TEXT OF REPEALED SECTION

Section 12 of LCB File No. R167-95 Determination by system whether maximum amount of payroll has been reported and premiums paid. [Effective July 1, 1999.] To determine whether the maximum amount of payroll established by NRS 616B.039 and NAC 616A.200 has been reported and premiums paid during a calendar year for an employee who is leased pursuant to an agreement for leasing employees, the system will:

1. Include any amount of payroll previously reported for the employee during that year by the client company, regardless of whether:

(a) The report was made for a joint or individual account required to be maintained by the client company pursuant to NAC 616B.845.

(b) The agreement for leasing employees was in effect for the entire calendar year.

2. Consider first, within each reporting period, the amount of payroll reported for the employee for the joint account, and then consider any amount of payroll reported for the individual account of the client company.
