut Opdyke has earned international recognition through the Commission for the Designation of the Righteous and received from Yad Vashem, the most distinguished authority on the Holocaust in Israel, the Medal of Righteousness, an honor awarded to Gentiles who risked their lives to save Jews during the Holocaust; and

WHEREAS, Out of respect for and to ensure remembrance of those who suffered or were killed, Irene Gut Opdyke wrote Into the Flames, The Life Story of a Righteous Gentile, an eyewitness account of the Holocaust; and

WHEREAS, On May 8, our Nation's Capital will observe Yom Hashoah, a memorial day that commemorates the loss of 6 million Jews and countless others because of the Nazi war machine of World War II; and

WHEREAS, On this day, throughout the world, such remembrance ceremonies are held as a lasting tribute to those who perished, and in Israel, a country created as a haven for the survivors of the Holocaust, the entire nation pauses for 2 minutes to honor and remember those who were murdered; and

WHEREAS, Because the Holocaust stands as one of the worst acts of genocide the world has ever seen, deliberately and systematically attempting to destroy an ethnic, religious and cultural group, it must be remembered; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED BY THE ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF NEVADA, THE SENATE CONCURRING, That the members of the 69th Session of the Nevada Legislature do hereby recognize May 8 as Yom Hashoah, a Day of Remembrance for Victims of the Holocaust; and be it further

RESOLVED, That members of the Nevada Legislature honor and commend Irene Gut Opdyke for her bravery during the Holocaust and for her decision to record for posterity her experiences to enable others to know that one person can truly make a difference and to know the collective power of humanity to prevail against injustice; and be it further

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

As the resolution noted, in 1939, Irene Gut Opdyke was an 18-year-old nursing student in Radom, Poland, when Germany invaded. She fled to a Russian-occupied forest in the Ukraine, where she was raped and beaten by Russian soldiers. She was able to briefly reunite with her family in Radom, but while attending church there, she was captured by German soldiers and forced into labor at a German munitions factory.

"That was the first time I witnessed the persecution," she said, recalling the view from a second-story window at the factory. "I saw little children running, and soliders were just shooting them."

Eventually she was recruited by a German major, Eduard Rugemer, to serve as a housekeeper in the officers' compounds near the factory. She also saw a baby thrown in the air and shot like a bird.

The Germans occupied Tarnopol, where she befriended the 12 Jews she would later save. In July of 1943, she overheard Gestapo leaders talking about gutting the ghetto where her friends lived. Desperate, her friends asked Opdyke to hide them. A few days later, Rugemer luckily told her that they would be moving to a nearby villa.

Rumored to have been designed by Jewish architects, the villa featured a hiding space underneath its gazebo. Opdyke led her friends to the hiding place, their sanctuary for the next eight months. She endangered her life to protect the lives of Jews hunted down by the Nazis for destruction. Those she rescued were not of her religious faith, did not recite her catechisms or believe in the doctrines and dogmas of her church. She suffered fear, humiliation, abuse, the threat of death for others, and not because they were parishioners and not even because they were Jews, but because they were human beings, men, women and children created in God's image. Irene is flesh and blood like ourselves, and like tens of thousands of Christian rescuers, part of the group of ordinary people who acted in extraordinary fashion during the hell of Auschwitz and thereby salvaged a spark of decency and hope out of the cremated ashes of the Holocaust.

Ladies and gentlemen, with your respect, I'd like to introduce Irene Gut Opdyke and she would like to make a few comments.

IRENE GUT OPDYKE:

Honored members of the Legislature. Thank you so much for the reception. For me, as an adopted daughter here in this great country, it is a dream come true. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to share with you a story of unbelievable evil, the Holocaust, which also was part of my life.

My luck was that my parents were wonderful. They loved us and they taught us the Ten Commandments. I was alone, trying to study to be a nurse—another Florence Nightingale—and I witnessed Hitler bombarding villages and cities. Some of the streets were barricaded with barbed-wire, and there were so many Nazis—yelling, screaming and shooting. I saw a young SS pull a baby from his mother's arms and throw his head to the ground. Another SS threw a baby in the air and shot it like a bird. I could not understand that.

I was raised in a Catholic home, with a background of upper echelon police intelligence. In my girlfriend's house that night, I lost faith. I accused God, but somehow, in the morning, there was an answer in my soul, in my heart. God gave us free will to be good or bad; all of us have to choose what road we take, the evil one or the good one. I asked God for forgiveness and for the opportunity to help, even if my life depended on it. God gave me that opportunity.

In 1941, the Germans were fighting the Russians. I was working in a munitions factory, but the plant was moving. The Germans and the Nazis were pushing toward the Russian border. I was given the job of serving breakfast, lunch and dinner to the German officers and secretaries. I was also given responsibility for taking care of the laundry room for the officers and secretaries. There I met 12 Jewish people, people like all of us. There was a teacher, lawyer, accountant, dressmaker, tailor, nurse—people now alone, without children, forced to do a job or die. As I was carrying the laundry to them to be washed, we became friends. They trusted me. I wanted to help, but I did not have a home. I was assigned to live in a tiny little room by the diner, and I could not take them there.

At night, when I was serving dinner to the German officers and secretaries, I noticed quite often the local head of the Gestapo sitting with the major at the dinner table. At first, I did not understand when he said, "On Wednesday, don't count on the Jews to come to work." When I realized what it meant, the 12 Jewish people in the laundry room, another Christian girl, an old priest on the edge of town and I created a grapevine information center. I became the ears and the eyes for the persecuted people there; I listened and gave the news. There was a beautiful young Jewish girl my age who was courageous.

I was cleaning the major's office and noticed a stack of papers with a Gestapo stamp which allowed people to go to the ghetto or to town. Some of the papers found a way into my pockets, and I was able to give them to people so that they could go to the ghettos and the work barracks and warn people of planned raids. If they did not go out on days when raids were planned, they would survive; otherwise they would be killed or sent to a concentration camp. People asked me for help, but what could I do? I did not have a home. At this point, a miracle happened. The old major said to me, "I have a villa. You will be my housekeeper." I trusted, given the last-minute opportunities for me, that this was with God's blessing, so I opened the window and the 12 Jews came on to the villa.

It was not easy, but with God's help, we were surviving. There was one woman who was pregnant. We could have performed an abortion, but I could not do it. I saw the little children going to death screaming, "Mama, Mama!" and I could not do it. I pleaded for the life of the baby and told them, "Hilter will not have your baby."

We were surviving. We were helping the people in the forest. A Christian collaborator had a job on a farm, so we had potatoes and some other things that Helen or I would deliver to the forest. But the end was coming. I was in town one day, and suddenly, Gestapo were everywhere. Whoever was in the street—Polish, Ukrainian—were forced to one place. The Gestapo forced us to watch a Polish couple with two little babies and Jewish couple with two children hanging in the middle of the marketplace. There is no way I can tell you how it felt.

When I came to the villa, I was so shaken up that I forgot to close the door. Standing in the kitchen, three Jewish women came out from the cellar as they usually did. We did not even have time to start a conversation—the door opened, and the major was standing right in front of us. He was looking from one of us to another. Without saying one word, he turned around and walked very fast to the library where the telephone was. I knew he would call the head of the Gestapo. I ran, I kneeled down, and kissed his hands. I was pleading and praying. He was a man in his late sixties. Finally, he said, "Irene, I don't want to see you dead, but I have my orders. I will think about it. I'll go to my office. When I come back, I'll give you my decision." When he came out, he was drunk. I was standing in front of him. He pulled me onto his lap. It was not easy, but it was a small price to pay for so many lives, not only those in the villa, but also those in the forest.

The major was happy with me. He did not want to know who else was hiding there. The end was coming. Now the Russians were very close, and the Germans were evacuating. The major said, "If they come any closer, you better get rid of the women." He did not know that he had many other invisible guests. My Christian collaborator traveled about 600 kilometers to get a sleigh and a horse. One of the Jewish men put on the major's uniform and we made three trips to the forest. The men were dead.

Now the time was coming, and the major came back and saw the women. He said, "You get rid of them, or else." He went some place one day and brought back a sleigh and a horse. Everyone was running out of town—Ukrainian, Polish—because the front was coming so close. I loaded the sleigh with luggage and chairs and took the women—we looked like everybody else running out of town. I took them to the forest and I remained with them until March 15, 1944.

The Red Army took that part of the Ukraine, and my friends were free. What a freedom for people who were broken in spirit and in body. But a month later, a little boy was born, a little boy whose life became wonderful for me. His mother did give birth to him in freedom. I saw that little boy in 1993. Jerry Springer made a show, and he invited that little boy. The boy was by then a man, and he came with his children, a boy and a girl. Three generations survived.

In 1992, I was invited to Jerusalem to plant a tree for the Righteous. The Jewish people helped me to escape from Poland because the Russians were after me.

I was in a Jewish DP camp in Germany, when a group of men came from the League of Nations. One of them was an American, Bill Opdyke. I knew six languages, but we did not have one in common, and there was no romance.

When I came to United States in 1949 and became a citizen, I pledged my allegiance to America, to the land of the free. On my second day here, I found work. America did not owe me anything, I owed America. She adopted me. I met Bill Opdyke again in New York. He was then with the United Nations and was a widower. Six weeks later, we were married. The Lord blessed us with a little girl. My husband passed away four years ago.

When I planted the tree in Israel, I made a vow that for the rest of my life, I would travel and speak, primarily to the young people. They are the most important people. They are the future leaders of nations. When I travel and speak to them, even the big macho boys stand in line for hugs and kisses because I speak from my heart. I try to tell them not to hate and that hate does not accomplish anything. It ruins your life, your family and your country. Reach out. You're lucky. You're in school with children from all nationalities. Learn from each other; reach for each other. You must. If you don't do that, there will never be peace.

For 20 years I have travelled and tried to teach people that human beings and the link between our past and our present are most important. I'm trying to teach children that they have a responsibility to reach out to each other and to ignore the hate mongers. I tell them to reach out regardless of nationality, religion, color or creed. We all belong to one human family.

Gentlemen and ladies, we are getting old; soon we will not be here. Give us the opportunity to speak because it makes a difference. I know this beyond a shadow of a doubt because I travel from one end of the United States to the other. I don't go only to big places. I go where other speakers don't want to go, but where there are always children. I want to unite our people because America is worth it—it is the most wonderful country. What other country has so many different nationalities? We have to teach our children love and understanding. We parents have to be the models in order for children to learn to do the right thing. This is important, and I want to do this for the rest of my life. My husband was a politician all his life. He would be very proud of me today for standing here. His grandfather was the first Republican mayor of New York City, and during the Tammany Hall events, he lost because he fought Tammany Hall.

Thank you. Thank you so much for the honor you extend to me. Thank you. God Bless you all.

ASSEMBLY IN SESSION

Madam Speaker pro Tempore presiding.

Quorum present.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 5.

Resolution read third time.

Remarks by Assemblymen Giunchigliani, Freeman, Hettrick, Carpenter, Price, Close, Humke, Dini, Hickey, Anderson and Williams.

Assemblyman Price requested that the following remarks be entered in the Journal.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 5 proposes to amend the Constitution of the State of Nevada to provide for annual, regular sessions of the Nevada Legislature. The measure replaces biennial sessions of unlimited length with annual sessions of no more than 120 calendar days in odd-numbered years, and no more than 45 calendar days in even-numbered years. Any legislative action taken at the end of the prescribed period is void.

Further, the measure requires regular sessions to commence on the first Monday of March each year. The governor must also provide the legislature with the proposed executive budget in odd-numbered years, and any proposed appropriations or budget revisions in even-numbered years not later than 30 days before the session convenes. The resolution also limits any special session of the legislature to 20 calendar days and specifies that any legislative action taken after that time is void.

Further, the measure permits the legislature to petition the governor to call a special session. Such a petition must set forth the topics for consideration and must be signed by at least two-thirds of the members elected to the House. Upon receipt of the qualified petition, the governor must convene the legislature within 45 days.

Finally, AJR 5 requires the sample ballot explanation of this constitutional amendment to include a statement that the measure allows legislators to receive compensation for each calendar day of service up to the constitutional maximum of 60 days for each regular annual session. If approved in identical form by the legislature in both 1997 and 1999, the proposal will be submitted to the voters for final approval or disapproval at the general election in the year 2000.

Thank you, Madam Speaker pro Tempore.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN FREEMAN:

I rise in support of AJR 5. I've had very mixed feelings on this issue over the years, but given the size of the state and the types of issues we're dealing with this particular session, I've decided that going to annual sessions is really imperative for us to be able to plan for the future. I just think it would make our process a lot easier and a lot more effective. I plan to vote for it.

ASSEMBLYMAN HETTRICK:

I rise in opposition to AJR 5. Madam Speaker pro Tempore, it is my opinion that by doing this in this fashion, we virtually guarantee that special sessions will have to be called. It guarantees, the way the Constitution is written, that we would be paid for every special session. It increases our pay by the 45 days of the second session each year. I have no problem with increasing our pay — I would be happy to vote for that. I have a problem with doing it in the fashion of increasing the days to get it. I think it virtually guarantees we would have to have special sessions because the law says that anything you do after the limited day is null and void. If you could not finish business, for whatever reason, up to the twelfth hour of that day, then you must call a special session just to finish. If that happened to be the budget, you'd have no choice. I oppose that.

Mention was just made about the size of Nevada. Texas is far larger than Nevada, and they don't have annual sessions; they have biennial sessions. I believe our system works very well now, and I would urge my colleagues to vote against this resolution.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

I, too, rise in opposition to AJR 5. I believe that AJR 5 would increase the number of days we would be here by 37 percent, either by the amendment to the Constitution that we passed last time or by the measure that Mr. Price has always introduced to this House, which called for a 60-day annual session. I believe that this measure increases that time by 45 days, or 37 percent. I really believe that the people of Nevada would like us to be here less time, not more.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

I would like to clarify some of the points discussed in committee this time. We pondered this differently this time around. We took the citizens' recommendation from the Utah plan that had been done by a task force chaired by former Senator Ashworth and tried to look at what the unique need is in the State of Nevada now. We're growing by leaps and bounds, and not just in Clark County. You have the same impetus and problems from Elko to Alamo, all across the state.

The reason we did a two-tiered approach was to accommodate the fact that we can't do business now in 120 days. We're ahead of schedule right now, in this house at least, as far as our budget process, but we'll be here well beyond 120 days. It's time to be responsible and take a look at the fact that if we can't do it every two years in 120 days, it is reasonable to set up a two-tiered approach: 120 days. Any action after that is void, but that way we get the budget earlier. It calls for the 30-day notice ahead of time and it requires the executive branch to have more public input because we will convene in March, which would be later so that more citizens can run for office—that was another component.

The 45 days in the second year means that we won't have to always redo an entire budget. Hopefully, we will only be responding to revisions and growth needs and those types of considerations. I think it's rather ironic that some of the individuals that may be arguing against this are also arguing that we should have a vote of the people in many other areas. All this is asking is that we be able, for once, to have the House pass this; to put it on the ballot so at least the public can have some say, one way or another, on the issue of whether or not we should have annual sessions. I have to say, to infer that the reason for this is to have an increase in our "wonderful" salaries is an irresponsible remark.

I think the amendment that we put forth very clearly stated that if you work for 60 days, you get paid for 60 days. Other than that, there is no increase in salary; that is already in the Constitution, and we work well beyond the 60 days for which we are compensated. I think that this bill is a very clean, more tiered approach which will give the public an opportunity to recognize the unique needs that we have grown into in this state that our forefathers—and unfortunately not foresisters or mothers—did not have to craft within the Constitution. Thank you, Madam Speaker pro Tempore.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I certainly enjoyed the comments on the proposed annual sessions. I, too, would like to speak to some of the comments that were made by my colleagues in opposition and also in favor.

A few days ago I put a little book on all of your desks. It has comprehensive information in it that I have gathered over the years about how the citizens feel about annual sessions, what other states do, and so forth. For whatever it's worth, in every poll that has been done for years now by our university system, the citizens of Nevada do favor going to annual sessions. When you talk to a lot of citizens, and, recently, even citizens coming from other states, they wonder how Nevada still operates in the manner that we do. In actual fact, there are only about three states that have been truly operating—even when you look at their constitutions, like Texas—on a true biennial session. What some states do is recess and come back the next year to handle matters. Some come back into regular special sessions and so forth.

I also had this little list that I put on your desks for my colleagues who feel that you cannot get business done in what would be proposed 175 days—which, by the way, I think is a little longer than is absolutely necessary. In New Hampshire, in the last two regular sessions, the total of both sessions was 49 days. They do their session in about 23 or 24 days. Wyoming, the last two regular sessions, a total of 56 days. North Dakota, one regular, one special session, 70 days. Delaware, one regular session, 49 days. South Dakota, two regular sessions, two special sessions, 78 days. Georgia, two regular, one special session, 100 days. Alabama, two regular and three special sessions in 89 days, and the list goes on and on and on.

I had the privilege many years ago to visit Utah, and it was when I first started thinking about annual sessions. I went with former Speaker Ashworth's committee, that he was chairing at that time, which gave a report called "Prospects for Greatness." It was a citizens' committee that looked at a lot of the operations of our state and the legislature. They came back with some excellent recommendations, some of which we've adopted and some we haven't. In Utah they have annual 45-day sessions and the budget is generally the key item. We have started doing a little bit of what they have been doing for many years now. They have identical committees in the Senate and the Assembly; then, for instance, on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, those committees jointly will hear the budget matters. If you are in transportation and hearing all of the stuff that comes under the department of transportation and so forth, the agency talks to both Houses at the same time. You're not getting one story one day in the Assembly Ways and Means and another story from the same people at Senate Finance. They wrap that whole thing up in 45 days. This particular subject matter has gone to the Supreme Court of the United States—where states, unlike ours, leave it open. In those states you can't do any of the tricks that we did in the old days such as covering the clock and saying it isn't really 12 o'clock. If your constitution says that it is the end of the legislative process, then that's when you stop. If you try to play any games to get something passed after that, then it is clearly unconstitutional.

One point I would make is that when you are bound by your constitution, as we would be under this, you will get done. Basically, because we're all humans, we do what we have to do. Many years ago one of our former, very fine senators spearheaded the creation of the Interim Finance Committee. We meet about every 45 days and take all kinds of actions. If we have approved money to an agency and they have to change it to another account, they appear before the Interim Finance Committee. The Interim Finance Committee, or the equivalent, in state after state has been challenged and has been found to be unconstitutional. The Interim Finance Committee was created primarily to avoid going to annual sessions, but what it does is transfers our power, our authority as an Assembly and our authority as a Senate, to a subcommittee. You cannot transfer the authority that voters have placed in us to some subcommittee. In addition, a subcommittee is not balanced. The Supreme Court has ruled that a legislative body must be one person, one vote. We have transferred that to a "sub" body, and it has been challenged in many states and knocked down as unconstitutional. I've never chosen—I've thought about it but I've never chosen, as long as I've wanted annual sessions—to actually challenge the legality. I would rather see it go to a vote of the people and through the regular constitutional process.

Last week someone made a statement on a TV show I was doing on annual sessions, and I think they said it all. They said Nevada is a state that has full-time needs and full-time problems and a part-time legislature.

ASSEMBLYMAN CLOSE:

I rise in support of AJR 5. During our last session, I also supported a similar resolution. As I use my simple mathematics, 120 and 45 adds up to 165 days. That would still be less than the number of days we spent here in our last legislative session, so I don't think that we're going any further than what we have demonstrated in the past. We also tried, within this bill, to start later in the year—starting in March as opposed to January—which gives us an additional two months in preparation time.

As many members of this body know, the biggest thing that drives this session is the budget aspect of what we have to deal with. We are, as my other colleague from Ways and Means described, ahead of schedule at this time. I think that if we started in March, we'd have greater preparation time, not only for each one of us but also for our freshmen, who need to have that learning curve to catch up to those things which we do within this body. I think also, as has already been stated, if we have the budget earlier than right now, it would help us to evaluate the budget before we get here and therefore have certain things accomplished.

I also think, Madam Speaker pro Tem, that the biggest factor is that we'll refine the process. I strongly believe that we fill the time that's available to us. I am of the belief this session should have been out by June 1. I know there are those who might disagree, but I still think we could have done that if we really were put under the gun to get it done. I think that if we have 120 days, we'll get it done in 120 days. I do not think that we're going to get into a situation where we won't get our job done.

Another aspect that might be looked at is that many of us are blessed to have arrangements in our homes and in our businesses that allow us to be here for 165 or so many days every other year. But there are many out there who would like to be here as a citizen legislator who cannot spend that type of time, but possibly, they could spend the 120 days and then the 45 days. I believe that this would increase the cadre of citizen legislators that would be available to this body to serve, and I would urge your support.

ASSEMBLYMAN HUMKE:

I rise to reluctantly oppose the measure. I have voted both ways in my legislative career on these measures, which are always sponsored by the chief sponsor of this measure. This measure has many good things in it that have not always appeared before, so it is a close question. I will get to a couple of those in a second.

I feel that the basic problem is that the measure is premature. It is premature, first of all, because the legislative process in Nevada needs additional reform. The previous speakers spoke about the budget process. I feel that that is where additional reform is still needed. We have made great strides—thanks, incidentally, to the tireless work of you, Madam Speaker pro Tem—in the budget reform process, and that is a mosaic that is continuing and needs to continue further. To sort of wrap up this point, I feel that the thing that will speed up our budget process the most is a legislative budget office.

This session happens to be a good example of one in which the chief executive has inadvertently caused a certain amount of delay in the budgetary process. We all have seen many innovative programs that are on the desk. In many of those, we're still awaiting further detail or we're awaiting some initial detail. I don't mean to show disrespect to the current incumbent, the chief executive. In my experience, this has been an inherent problem with chief executives in this state in reaction to the legislative process.

The next reason why this measure is premature is that there is another pending resolution—call it a competing resolution—but it is ahead of this one chronologically. That is the one that I believe was generated by the Senate, calling for a 120-day biennial limited session. If this measure goes through the legislative process, I think it will confuse the people because the other resolution is out there.

Finally, I think that there is a false economy of legislative time that is sought by this resolution. The Minority Leader spoke of the possibility of rampant special sessions under this measure. In my experience in talking with legislators around the West who the chief sponsor referred to, many of those states have limited off-year sessions in which they deal mostly with the budget or limited matters. But they also have numerous, numerous special sessions, and I don't feel that that's a good policy.

ASSEMBLYMAN DINI:

I rise in support of the resolution. I don't think we just picked 120 days out of a hat and said, "Let's try 120 days." I've had a little experience in operating this House. This is my seventh term as Speaker. I think I have the background to tell you that if you can get that budget done in less than 90 days, you're going to be standing on your head and working every weekend to do it. Once you get the budget heard, you need a couple of weeks to close it and you need a week to get the Appropriations Act out and all these things put together, and you can't do it in less than 120 days. That's just practical management.

The 45-day session will allow us to review certain parts of the budget. It will put less emphasis on the Interim Finance Committee. By the way, Mr. Price, I chaired the committee on "Prospect for Greatness."

The other thing I'd like to say is that we're going to vote in 1997, we're going to vote on this again in 1999, and the voters get to make the selection in the year 2000. The first annual session wouldn't start until 2002, so we're planning for the future. The way that it is growing, this state will have 2,000,000 people by 2002. I don't think we do a good job of taking care of local problems in a short session. As you know, it takes us 169 days now. If you have 120 days certain, you start the budget process earlier, you get out of here in 120 days. I think it has a lot of advantages, and the real advantage is the small session in between which allows you to come in and clarify things, bring things up to date, take care of a few problems that you may have and go back home.

I think it's a good compromise. I'll tell you this. I cannot vote for a bill that just says 120 days every two years. That is absolutely ludicrous. It will not work, and nobody will be able to serve when you get done with that one because you can't do the job for the people that sent you here.

ASSEMBLYMAN HICKEY:

I rise in opposition to this bill because I think going to annual sessions will significantly change one quality that Nevada has maintained and which contributes to the kind of state that we have and that is the quality of our citizen legislature. I disagree with my colleague from District 15 who says that this measure would allow those folks from the private sector to more easily serve. Combined with not only serving each year, and the additional campaign time that is required every off year, I think you would minimize the participation of persons from the private sector. I believe the other measures ought to be tried, and for that reason, I'll be voting against this measure.

ASSEMBLYMAN ANDERSON:

I rise in support of the piece of legislation. I really kind of hoped to keep quiet on this particular issue because I'm sure we will talk it to death. I'm distressed when I hear that we're not going to trust the people to be able to make a choice about what they want to do. In the committee in which I serve as chair, we frequently hear from governmental bodies of the inability for the legislature to respond in a forthright manner to issues that come before the courts relative to the disposition of real issues that are of real concern to people on a day-to-day basis. The reason that we can't respond in a quick fashion is because we're not here. This bill, I believe, will at least set in front of the people two basic things: one, do they want their citizen legislature to be here every year to respond to their needs or not; and two, should we limit the amount of time?

We have heard already that 120 days is the least amount of time in which we can do this job. Now, I don't think anybody is going to complain, at least in the public sector, if we get out of here in less than 120 days. I have real difficulty believing that. So if we can do it faster, then we will, but we know what we believe is the minimum level, and if we can do it faster, then I think we'll have an opportunity to serve the people of this state well. Give them a chance to vote.

REMARKS FROM THE FLOOR

ASSEMBLYMAN ERNAUT:

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to introduce my students as they are going up to the podium. They are from the Elizabeth Lenz Elementary School, which actually sits on the border between my district and the district of my colleague, Mr. Humke. We have with us Katie Phillipi, who is in sixth grade, and she is a class representative, and Kevin Clement, who is the president of the student council, and he is also in sixth grade. They have a resolution that they'd like to read to all of us today.

KATIE PHILLIPI:

Whereas, the Elizabeth Lenz Student Council representatives acted as advocates against youth access to tobacco through a National PTA sponsored program called Stop the Sale, Prevent the Addiction; and

Whereas, representatives displayed anti-tobacco use posters throughout the school and reported facts and statistics about the dangers of all tobacco use on the Lenz Morning News broadcast; and

Whereas, more than ten Student Council representatives performed skits about chewing tobacco, fake identification cards, tobacco's effect on sports and school, what it does to your breath, what tobacco use can lead to such as alcohol and drugs; and

Whereas, Lenz Student Council representatives are here today to commend the Nevada State Assembly for their commitment to making youth access to tobacco more difficult; and

Whereas, we represent the voices of many children and adults of Nevada who ask that you continue working hard to Stop the Sale and Prevent the Addiction; now therefore, be it

Resolved, that as you finish the 69th session of the Nevada State Legislature, Lenz Student Council is confident that you will keep us in mind when considering matters dealing with tobacco use; and be it further Resolved, that the Lenz Student Council hereby presents a Certificate of Thanks to both the Nevada State Senate and the Nevada State Assembly.

KEVIN CLEMENT:

We would like to present this plaque for your great efforts in "Stop the Sale, Prevent the Addiction."

Mr. Speaker requested the privilege of the Chair for the purpose of making the following remarks:

Thank you so much. We are very honored that you came over today and made this presentation. We'd like to see you kids just continue the political career you've started here today. You probably could get everybody to vote for your resolution, I'll bet, if we tried hard, huh? Thank you very much for coming.

"Sec. 7. 1. The board of county commissioners of any county may by ordinance, but not as in a case of emergency, impose a tax for infrastructure pursuant to this section and section 8 of this act.

2. An ordinance enacted pursuant to this chapter may not become effective before a question concerning the imposition of the tax is approved by a two-thirds majority of the members of the board of county commissioners. Any proposal to increase the rate of the tax or change the previously approved uses for the proceeds of the tax must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the members of the board of county commissioners. The board of county commissioners shall not change a previously approved use for the proceeds of the tax to a use that is not authorized for that county pursuant to section 14 of this act.

3. An ordinance enacted pursuant to this section must specify the date on which the tax must first be imposed or on which an increase in the rate of the tax becomes effective, which must occur on the first day of the first month of the next calendar quarter that is at least 60 days after the date on which a two-thirds majority of the board of county commissioners approved the question.

4. An ordinance enacted pursuant to this chapter in a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which a water authority exists must expire by limitation 10 years after the date on which the tax is first imposed.

5. Before the board of county commissioners enacts an ordinance pursuant to this chapter, the board of county commissioners and the water authority shall hold a public hearing regarding the imposition of a tax for infrastructure. Notice of the time and place of the hearing must be:

(a) Published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county at least once a week for the 2 consecutive weeks immediately preceding the date of the hearing. Such notice must be a display advertisement of not less than 3 inches by 5 inches.

(b) Posted at the building in which the meeting is to be held and at not less than three other separate, prominent places within the county at least 2 weeks before the date of the hearing.

6. Before enacting an ordinance pursuant to this chapter, the board of county commissioners of a county whose population is less than 400,000 or a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which no water authority exists, shall develop a plan for the expenditure of the proceeds of a tax imposed pursuant to this chapter for the purposes set forth in section 14 of this act. The plan may include a regional project for which two or more such counties have entered into an interlocal agreement to expend all or a portion of the proceeds of a tax imposed in each county jointly pursuant to this chapter. Such a plan must include, without limitation, the date on which the plan expires, a description of each proposed project, the method of financing each project and the costs related to each project. The board of county commissioners shall hold at least one public hearing on the plan. Notice of the time and place of the hearing must be provided in the manner set forth in subsection 5. The plan must be approved by the board of county commissioners at a public hearing. On or before the date on which a plan expires, the board of county commissioners shall adopt, in the manner prescribed in this subsection, a new plan for the expenditure of the proceeds of the tax imposed pursuant to this chapter for the purposes set forth in section 14 of this act.

Sec. 8. An ordinance enacted pursuant to this chapter must include provisions in substance as follows:

1. A provision imposing a tax upon retailers at the rate of not more than one-quarter of 1 percent of the gross receipts of any retailer from the sale of all tangible personal property sold at retail, or stored, used or otherwise consumed, in the county.

2. Provisions substantially identical to those contained in chapter 374 of NRS, insofar as applicable.

3. A provision that all amendments to chapter 374 of NRS after the date of enactment of the ordinance, not inconsistent with this chapter, automatically become a part of an ordinance enacted pursuant to this chapter.

4. A provision stating the specific purpose for which the proceeds of the tax must be expended.

5. A provision that the county shall contract before the effective date of the ordinance with the department to perform all functions incident to the administration or operation of the tax in the county.

6. A provision that exempts from the tax or any increase in the tax the gross receipts from the sale of, and the storage, use or other consumption in a county of, tangible personal property used for the performance of a written contract for the construction of an improvement to real property, entered into on or before the effective date of the tax or the increase in the tax, or for which a binding bid was submitted before that date if the bid was afterward accepted, if under the terms of the contract or bid the contract price or bid amount cannot be adjusted to reflect the imposition of the tax or the increase in the tax.

Sec. 9. 1. All fees, taxes, interest and penalties imposed and all amounts of tax required to be paid to the counties pursuant to this chapter must be paid to the department in the form of remittances payable to the department.

2. The department shall deposit the payments with the state treasurer for credit to the sales and use tax account in the state general fund.

3. The state controller, acting upon the collection data furnished by the department, shall monthly:

(a) Transfer from the sales and use tax account to the appropriate account in the state general fund a percentage of all fees, taxes, interest and penalties collected pursuant to this chapter during the preceding month as compensation to the state for the cost of collecting the taxes. The percentage to be transferred pursuant to this paragraph must be the same percentage as the percentage of proceeds transferred pursuant to paragraph (a) of subsection 3 of NRS 374.785 but the percentage must be applied to the proceeds collected pursuant to this chapter only.

(b) Determine for each county an amount of money equal to any fees, taxes, interest and penalties collected in or for that county pursuant to this chapter during the preceding month, less the amount transferred to the state general fund pursuant to paragraph (a). (c) Transfer the amount determined for each county to the intergovernmental fund and remit the money:

(1) In each county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which a water authority exists, to the treasurer for the water authority.

(2) In each county whose population is less than 400,000 or each county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which no water authority exists, to the county treasurer.

Sec. 10. The department may redistribute any fee, tax, penalty and interest to:

1. A county whose population is less than 400,000 or a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which no water authority exists; or

2. The water authority in a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which a water authority exists, that is entitled thereto, but no such redistribution may be made as to amounts originally distributed more than 6 months before the date on which the department obtains knowledge of the improper distribution.

Sec. 11. An ordinance amending the ordinance enacted pursuant to section 7 of this act must include a provision in substance that the county shall amend the contract made pursuant to subsection 5 of section 8 of this act by a contract made between the county and the state acting by and through the department before the effective date of the amendatory taxing ordinance, unless the county determines with the written concurrence of the department that no such amendment of the contract is necessary or desirable.

Sec. 12. 1. In a county whose population is less than 400,000 or a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which no water authority exists, the county treasurer shall deposit the money received from the state controller pursuant to section 9 of this act in the county treasury for credit to a fund to be known as the infrastructure fund. The infrastructure fund must be accounted for as a separate fund and not as a part of any other fund. The money for each project included in the plan adopted pursuant to subsection 6 of section 7 must be accounted for separately in the fund.

2. In a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which a water authority exists, the water authority shall deposit the money received from the state controller pursuant to section 9 of this act in a separate account of the water authority to be known as the infrastructure fund. This fund must be accounted for as a separate fund and not as part of any other fund of the water authority.

Sec. 13. 1. In a county whose population is 400,000 or more and in which a water authority exists, the water authority may enter into an interlocal agreement with a city or town located in the county whose territory is not within the boundaries of the area served by the water authority or with an entity in the county which provides water or wastewater services and which is not a member of the water authority to provide a distribution from the infrastructure fund of the water authority to the city, town or entity after the city, town or entity has submitted to the water authority a detailed plan for acquiring, establishing, constructing, improving or equipping, or any combination thereof, a water or wastewater facility. No such distribution may be made as to proceeds of the tax for infrastructure collected more than 6 months before the date of the request for a distribution.

2. Such a city, town or entity may request annually from the infrastructure fund of the water authority an amount of the proceeds of the tax for infrastructure received annually by the water authority that is equal to the proportion that the assessed valuation of taxable property within the boundaries of the city or town or the area served by the entity, except any assessed valuation attributable to the net proceeds of minerals, bears to the total assessed valuation of taxable property within the county, except any assessed valuation attributable to the net proceeds of minerals. If the boundaries of such a city or town overlap with the boundaries of an entity in such a county which provides water or wastewater services and which is not a member of the water authority, the water authority shall apportion equally between the city or town and the entity the distribution from the infrastructure fund attributable to the assessed valuation in the area where the boundaries overlap.

3. The water authority shall not unreasonably refuse a request from such a city, town or entity for a distribution from the infrastructure fund pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 14. The money in the infrastructure fund, including interest and any other income from the fund:

1. more projects for which the board of county commissioners has imposed all or a portion of the tax authorized pursuant to this chapter, or any combination of the tax proceeds, generated revenue or security proceeds, to secure the payment of any bond or security issued pursuant to this chapter.

2. Any money pledged to the payment of bonds or other securities pursuant to subsection 1 may be treated as pledged revenues of the project for the purposes of subsection 3 of NRS 350.020.

Sec. 17. 1. On or before December 31 of each year, a county or water authority that receives money from the state controller pursuant to section 9 of this act shall submit a written report to the director of the legislative counsel bureau for transmission to:

Sec. 18. Chapter 268 of NRS is hereby amended by adding thereto a new section to read as follows:

1. In a county whose population is 400,000 or more, the governing body of a city that owns a municipal water system may, if requested by a water authority, impose an excise tax on the use of water in an amount sufficient to ensure the payment, wholly or in part, of obligations incurred by the water authority to acquire, establish, construct, improve or equip, or any combination thereof, a water facility. The tax must be imposed by ordinance on customers of the municipal water system that are capable of using or benefiting from the water facility financed, wholly or in part, with the proceeds of the tax.

2. An excise tax imposed pursuant to subsection 1 may be levied at different rates for different classes of customers or to take into account differences in the amount of water used or estimated to be used or the size of the connection.

3. The ordinance imposing the tax must provide:

(a) The rate or rates of the tax;

(b) The procedure for collection of the tax;

(c) The duration of the tax; and

(d) The rate of interest that will be charged on late payments.

4. Late payments of the tax must bear interest at a rate not exceeding 1 percent per month, or fraction thereof. The tax due is a perpetual lien against the property served by the water on whose use the tax is imposed until the tax and any interest that may accrue thereon are paid. Collection of the tax may be enforced in any manner authorized by law for the collection of unpaid water bills. In addition to all other methods available to enforce payment of the tax, the city, by ordinance, may provide that it will be collected in the same manner as delinquent taxes are collected pursuant to NRS 268.043 for sewerage charges.

5. As used in this section:

(a) "Water facility" means a facility pertaining to a water system for the collection, transportation, treatment, purification and distribution of water, including, without limitation, springs, wells, ponds, lakes, water rights, other raw water sources, basin cribs, dams, spillways, retarding basins, detention basins, reservoirs, towers and other storage facilities, pumping plants, infiltration galleries, filtration plants, purification systems, other water treatment facilities, waterworks plants, pumping stations, gauging stations, ventilating facilities, stream gauges, rain gauges, valves, standpipes, connections, hydrants, conduits, flumes, sluices, canals, channels, ditches, pipes, lines, laterals, service pipes, force mains, submains, siphons, other water transmission and distribution mains, engines, boilers, pumps, meters, apparatus, tools, equipment, fixtures, structures, buildings and other facilities for the acquisition, transportation, treatment, purification and distribution of untreated water or potable water for domestic, commercial and industrial use and irrigation, or any combination thereof.

(b) "Water authority" means a water authority organized as a public agency or entity created by cooperative agreement pursuant to chapter 277 of NRS whose members at the time of formation include the three largest retail water purveyors in the county and which is responsible for the acquisition, treatment and delivery of water and water resources on a wholesale basis to utilities, governmental agencies and entities and other large customers.

Sec. 19. Chapter 167, Statutes of Nevada 1947, as last amended by chapter 631, Statutes of Nevada 1993, at page 2643, is hereby amended by adding a new section to be designated as section 28, immediately following section 27, to read as follows:

Sec. 28. 1. At the request of the Southern Nevada Water Authority, to pay all or any part of the cost to acquire, establish, construct, improve or equip, or any combination thereof, one or more water facilities, the board of directors of the district may impose an excise tax on the use of water in an amount sufficient to ensure the payment, wholly or in part, of obligations incurred by the Southern Nevada Water Authority. The tax must be imposed as a rate or charge pursuant to the procedures for adopting a schedule of rates and charges set forth in section 9.2 on customers of the water system of the district that are capable of using or benefiting from the water facilities financed, wholly or in part, with the proceeds of the tax.

2. An excise tax imposed pursuant to subsection 1 may be levied at different rates for different classes of customers or to take into account differences in the amount of water used or estimated to be used or the size of the connection.

3. The schedule imposing the rate or charge must provide:

(a) The amount of the rate or charge;

(b) The procedure for collection of the rate or charge;

(c) The duration of the rate or charge; and

(d) The rate of interest that will be charged on late payments.

In addition to all other methods available to enforce payment of the tax, the district may provide that it will be collected in the same manner as delinquent taxes are collected pursuant to NRS 268.043 for sewerage charges.

ASSEMBLYMAN DINI:

Madam Speaker pro Tem, members of the House and our guests. It is a privilege for me to talk about my friend, Keith Ashworth. I remember the first day I met him in 1967. We served our first session together in the old Capitol Building. At that time, pre-session orientation amounted to getting on a bus and being taken around to see the historic sites and the restaurants in Carson City. Keith got off the bus, walked up to me and said, "Joe, I want to shake your hand. I'm one of those Clark County so-and-sos, but I'm not a bad guy." And he proved that.

Keith was a native Nevadan. He grew up in Ely and then went into the Air Force. Keith was in the accounting business in Las Vegas with his brother. Later on, he was a lobbyist and worked for Nevada Power Company.

I was talking to Mouryne the other day, and she said that Keith hired her for the Chief Clerk's job in 1973. A little joke between them was that she had said to him, "Well, I have never been Chief Clerk so I don't know if I can handle it or not." And Keith said to her, "Well, you don't have to worry. I've never been Speaker, either, but they won't know what we're doing, and we can always call a recess." That was his theory.

Keith gave me the training and the background to be in a leadership position. He gave me the privilege of leadership in 1973 when I served as Speaker pro Tem, and then in 1975, he allowed me to serve as Majority Leader. I also served as Chairman of the Committee on Government Affairs under Keith. I think Keith had a style of his own. If he trusted you, he would give you the shirt off his back, and that's the way he treated me as a committee chairman. He never came to me in Government Affairs and told me that I had to pass this bill or kill that bill. He trusted me to do the job for the citizens of Nevada, and that is all that interested him. I hope that I have relayed that same style to my chairmen.

Mrs. Brookman made a blooper one day and called Keith "Mr. Spooker." That stayed with him for a good number of years. I understand that the first session Keith was Speaker, the Sergeant at Arms he hired had long hair. Keith took him to his barber in Las Vegas for a haircut.

Keith worked on some tough legislation and he did the things that were right. He was the chairman of the Legislative Commission the year we did TRPA. He went out of his way to do a good job, and when he was in this House, he was an outstanding leader. He certainly helped us through some tough times in the '60s and early '70s with his leadership.

The thing that Keith really liked to do best was to come here every morning and give me some advice about how I ought to run the session. That was always kind of funny. I don't have that this year; maybe that's why we're going a little slower. Keith would also go to see the Chief Clerk and give her his advice on what I ought to be doing.

When we had the old roll call board in Chambers, Keith thought he was the only guy who could fix it. When it was originally installed, Keith was Speaker and he learned how to make a few adjustments when it went out; so if it went out, he'd come running down here to fix it. Now we don't have a fixer, and instead of the old board, we've got this thing—and we don't know whether it's going to work or not every time we punch it.

Keith and I had great experiences together in life, both professionally and as friends. On behalf of the Assembly, I would like to extend our regards to Keith's family.

Although the pain of your loss will never go away, we hope that time will ease your grief. We're so happy you came here with us, and we hope that everybody supports the resolution.

ASSEMBLYMAN GOLDWATER:

I rise in support of ACR 24. Keith Ashworth was a fine gentleman. I've known him most of my life. When I got involved in politics, he was one of the first people to call and congratulate me. He asked to talk and meet with me, and I was extremely nervous. Keith's smile, his tone of voice and his mannerisms made me feel like everything would be okay. He was a fine gentleman, a true Nevadan and generally a great guy.

ASSEMBLYMAN PRICE:

I am pleased to have the opportunity to say a few words about Keith, of whom I, and many others, were so very fond. In addition to echoing the Speaker on what a great legislator Keith was, I'll have to tell you about my first political beginnings with Keith.

As most of my colleagues and friends know, I came out of the labor movement.

When I was first elected in 1974, Keith had been the Speaker the prior session and was attempting—and he did, in fact, make some history—to become the first legislator, the first House member in our state to serve as Speaker two times in a row. Historically, Nevada had had a Speaker for one session only up until Keith, and later, of course, Mr. Dini. Keith was vying to become Speaker for the second time. As I indicated, I came out of labor, and Chet Christensen, another very fine assemblyman who recently passed away, was also vying to be Speaker. Chet, of course, had the labor background, and the labor people were backing Chet. Now, I knew nothing; I had driven to Carson City and I knew nothing about politics. I thought, "Well, if my labor buddies were supporting Chet Christensen, whoever he is, well, he must be the person." I came up here and I supported Chet; Keith, of course, had more than adequate votes and became Speaker. Keith did a great service for me, and I say this jokingly, but it worked out so well. He appointed me to probably the most important committee to the City of North Las Vegas, the Agriculture Committee. As things always have a way of working out, Senator Hickey was chairing the Agriculture Committee that year. He was a person who always believed in taking hearings around the state and going out and meeting Nevadans in all the various cities. In actual fact, this became the first time that I actually got to know Nevada by going to all of the towns—Winnemucca, Elko, and Ely and everyplace else—and so it was really, in the final analysis, a wonderful experience. Keith, of course, went over to the Senate and was an excellent senator.

I can tell you that all of us who worked with Keith had nothing but the highest respect for him. Nevada is fortunate to have had someone of his caliber serving us for those years, and I certainly strongly support ACR 24.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARPENTER:

I, too, stand in support of ACR 24. When I came to the Assembly, I was strictly a novice. Keith Ashworth and I had some roots back to rural Nevada, both graduating from White Pine High School. Whenever I asked Keith for advice, he gave it to me truthfully and just the way it was. I'll always remember him as a great gentleman and a real friend.

ASSEMBLYMAN PERKINS:

I, too, rise in support of the resolution. Like our colleague from Elko, I certainly appreciated Mr. Ashworth's candor and his approach whenever you had a question for him.

The one thing I do remember most about Keith, however, is his compassion. Away from this body, I had an opportunity to interact with Keith as it related to a power issue. During my service as a police officer, we happened across a family who was using power in a way that is not quite legal in our state, but they did it because, number one, they did not have the funds to pay their bill, and number two, they had a small child that needed the power for a machine that actually kept the child alive. When I contacted Keith in regard to that situation, he was very helpful; he made contact with the family for me and actually rectified their situation so that that child could have the power that it needed for the equipment that sustained his life.

We have folks here that have many, many memories of Keith and the things he contributed to our state. The resolution says it best. Keith will go down in our history as one of the great legislators of our time.

Thank you, Madam Speaker pro Tem.

ASSEMBLYMAN MARVEL:

I, too, rise in support of ACR 24. It was a pleasure to serve with Keith, not only in the Legislature, but also to have Keith out in the halls as a lobbyist. My son also had the pleasure of serving with Keith on the Nevada Tax Commission.

I will always remember that Keith was quite a gourmet chef during the sessions. Senator Glaser and I used to save these little goodies from our brandings, and everybody in the Legislature used to look forward to mountain oysters. You wouldn't tell those people who didn't know what mountain oysters were. I think Keith had about 63 people enjoying mountain oysters before it was over with.

Keith will be missed very, very dearly. Probably one of his most brilliant strokes was when he changed parties from Democrat to Republican.

ASSEMBLYMAN COLLINS:

I rise, also, in support of ACR 24. I worked with Keith in the legislature in 1993, and I also knew him when I was an employee at Nevada Power Company. Keith always talked to you straight. Although I wasn't here in 1995, Keith was still a good friend. We could sit at a shareholders' meeting, eat a cookie that we both knew we didn't need and have a good time together. I'm very grateful for his influence on me, both on local issues in southern Nevada as well as in the Legislature.

Keith was also a constituent in Assembly District 1, so I wanted to rise in support of this resolution and express that he will be missed.

ASSEMBLYMAN BACHE:

I rise, too, in support of this resolution. Back in the late '70s and '80s, I appreciated Mr. Ashworth for his ability and what he did as a legislator. Now that I, too, am serving here in my fourth term, his ability as a lobbyist was something I greatly appreciated. Keith would not only argue for his clients. Afterwards, he would come and talk to me and tell me what he would do as a legislator, forgetting his position as a lobbyist on that particular issue. I miss Keith and the sage advice and wisdom that he could have provided me this session.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN OHRENSCHALL:

I, too, have known Keith Ashworth for a long, long time. He gave me a lot of valuable advice. He helped in many ways. His last act that I know of, just before he went into the hospital, was to return my call and to try to help a family in my district that needed help just on a general humanitarian basis. He was a great man.

ASSEMBLYWOMAN GIUNCHIGLIANI:

Just prior to my colleague, I was going to say, "Wait a minute. Something is wrong here with this picture. No woman has stood up to speak in behalf of Keith and to remember him." I know that Keith had a very good working relationship with many of the women up here, both lobbyists as well as in the Assembly. I just want to say that I think he'd get a kick out of it.

The main thing I remember about Keith was his sense of humor. He loved to tease. He always had just a little twist or a little tweak or a little way to say something. He was always a gentleman, and I think that was the key to his success. He was able to work with both sides regardless of party.

As a final note, I would say that Papa Gar's probably thanks Keith immensely for all the years that he held many, many meetings at that place. It is always a delight to still go in there and have a bite of breakfast or something and look at all the pictures on the wall with him and Robbie Robinson. I do acknowledge to the family that he is missed, but he was a good friend to many, many people.

ASSEMBLYMAN DINI:

It is indeed my pleasure to have the family of Keith Ashworth here with me today. His wife, Colleen, is here to my left. We also have son Glen and wife Karina, son Ken and wife Cindy; son Brian and wife Heidi; grandchildren Matthew, Justin, Cassidy and Megan; and friend Ann Busch. We are very happy that they all came to visit us today. I want to present this resolution to Colleen on behalf of the Assembly, and we have one for each of your sons. We're so happy that you did come today, because we wanted to honor Keith, and we wanted you to be here when we did it. As you can tell, Keith left a lot of fond memories here, and we hope that we helped refresh your mind about some of the things he did while he was here.

Resolution adopted.

"Sec. 17. Section 2 of Assembly Bill No. 39 of this session is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 2. NRS 62.211 is hereby amended to read as follows:

62.211 1. Except as otherwise provided in NRS 62.212 [,] and section 1 of this act, if the court finds that a child is within the purview of this chapter it shall so decree and may:

(a) Place the child under supervision in his own home or in the custody of a suitable person elsewhere, upon such conditions as the court may determine. A program of supervision in the home may include electronic surveillance of the child. The legislature declares that a program of supervision that includes electronic surveillance is intended as an alternative to commitment and not as an alternative to probation, informal supervision or a supervision and consent decree.

(b) Commit the child to the custody of a public or private institution or agency authorized to care for children, or place him in a home with a family. In committing a child to a private institution or agency the court shall select one that is required to be licensed by the department of human resources to care for such children, or, if the institution or agency is in another state, by the analogous department of that state. The court shall not commit a female child to a private institution without prior approval of the superintendent of the Caliente youth center, and shall not commit a male child to a private institution without prior approval of the superintendent of the Nevada youth training center.

(c) Order such medical, psychiatric, psychological or other care and treatment as the court deems to be for the best interests of the child, except as otherwise provided in this section.

(d) Order the parent, guardian, custodian or any other person to refrain from continuing the conduct which, in the opinion of the court, has caused or tended to cause the child to come within or remain under the provisions of this chapter.

(e) If the child is less than 17 years of age, order the parent, guardian or custodian of the child, and any brothers, sisters or other persons living in the same household as the child over whom the court has jurisdiction to attend or participate in counseling, alone or together with the child, including, but not limited to, counseling regarding parenting skills, alcohol or substance abuse or techniques of dispute resolution.

(f) Order the parent or guardian of the child to participate in a program designed to provide restitution to the victim of an act committed by the child or to perform public service.

(g) Order the parent or guardian of the child to pay all or part of the cost of the proceedings, including, but not limited to, reasonable attorney's fees, any costs incurred by the court and any costs incurred in the investigation of an act committed by the child and the taking into custody of the child.

(h) Order the suspension of the child's driver's license for at least 90 days but not more than 2 years. If the child does not possess a driver's license, the court may prohibit the child from receiving a driver's license for at least 90 days but not more than 2 years:

(1) Immediately following the date of the order, if the child is eligible to receive a driver's license.

(2) After the date he becomes eligible to apply for a driver's license, if the child is not eligible to receive a license on the date of the order.

If the court issues an order suspending the driver's license of a child pursuant to this paragraph, the judge shall require the child to surrender to the court all driver's licenses then held by the child. The court shall, within 5 days after issuing the order, forward to the department of motor vehicles and public safety the licenses, together with a copy of the order. If, pursuant to this paragraph, the court issues an order delaying the ability of a child to receive a driver's license, the court shall, within 5 days after issuing the order, forward to the department of motor vehicles and public safety a copy of the order. The department of motor vehicles and public safety shall report a suspension pursuant to this paragraph to an insurance company or its agent inquiring about the child's driving record, but such a suspension must not be considered for the purpose of rating or underwriting. The department of motor vehicles and public safety shall not require the child to submit to the tests and other requirements which are adopted by regulation pursuant to subsection 1 of NRS 483.495 as a condition of reinstatement or reissuance after a suspension of his license pursuant to this paragraph, unless the suspension resulted from his poor performance as a driver.

(i) Place the child, when he is not in school, under the supervision of:

(1) A public organization to work on public projects;

(2) A public agency to work on projects to eradicate graffiti; or

(3) A private nonprofit organization to perform other public service.

The person under whose supervision the child is placed shall keep the child busy and well supervised and shall make such reports to the court as it may require. As a condition of such a placement, the court may require the child or his parent or guardian to deposit with the court a reasonable sum of money to pay for the cost of policies of insurance against liability for personal injury and damage to property or for industrial insurance, or both, during those periods in which he performs the work, unless, in the case of industrial insurance, it is provided by the organization or agency for which he performs the work.

(j) Permit the child to reside in a residence without the immediate supervision of an adult, or exempt the child from mandatory attendance at school so that the child may be employed full time, or both, if the child is at least 16 years of age, has demonstrated the capacity to benefit from this placement or exemption and is under the strict supervision of the juvenile division.

(k) Require the child to provide restitution to the victim of the crime which the child has committed.

(l) Impose a fine on the child. If a fine is imposed, the court shall impose an administrative assessment pursuant to NRS 62.223.

2. If the court finds that a child who is less than 17 years of age has committed a delinquent act, the court may order the parent or guardian of the child to pay any fines and penalties imposed for the delinquent act. If the parent or guardian is unable to pay the fines and penalties imposed because of financial hardship, the court may require the parent or guardian to perform community service.

3. In determining the appropriate disposition of a case concerning a child found to be within the purview of this chapter, the court shall consider whether the act committed by the child involved the use of a firearm or the use or threatened use of force or violence against the victim of the act and whether the child is a serious or chronic offender. If the court finds that the act committed by the child involved the use of a firearm or the use or threatened use of force or violence against the victim or that the child is a serious or chronic offender, the court shall include the finding in its order and may, in addition to the options set forth in subsections 1 and 2 of this section and NRS 62.213:

(a) Commit the child for confinement in a secure facility, including a facility which is secured by its staff.

(b) Impose any other punitive measures the court determines to be in the best interests of the public or the child.

4. At any time, either on its own volition or for good cause shown, the court may terminate its jurisdiction concerning the child.

5. Whenever the court commits a child to any institution or agency pursuant to this section or NRS 62.213, it shall transmit a summary of its information concerning the child and order the administrator of the school that the child last attended to transmit a copy of the child's educational records to the institution or agency. The institution or agency shall give to the court any information concerning the child that the court may require.

6. In determining whether to place a child pursuant to this section in the custody of a person other than his parent, guardian or custodian, preference must be given to any person related within the third degree of consanguinity to the child whom the court finds suitable and able to provide proper care and guidance for the child.".
